Pedestrian First City Fatality

A 76-year-old pedestrian became Victoria's first traffic fatality of the new year Sunday when she was struck by a car at Cook and Burdett.

Dorothy V. Crighton, of 104 - 805 Cook Street, was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital at about 5:30 p.m.

Police said the woman was crossing Cook west to east in an unmarked crosswalk during heavy rain and darkness when she was hit by a vehicle driven by Bruce Whitten of 145 Barkley Terrace, Oak Bay.

Police said no charges have been laid and that no date has yet been set for an inquest.

CITIES CAN GO BROKE, MAYOR WARNS

Curb Big Spending—Pollen

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen today pointed a warning finger at economic "storm clouds on the horizon," and dipped into the city's past to remind his council colleagues that Victoria has gone broke before. (The text of his address was released in advance of this afternoon's meeting.)

While Pollen gave a firm assurance that the city is in excellent financial shape, he said he was dredging up history to emphasize the fact that Victoria, "like all cities, does not have an infinite capacity to generate tax revenue . . ."

For that reason, he stated in his inaugural address, the city must try to control "the voracious and, in many areas, undisciplined and unco-ordinated demands of institutions dependent upon the taxpayers of our community for tax revenue."

Among such institutions the mayor listed the Capital Regional District, the Greater Victoria Library system, Camosun College and the education system in general.

"A great challenge is before us not only to endeavour to regulate the appetite of these institutions to conform with the financial limitations of our citizens, but at the same time to develop a positive response from the provincial government to the ever-increasing problem of municipal finance," he said.

Pollen produced his recession-conscious warning in referring to the city's debt situation.

Total debt outstanding as of Dec. 31 last year, he said, was $9.2 million. But additional spending approved in the city's second five-year capital budget, together with projects in the planning stage, would bring the total debt both outstanding and authorized to $14 million.

Per capita debt as of Dec. 31 was $149, or $228 including debt authorized but not yet assumed. By that date the debt per thousand dollars of taxable assessment was $41 outstanding and $63 gross authorized.

"This latter standard, of course, is perhaps the most meaningful as it reflects, to a degree, the capacity of the community to handle its debt load.

"I say to a degree in this instance as it is fully recognized that, while assessments might be high in relation to debt, in a sharp recession or depression the capability of this assessment to pay taxes is not necessarily present inasmuch as property taxes are almost entirely retrogressive; that is, they do not reflect the capacity of a particular property owner to pay."

Pollen pointed out that only

Canada staged a spectacular rally in the final period Sunday at Winnipeg, but it wasn't enough to prevent Russia from retaining the world junior hockey title.

Defensive errors by the Canadians played a part in all goals scored by the Russians, who held on for a 4-3 triumph after building up a 4-1 lead. It was the only defeat in the six-team tournament for the Canadian team, comprised of players from the Western Canada Hockey League.

One of the Canadian goals was scored by Rick Lapointe of Victoria Cougars, who had bolstered their lead in the WCHL's Western Division by crushing Medicine Hat Tigers 10-2 Saturday at Memorial Arena. (Page 12)

In the National Hockey League, Washington Capitals continued their threat to set a modern record for futility as they were blanked 3-0 Sunday by Atlanta Flames. Capitals now have a mark of three victories, four ties and 33 losses, placing in jeopardy the record for inefficiency set in 1972-73 by New York Islanders, who lost 60 times while managing 12 wins and six ties. Major league baseball pitcher Don Wilson, 29, who tossed two no-hit games in a nine-year career with Houston Astros, died Sunday of asphixiation at his Houston home. Also dead is his five-year-old son. His wife and nine-year-old daughter are in hospital. (Page 12)

Economic Optimism Quashed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's chief economist today warned against undue optimism that recovery from the recession will begin in the second half of 1975.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, testified before Congress' joint economic committee that the economy's downturn came more swiftly than the administration anticipated and recovery may come more slowly than many private economists predict.

"The very suddenness of the decline has made developments beyond the first quarter (of 1975) extremely difficult to gauge, but essentially we still foresee a bottoming out in economic activity by mid-year," Greenspan said.

"The timing and the strength of the ensuing recovery is still very uncertain."

Most economists are predicting that the U.S. economy will pick up toward the end of the year, especially if, as expected, the government provides economic stimulation through tax cuts and heavy deficit spending.

According to Time magazine, President Ford, in his state of the union message next month, will ask for an income tax cut between $10 billion and $15 billion.

Nanaimo Schools Crippled

NANAIMO—Students at Nanaimo's 43 schools got only one hour of instruction today as the school district's Canadian Union of Public Employees workers began a rotating strike.

"We just want to create a little hassle with the school board to draw attention to the job security and cost of living issues," CUPE Local 606 president Nick Mieras said today.

Mieras said only 21 out of the 185 local members stayed off work today, including all the district's bus drivers.

He called the school board irresponsible for closing the schools when most custodians were on the job today.

District superintendent Douglas Weicker said the board had expected CUPE to stage a general walkout this morning, so had to prepare for that.

He said the "harrassment" of rotating strikes will make it difficult to keep the schools open.

Today students who made it to school despite the lack of buses received assignments and some instruction from their teacher for an hour, then were dismissed.

Teachers were to attend in-service training sessions the rest of the day.

Last-minute negotiations between Nanaimo school board and the CUPE staff broke down Saturday.

Main issue in the dispute is job security. The board had offered a letter of understanding that there would be no contracting out for the 1975 contract year. The union rejected the offer on grounds that a future contract might not be signed before the Dec. 31, 1975 expiration date of the agreement.

Mieras said the union rejected an 18-per-cent wage increase over one year because a cost-of-living clause was not included. The board had earlier offered a cost-of-living allowance clause on a two-year contract.

About 80 Port Alberni city employees, members of CUPE Local 118, started a work-to-rule campaign Saturday to back demands for a new contract. The action followed a meeting with city representatives and mediator Clark Gilmour Friday.

Meanwhile, more than 89,000 students in the Ontario separate school districts of Durham, Sudbury, Wellington, Carleton, Ottawa, Elgin and London-Middlesex were enjoying an extended Christmas break boday while their teachers and school board trustees sat through crucial stages of contract bargaining.

Million-Gallon Spill Awash at Singapore

Times News Services

SINGAPORE — This port was put on alert today to combat possible major oil pollution after a Japanese supertanker went aground just outside the port limits spilling an estimated one million gallons of crude oil from its ruptured tanks.

The Showa Maru, bound from the Persian Gulf to Japan, ran aground half a mile west of Buffalo rock in the Singapore strait at daybreak.

By mid-afternoon, Port of Singapore authorities said the ship master had reported that some 4,500 kilolitres (approximately one million gallons) of crude had poured out of three ruptured tanks.

The island repubic's maritime authorities put out an urgent oil pollution alert and sent fire fighting ships to spray detergents on the spreading oil slicks.

Both the Singapore defence ministry and the ministry of environment were placed on standby alert should the spilled oil reach the beaches.

Port officials said one oil slick over one-mile-long had drifted into the outer reaches of Singapore port.

Port authorities said oil slicks had already reached some of the small islands south of Singapore, and prevailing currents threatened to push oil slicks ashore near Jurong, on Singapore Island's west coast.

Today's spill was believed to be the first of such a magnitude in the area and could well cause serious pollution on the beaches of three countries — Singapore, Malaysia and Indonesia.

The Japanese government said in Tokyo it was preparing for action to counter the effects of the spill.

Government sources said the foreign ministry had contacted the Japanese embassy in Singapore and had also talked to a Tokyo shipowners organization about the possibility of rushing oil fences and chemical neutralizers to the scene of the accident.

Bridge Rammed, 10 Dead

Times News Services

HOBART, Tasmania — Officials believe at least 10, and possibly 20, people were killed when a British ore freighter rammed the Tasman bridge Sunday night and brought down a 240-foot section of the span that took the 11,200-ton ship to the bottom.

The bodies of five of the ship's 42 crew members were recovered, and two other crew members were missing. But police said they believed two and possibly four cars plunged from the bridge into the Derwent River 150 feet below. They had no idea how many persons were in the cars, but one vehicle may have held six occupants.

The ship, the Lake Illawarra, stayed afloat long enough for the other 35 crew members to get off alive. Three were in hospital. The survivors included the ship's captain and the chief engineer.

The four-lane, mile-long bridge connected the business district of Hobart, on the west bank of the river, to residential areas on the east side. The city is the capital and largest city of Tasmania, the Australian island state 150 miles south of the mainland.

The accident occurred about 9 p.m. during a light rain, officials said.

The Lake Illawarra, carrying 10,000 tons of zinc concentrate, smashed into and demolished two of the bridge pylons, shearing away three spans.

"The ship steered to the left of the navigation span and hit the bridge on the third pylon from the eastern shore," said Maurice Allan, who saw the accident from his home. "The ship went straight down after the bridge collapsed on top of it after wavering for about 60 seconds."

Allan's son, Gordon, 20, said he heard "a big bang and saw a car heading into town swerve across the bridge. It hit an oncoming car and both fell into the river."

Drug, Drink Dry-Out At Oak Bay Manor?

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Oak Bay council will consider tonight a proposal to locate a "reorientation" program at Oak Bay Manor for "people from industry" who have an alcohol or other drug dependency problem.

Ian Else, manager of the $5.5 million retirement home at 2251 Cadboro Bay Rd., said today the manor has been approached by a group of four doctors who have developed a 28-day treatment program for such cases.

The concept is to treat executives or other valued employees a company does not want to lose through a combination of counselling, diet and exercise and in suitable surroundings such as the manor can provide, he said.

The proposal envisages 18 rooms in a "somewhat isolated" wing on the fourth floor being used and Else emphasized that people taking part in the program would be sober and well-behaved. With four of the rooms to be used as offices and two to a room in the remainder, the proposed program would have room for an enrolment of 28.

The program would not be for "welfare cases," would be operated discreetly and would be halted if found not to be working, Else said.

"It's for productive people in our society."

He declined to indicate what the overall cost for a patient would be but said the manor's charge would be the same as for a resident, between $500 and $600 a month, which includes meals.

The concept has the blessing of Human Resources Minister Norm Levi, he said, but both Levi and the Manor want approval from Oak Bay council.

Else said such a program located at the Manor would obviously benefit it by utilizing unoccupied rooms but in addition he believes the program would meet a need.

Most of the suites of the 267-suite Manor are unoccupied. The Manor is also seeking authority to provide "personal care," a degree of nursing assistance, on one floor of a wing.

Energy Head To Venezuela

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald left today for Caracas, Venezuela, for five days of discussions on oil prices and supplies.

Officials said he specifically plans to discuss a Venezuelan proposal to increase by more than $1 per barrel of oil income tax paid by foreign oil companies in the South American oil-exporting country.

Companies Shy Away From B.C.

The number of companies from outside the province registering to do business in British Columbia has declined for the second straight year, according to statistics obtained today from the office of the registrar of companies.

There were 540 companies coming into B.C. in 1974, down 6 per cent from a year earlier.

In 1973 the total of 573 had been down 11 per cent from 644 in 1972, the year the New Democratic Party came to power.

Until that time, the number of companies coming into B.C. was increasing at about 12 per cent per year.

Registrations are by companies with headquarters outside B.C. who set up their first branches in this province or seek permission to expand operations into B.C.

Usually these companies are quite large and have branches in several provinces and countries.

Meanwhile, the number of companies incorporated in B.C. during 1974 was 9,766, up 4 per cent from 9,413. This is about the same rate of growth as in the previous year when the number of companies increased 4.3 per cent from 9,024.

Incorporations are by companies being formed in B.C. and the majority of them are small. For example, each penny mine and oil exploration firm on the Vancouver Stock Exchange is incorporated as a separate comany.

The number or registration by large outside firms is considered a major index of the economic growth of a province.

The number of new incorporations inside the province is also considered significant, reflecting optimism or pessimism for the immediate future.

The figures reflect a note of caution but not extreme pessimism about the future of the B.C. economy. And December totals were surprisingly high in both categories.

There were 54 companies from outside B.C. registering for the first time in this province, up from 38 the previous December. The total number of B.C. companies incorporated during December was 650, up from 578 the previous December.

Meanwhile, the co-op movement flourished during 1974. There were 78 new co-ops formed in B.C. during the year, up from 38 in 1973 and up from 33 in 1972.

New partnerships during the year totalled 2,194, up from 2,086 in 1973 and up from 1,992 in 1972.

There were 680 societies formed during 1974, up from 609 in 1973 and up from 495 in 1972.

24% in 9-Month Pact Offered BCR

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Rail shopcraft workers would receive a 24-per-cent wage increase during a nine-month contract if they approve a memorandum of agreement with the railway, according to the Vancouver television station BCTV.

Shopcraft union members voted Sunday at Squamish and were to vote today at Prince George on the tentative agreement announced early Saturday following a meeting between representatives of the two sides. Vancouver lawyer Dalton Larson, appointed by the provincial government in late December as industrial inquiry commissioner, presided over the meeting.

Details of the proposed settlement were to be withheld pending completion of the ratification vote.

Union negotiators recommended the 550 striking workers accept the proposed contract. But in Prince George Saturday, shopcraft spokesman Vern Paul recommended that the proposal be rejected by the membership.

BCTV said the vote appeared close at the meeting of about 300 Lower Mainland workers at Squamish Sunday. The station said the memorandum of agreement includes a proposal to set up an industrial inquiry commission to investigate labor-management relations at the provincial government-owned railway.

Union spokesman Norm Farley said the railway can expect more trouble next summer unless labor-management relations improve.

Farley said that if the memorandum of agreement was ratified by the shopcraft unions, the railway could be running again Tuesday. The BCR has been idle since negotiations broke off and the strike began Nov. 21.

Shopcraft employees picketing northern sections of the line said they were considering continuing their work stoppage, even if most of the B.C. Rail workers decide to return to work.

Paul said his 80 supporters at Prince George and Williams Lake aren't on speaking terms with Farley, after Farley signed the memorandum of agreement.

Farley was to meet Paul in Prince George today.

Under the contract which expired Oct. 31, 1974, top rate among the shopcraft employees was $5.79 an hour.

The Crown corporation's last public offer to the striking workers would have increased wages and benefits by 19.5 per cent during a nine-month contract. The union was seeking a 30.6-per-cent increase in the same period.

Arabs Unite Against Kissinger

(Times News Services)

The Arab League urged Arab countries today to take precautionary measures against the possibility of U.S. military intervention against oil producing states. U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger raised that possibility if the Arabs' use of oil as a weapon brought "some actual strangulation of the industrialized world."

Almost every Arab oil producing state plus Venezuela and the Shah of Iran have denounced the Kissinger statement. Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad joined them today and said the Kissinger statement violated the United Nations charter.

"We reject attempts to restore the world to the era of threats and domination," Riad told a meeting of the league's economic unity council in Cairo. "Arab countries should take these statements seriously and the oil-producing states should think of taking protective measures."

Riad's statements constituted the strongest Arab reaction yet to Kissinger's statement.

Riad said the American threats "are a violation of the chapter of the United Nations, under which the countries of the world, including the United States, agreed to a world system that bans the use of force and threats to use force."

In Beirut, the newspaper An Nahar said Kissinger has sent messages to the four largest oil-exporting countries clarifying his statement. The newspaper, quoting diplomatic sources, said Kissinger sent messages to Saudi Arabia, Iran, Venezuela and Kuwait.

"The messages referred to the proposed conference between oil producers and consumers but also carried an explanation of his statements last week," the newspaper said.

State Minister Abdel Aziz Hussein of Kuwait told newsmen Sunday the remark was unjustified and part of an American policy aimed at scaring the oil producers into lowering their prices.

The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram charged in an editorial that the United States seemed to be headed for the role that Britain played in the 1956 Suez war against Egypt.

"Israel looks forward to joining the U.S. in a new war against the Arabs in the same manner it joined France and Britain in attacking Egypt in the wake of the nationalization of the Suez Canal," the newspaper said.

A pro-Palestinian Beirut newspaper, Al Moharrer, publishes a cartoon showing Kissinger in a Nazi uniform decorated with the Star of David receiving congratulations from President Ford.

"America puts world on powder barrel," says a headline in the paper.

Libyan Premier Abdel-Salam Jalloud said: "We are not afraid and we will fight for freedom."

A member of the Kuwait cabinet, Abdel Aziz Hussein, told Egypt's official Middle East news agency: "American organs have been making such threats frequently, so it is now established in people's minds that their purpose is to check the freedom of oil producers to set a just price for their oil."

B.C. Not Out to Buy Block Bros.—Barrett

Premier Barrett said today the provincial government "has no intention" of buying Block Brothers Industries.

The government became involved in negotiations for a merger of Block Brothers and City Savings and Trust Company to protect the prublic interest because B.C. "has had a history of trust problems," said Barrett.

Block Brothers announced last week it was deferring merger negotiations at the request of the Barrett government.

Talks were held Dec. 30 between Barrett and company chairman Arthur Block and president Henry Block and the premier said today several points about the merger were clarified at that meeting but "there are a couple of other points still to clarify."

Barrett would not say when further talks will be held to clear up those points and would not comment on possible government action if the merger was not "clarified" to the government's satisfaction.

"We're concerned in terms of the public interest," said the premier. "They (Block brothers) are an important segment of B.C. industry and we want to clarify their role and intentions. We have no intention of buying Block Brothers."

Barrett said "Socred mismanagement" of Commonwealth Trust, a company which collapsed in the late 1960s, "left a lot of little people broke in this provicne."

He said he was not putting Block Brothers or City Savings in the same league as Commonwealth Trust but added "anyone would be a fool if they didn't take the public interest into account after the history of Commonwealth."

Block Brothers is a "reputable firm" and "an aggressive business outfit," he said.

The merger, which was to have occurred Dec. 20, would have made City Savings' parent, First City Financial Corporation, one of the largest financial companies in western Canada.

Barrett also took the opportunity today to again rail against Canada's "usurious banking system taking advantage of the people of this country."

He said the government would not take up a recent option to buy more shares in the Bank of B.C. and reaffirmed his pledge to find British columbians an alternative to the established banking system.

DOUBLE BREAK-IN

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver couple might wish they'd stayed away on holidays after being victims of two break-ins that netted thieves about $2,500 in goods.

Police said Sunday the first break-in occurred while Carl and Judy Wener were away on vacation. It was discovered when they returned to their home Saturday.

A police spokesman said the house was ransacked; liquor had been consumed and thieves apparently slept in a bed. Furnishings worth more than $1,800 were taken during the episode.

Once the Weners had cleaned up the mess Sunday and gone to bed about 2:30 a.m., police said another break-in occurred.

Wener awoke about 3:30 a.m. to find the front door wide open and other goods worth about $680 taken.

Tight-Belt Policy Urged

last week the city had paid off the final $623,000 of a debt that had started in the 1890s and which subsequently had to be refunded twice — in 1937 and again in 1944.

In turning to the city's 1975 financial scene, the mayor reiterated a recent warning that this year Victoria taxpayers will feel "the full agonizing impact" of an increased budget burden.

He said preliminary figures show the city's taxable assessment for general purposes having risen by about $8.4 million, from $223.4 million in 1974 to $231.8 million in 1975.

"This increase is small when compared to the increase from 1973 to 1974, when taxable assessment for general purposes increased by some $47 million," Pollen said.

"This year's small increase is due to provincial legislation returning assessments back to the 1974 base. The increase in revenue to the city on the 1975 assessment, using the 1974 mill rate for general purposes, is only $340,000.

"It follows most unfortunately, therefore, that a substantial increase in the mill rate will be required in 1975."

Pollen concluded his economic review with what has now become a traditional feature of his inaugural address — a sarcastic "assurance" to council that City Hall staff members are not the hapless victims of runaway inflation:

"We must assure ourselves, amongst other things, that our staff is being adequately remunerated for its services. As a basis for assurance I am once again able to report to you that the average salary and benefits paid to an employee between 1969 and 1974, that is, over the last five years, has increased from $7,300 in 1969 to $11,700 in 1974 or well in excess of 60 per cent.

"This increase, I am able to report, far exceeds the cost of living increase of approximately 34 per cent as reflected in the Canadian Consumer Price Index. These statistics are once again most reassuring."

Pollen said the city's current offer to its employees involving a more than 20 per cent increase in payroll costs in one year, would "increase the gap between salary increases and the cost of living increase over the years."

Financial Optimism

The move is aimed at injecting purchasing power into the economy as the administration comes around to the view that "recession has replaced inflation as the U.S.'s No. 1 economic problem."

The news magazine also said the tax cut proposal would be coupled with an energy conservation package built around excise taxes on crude oil and natural gas. The administration believes such a move would help reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil.

According to Time, Ford and his advisers in meeting held in Vail, Colo., ruled out both an increase in gasoline taxes and gas rationing.

In Detroit, the U.S. auto industry launched the first full week of 1975 production today with 14 assembly plants closed, 140,000 workers on long-term layoffs and reports showing steadily dropping car sales.

Preliminary figures indicated December sales of 430,000 domestic-built cars, a 25-per cent drop from last December's gasoline-pinched sales and 40 per cent below 1972's record December.

December sales were the lowest for any month since December of 1970, when a strike against General Motors cut deeply into deliveries. They finished 1974 domestic car production with a 7.45 million total, the lowest since strike-affected 1970.

Besides the 140,000 workers on open-ended layoffs this week, another 40,000 were idled temporarily at the 11 car and three truck assembly plants that were shut and thousands more were off the job at manufacturing plants.

Both industry and union officials agree many workers will not return to their jobs until there is an upturn in new car sales. Ward's automotive reports, the industry's statistical publication, in an earlier prediction said automakers have not faced such a potentially depressed car market since the 1930s.

Lifejacket Inventor To Speak

Dr. John Hayward, one of three University of Victoria professors responsible for designing a cold-defying thermal lifejacket, will speak on the UVic research project this week in Ste. Adele, Que.

Hayward will be one of the main speakers at the four-day symposium of the Canadian Physiological Society to be held Wednesday through to Saturday at Le Chantecler.

The UVic associate professor of biology will discuss the physiological basis for improved survival techniques of man in frigid waters.

Dr. Pierre Beaudry, associate professor of pediatrics at McGill University, will give a paper that deals with respiratory problems in the newborn infant. Dr. Louis Poirier of Laval Universiy will present a paper on diseases which impair motor functions, such as Parkinson's.

COLD RECEPTION TO MIXED SAUNA

LONDON (Reuter) — An experimental mixed sauna for men and women has closed here after a dismal six months during which the biggest attendance was two couples. Bathing suits were mandatory.

"We just couldn't allow mixed sessions in the nude," a spokesman explained. "If that happened, we would probably be overrun."

the weather

The path of the next series of Pacific disturbances is expected to be well to the south of B.C. during the next few days. Consequently any precipitation in southern parts of the province should be limited to isolated showers of rain or snow. Numerous snowshowers are in prospect for the north coastal district. Meantime, frigid Arctic air will continue its invasion of northern B.C. and is expected to reach the Prince George district tonight.

N. Pacific Dramas Ending

The Victoria-based tug Sudbury II, towing the crippled Liberian freigher Corina, is expected to dock in Vancouver early this evening.

Capt. Fred Collins of Seaspan International Ltd. in Vancouver said Sudbury II should be back in her home base by 9 a.m. Tuesday.

The Corina, with a cargo of cars, broke down in the stormy Gulf of Alaska Dec. 18. She radioed for help Christmas Eve and the Sudbury II, due to leave Port Alberni for home, responded.

She rendezvoused with the Corina Dec. 29, putting a tow line on the freighter, lying helpless in the mountainous waves, her engines broken down.

The tow line was disconnected twice as gale-force winds and heavy seas battered the two vessels.

Meanwhile, another vessel that ran into trouble in the North Pacific is being escorted to safety by the Vancouver tug Ocean Master.

The American tug Gemini, on her way to Seattle from Anchorage, Alaska, ran into a storm Thursday that cracked one of her stern plates, causing sea water to contaminate most of her fuel.

The weathership Quadra, on station Papa 800 miles out in the Pacific, went to Gemini's aid, reaching her late Saturday and standing by the tug until the Ocean Master arrived.

A Canadian armed forces Argus aircraft located Gemini about 200 miles off course Friday. The tug was unable to plot an accurate position because her navigation equipment was not working.

A spokesman for the Pacific rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said today the two tugs were 150 miles off Triangle Island at the northern tip of Vancouver Island at 7 a.m. today and making for Seattle.

Winds had subsided and the Gemini was making 'way under her own steam.

The Quadra has returned to Station Papa.

Teamsters Stay Out

British Columbia's biggest trucking firm, Johnston Terminals, was idle again today after teamsters union members on Vancouver Island voted Sunday to remain off the job.

The men, nearly 200 on Vancouver Island and more than 1,000 on the Lower Mainland, walked off their jobs last week in support of two men who were suspended and fined by the company.

Ed Zimmerman, secretary treasurer of local 31 of the Teamsters, said Sunday the position of the men is rigid.

"They won't return to work until the suspensions are lifted and everyone is reinstated with full pay for time lost," he said.

James Methven, president of Johnston Terminals, said Friday the company would seek damages in court from the two teamster union locals involved, Locals 31 and 213.

"Our lawyers advised this action and we are taking their advice," Methven said. Cost to the company is about $175,000 a day in lost gross other driver was suspended

Some of Johnston's Vancouver Island operations were hit Dec. 31 after a driver was suspended for failing to complete an assignment on overtime and, subsequently, another driver was suspended for abandoning a trailer.

Zimmerman said he told the men on three occasions Sunday to return to work, that the company was prepared to let them file a grievance and deal with it. "The men said no," he said.

Zimmerman said his next move would be to meet with the 1,000 Lower Mainland local members today and explain the situation to them.

At Nanaimo, he said, "the men unanimously took the position that they will not return to work unless the employer reinstates the employees, lifts the suspension of the two members involved and clears the record and everyone gets paid for time lost as a result of the company taking the illegal action it took in suspending these two men for not paying a company-imposed fine.

"That's their position. It was a unanimous decision. I asked them three times to go back to work," Zimmerman said.

"I had two business agents with me and we tried to tell them that they are illegal, that they should go back to work, and they've just taken the position that they're not going back," he said.

While the stoppage resulted directly from the suspensions, it is hinged to a work-to-rule campaign and overtime ban by the Teamsters that began in December.

The union started the campaign after transport labor relations, representing more than 100 trucking companies, rejected a union demand for a mid-contract wage increase to counter the pressures of inflation.

On Jan. 1, Teamster workers got an average 60-cents-an-hour wage increase covering the second half of their two-year agreement with transport labor relations. Their basic rate is $6.15 and the tradesmen's rate is $7.25.

Eight interprovincial trucking firms, covered by the federal labor code, obtained an injunction in B.C. Supreme Court Dec. 27 prohibiting the work-to-rule campaign.

A union official said the campaign would continue against the 89 firms which operate only in British Columbia and which are covered by B.C. labor legislation.

It was this work-to-rule campaign that resulted in the two suspensions by Johnston Terminals.

Zimmerman said one driver left a trailer while it was being loaded with paper at B.C. Forest Products Ltd. at Crofton and returned to Nanaimo without the trailer in order to finish his shift on time.

Gloom Forecasts Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — A leading Canadian economist has challenged the pervading doom and gloom theories of world economists and forecasts for Canada at least, an expanding economy in the last half of this year.

Arthur Smith, former chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, and now president of the Conference Board, says he expects the economy to expand at a rate of five per cent a year by the latter part of 1975.

"Of course if that ever comes about . . . 1976 could turn out to be a very strong year," he said in a taped interview on TCV's Question Period for broadcast Sunday.

The Economic Council of Canada is a federally funded research agency. The Conference Board is an independent, non-profit economic forecasting and research group.

Dr. Smith said the Canadian economy is experiencing a slowdown, not a recession.

He acknowledged that "the world is now in a world-wide recession and that a great many countries are now experiencing a setback."

"The United States is in one of the largest recessions since the recession of 1938," he said. And Canadians, he warned, face a difficult period of adjustment.

High consumer demand for goods and services until now have "put pressure on our supply capacities" to cause the slowdown, he said.

But he indicated he was confident people would learn to use resources more efficiently, to end the cycle and encourage further growth.

For the latter part of next year we see housing moving up, we see a recovery beginning in consumer durable spending . . ."

This new consumer strength, Smith said, "will help to lift the economy off into a new round of expansion which . . . we've seen as quite a virgorous one.

"We've talked about annual rates of increase at seasonally adjusted annual rates of about five per cent a year by the latter part of next year and of course if that ever comes about, then we move into 1976 in a very strong year.

"1976 could turn out to be in this scenario a very strong year," he repeated.

U.K. MEDIC STRIKE SPREADS TO ULSTER

LONDON (UPI) — The pay revolt of British National Health Service doctors spread to Northern Ireland today, where 400 specialists joined a slow-down to press demands for more money.

More than 11,000 surgeons and specialists have begun their first job action in one of the strongest threats to Britain's nationalized health care in its 26-year history.

Members of the nationalized health service began working to contract, limiting their hours, last Thursday after the pay review board rejected their claims for an 18 per cent pay raise and overtime.

The doctors want $20 an hour for overtime beyond their contracted hours.

This means doctors on full-time contracts within the National Health Service will work 38½ hours a week, while part time consultats, who do private work outside the health service, will work 31½ hours, including night calls.

CIA Now Faces Two Probes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders say their planned investigation into the Central Intelligence Agency will proceed even though President Ford has appointed an eight-man commission to look into the spy organization.

Ford named Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller to head the commission created Sunday to "determine whether the CIA has exceeded its statutory authority." The CIA, which is limited by law to foreign intelligence, allegedly has spied on U.S. citizens in the United States.

The commission is to report in 90 days. Ron Nessen, White House press secretary, said the report will be sent to Congress and released to the public.

The other commissioners appointed by Ford were former California governor Ronald Reagan, retired Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, former solicitor-general Erwin Griswold, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer Joseph Lane Kirkland, former commerce secretary John Connor, former treasury secretary C. Douglas Dillon and Edgar Shannon, retired president of the University of Virginia.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott praised the commission members but said it was necessary for the congressional inquiries to go ahead.

A CIA investigation previously was announced by Representative Lucien Nedzi, chairman of a committee which is supposed to oversee the work of the spy agency.

Nedzi said he would appreciate any insights the commission may offer "into the problem of reconciling a secret agency with an open society."

But he was skeptical about how much work the commission could produce in 90 days "because the CIA and the intelligence community are very large and the problem of reconciling a secret agency and an open society is very large."

Senator Howard Baker (Rep. Tenn.) who conducted his own inquiry into the CIA's links with the Watergate scandal, commended Ford for creating the commission, but said the commission did not reduce the need for independent congressional action.

Rattling Sabres Over Oil

The frank statement by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger that the United States would go to war if necessary to secure adequate supplies of oil if "strangulation of the industrialized world" was imminent, rightly attracted widespread attention despite his accompanying comments which put rather severe conditions on the use of military force in such a situation.

Any time the most powerful nation in the world talks of going to war, even under such closely-hedged terms as Kissinger outlined, the rest of us ought to sit bolt upright and pay very close attention.

Although Kissinger said that Americans have learned it is much easier to get into a war than to get out, no student of American foreign policy in the post-war period would rule out a repetition of the various wars and small scale actions the U.S. has engaged in during the past quarter century — the Korean war, Bay of Pigs, Dominican Republic, Vietnam. The record shows the U.S. has risked war over smaller things than a shortage of crude oil.

The scenario is not hard to imagine. A fresh outbreak of war in the Middle East, Israel threatened with extinction, each side menacing the other with atomic weapons — which reliable reports indicate each has in sufficient supply — would the U.S. simply stand by and watch?

Troops have been sent to the Middle East before. The Suez affair of 1956 is the best-known example, but the U.S. marines also have experience. Former president Eisenhower ordered them to Lebanon in 1958, ostensibly at the request of the beleaguered government there, to prevent a takeover by Egyptian-backed rebels.

The message projected loud and clear by Kissinger and Ford, while directed mainly at the Arabs, shouldn't be ignored in Ottawa. Canada is not a member of the Oil Producing and Exporting Countries, the Arab-domninated cartel which fixes prices for crude oil, but we charge the same price for our exports to the U.S. and we have begun an export cutback.

It is a not so subtle signal to America's allies as well as its antagonists in the Middle East. The far-fetched plot of a recent best-selling Canadian thriller in which a future American president sends the Green Berets over the 49th parallel to secure natural gas supplies sounds more and more like real life.

". . . you want to know what Canada is all about? I'll tell you what it's all about . . . it's YOU reading and listening to all those media people in Toronto telling you what Canada is all about . . . THAT'S what it's all about . . ."

Business As Usual

Since the Foreign Investment Review Agency was a political response in the first place it should not be surprising that politics has reared its head in an agency decision. But in reversing an agency decision to stop the sale of a Quebec based school bus assemblying plant to an affiliate of an American bus company the Trudeau administration has discredited its own agency and cast doubts on the government's commitments to preserving what is left of the Canadian economy.

Reasons for the unique reversal are also interesting. The Quebec government, which was originally opposed to the sale, changed its mind at the last minute, and decided to purchase a minority interest in the bus firm in partnership with the American buyer. In other words, the federal government backed off from stopping the sale when Quebec evinced interest in the deal. Does the reversal, viewed in this light, signal that the Foreign Investment Review Agency decision will in future be subject to provincial whims?

It is difficult to tell because agency decisions are made in secret, reasons for a specific stance are not divulged. Consultation with provinces affected by agency decisions is a part of the act, yet in this case, Quebec's grounds for reversal appear tenuous at best.

But the Foreign Investment Review Act, passed by Parliament last year, was specifically designed to serve the national interest, not regional interests. Its powers allow the government to screen all major new foreign investment, plus existing subsidiaries which invest in unrelated fields. Capital, creation of jobs, management and most important, the benefit to Canada, are among the considerations weighed by the agency in judging takeovers. Assuming the agency exercised these considerations in judging the Quebec bus deal the federal cabinet intervened at the peril of its own policies.

In itself the Foreign Investment Review Act was a lame response to surging Canadian nationalism and a contradiction of previous government policies. For the last two decades the federal government has fed and nurtured a branch plant economy in Canada — not that some foreign investment wasn't necessary to develop national resources. But it reached a stage early in this decade when most of the Canadian economy — especially manufacturing and resource sectors — were in U.S. hands. Trying to reverse the trend with one lonely government measure was a political gesture and in effect too little, too late. Now the government has compromised its own small creation. Reversing the bus deal wasn't really a political decision, it was just business as usual.

RICHARD GWYN

Cruel Choice—Kill or Not to Kill

OTTAWA — The 28 men and one woman in Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet soon will face the cruellest choice that anyone could have to take — to decide whether a man should live or die.

We all are vaguely aware, but really would prefer not to know, that the law imposes the death penalty for the murder of policemen and for prison guards (also for treason and for piracy on the high seas), but that this law never has been applied. All five death sentences passed since 1968 when the general death penalty was abolished have been reversed. No one has been executed in Canada since Ronald Turpin and Arthur Lucas were hung in Toronto's Don Jail in 1962.

The appalling deaths of two Moncton, N.B. policemen, apparently forced to dig their own shallow graves and then shot in the head from behind while handcuffed, forces upon us the issue of to hang or not to hang.

First Test

Corporal Aurele Bourgeois and Constable Michael O'Leary were doing their duty upholding the law, in this case searching for the kidnappers of the 14-year-old son of a Moncton businessman. The issue now is whether the law will be upheld for them and for their families — Bourgeois' four children and O'Leary's two.

The first test of the capital punishment law will come this spring. As the first item on its winter term which begins late in January, the supreme court will hear an appeal against the conviction late in 1973 of Rene Vaillancourt of Montreal for the murder of a policeman during a bank robbery in Toronto. Once the supreme court reaches its decision, and of course it cannot be prejudged, Solicitor General Warren Allmand's department will prepare a file on the Vaillancourt case, run off 29 copies and forward these to the cabinet.

The most troubling case of all because it raises the core issue of the deterrent value of the death penalty as a protection for policeman, concerns John Miller, 29, and Vincent Cockreill, 19, convicted last month of the murder of an RCMP officer in Cloverdale, B.C. Allegedly the pair sat drinking at home, loaded a gun, got into a car and then drove three times around the police station before shooting Constable Roger Pierlet, apparently at random.

HANGING
. . . cabinet will decide

Respect for law and order is the foundation upon which we have built our society. The phrase itself has never had here the ugly, repressive overtones it does in the United States. Law and order has never had to be imposed, except in isolated instances, because it has been accepted.

It is revealing, and is no accident, that the commission of inquiry into the conduct of the RCMP has received scores of letters from ordinary citizens saying in effect, do not harm a national institution. We grouse about parking tickets but do not question the right of policemen to do their duty, and that makes all the difference.

The question now is how society will discharge its duty to its policemen. Trudeau has called capital punishment "barbarous." It certainly is — Turpin and Lucas died back-to-back with a one-inch thick rope around their necks. The heart of one of them kept beating for 45 minutes, of the other for 25 minutes.

Trudeau also has made the valid point that the cabinet will not allow someone to hang, just to rebut criticism that it is making a mockery of the law by commuting each and every death sentence.

Irrevocable Sentence

As valid a point is that any law which cannot be enforced — and after a lapse of 12 years it is almost inconceivable that anyone will be hanged again — is a bad law. Juries are required to decide if a man is guilty of a capital offence and judges then are compelled to read out the death sentence. And policemen are killed, trying to rescue a kidnapped boy or walking down the street.

No solution can be humane in a brutal business. The choice must be the least inhumane solution. The effective punishment today for a capital offence is life imprisonment. In fact murderers spend an average of 13.5 years in prison, and then are paroled.

The murder of a policeman, or prison guard, should carry an irrevocable sentence of life imprisonment. Of course this means that all hope of rehabilitation is abandoned, but society's first duty is not to criminals but to victims, actual or potential.

HAROLD GREER

Megalopolis, Here We Come!

TORONTO — The Ontario government is now far and away the largest land owner and developer in Ontario, having bought up in the last few years thousands of acres for current and future housing and for three new cities — one at North Pickering, where the new international airport is supposed to go, and two in the Lake Erie country south of Hamilton.

The provincial government is also the busiest planner you'll find anywhere, pouring forth new legislation, reports, studies and guidelines for the future at such a rate that one can't keep track of them all.

You might conclude from these two situations that the Ontario government is very big on planning, and so it is. Keeps the civil servants busy and gives the government an endless supply of futuristic stuff to announce.

But if you concluded that the government knows what it is doing, that it has worked out a master plan which it is implementing step by step — well, no, that would be a mistake. What the Ontario government specializes in is planning, not performance.

Toronto — sprawling towards eight million people by year 2000

Take, for example, the biggest planning problems of all, how to prevent the metropolitan Toronto area from becoming, by the year 2000, one vast sprawling megalopolis stretching 80 miles along Lake Ontario from Hamilton in the west to beyond the Oshawa in the east, with eight million or more souls bumping into each other.

Nobody wants this to happen and maybe it won't. But if it doesn't, it will be because the birth rate drops to zero, immigration is cut off and there is no real growth, not because of anything the Davis government of Ontario does to prevent it.

Oh, the government has all sorts of plans to prevent it. Way back in 1970, it announced the grand-daddy of them all, the Toronto-Centred Region concept. This, said the premier of the day, John Robarts, would "shape our future and that of our children and their children," it was so far-reaching and fundamental.

The TCR concept was a pretty lousy plan to begin with, because it accepted an urban population for the lakeshore strip of 5.7 million by the year 2000. This was roughly double the 1970 population, which was bad enough, and there are many places in Ontario, or Canada for that matter, which can use two or three million persons to better advantage than the Toronto region.

However, let that be. The TCR concept at least had this much to be said for it, that it proposed to break up the urban sprawl by creating parkways and greenbelts between communities and by pursuing a "go east" policy — that is, by restraining growth to the west and north of Toronto and by stimulating it in the east, where things are still manageable.

The TCR plan was rather vague on just how this would be done, but the general idea was to provide a framework within which public and private decisions affecting the area could be co-ordinated. It was a guideline for avoiding misdirected capital expenditures by business, thereby "retaining the efficiency of the private sector while improving the quality of life," as the government put it, and for instructing government ministries in their daily decision-making where and when to build pipelines, highways, housing and so on.

Of course big concepts like the TCR need advisory committees and technical committees and task forces to husband and oversee them, and even to try to find out what they mean, which is why, a year ago (that's right, three years after the plan was announced), a gaggle of senior government officials was formed into something called the Central Ontario Lakeshore Urban Complex Task Force.

And this task force, not to put too fine a point on it, has concluded that the Toronto Centred Region concept really doesn't mean anything. Its major recommendation is that the government either adopt the TCR as policy and make the hard decisions necessary to implement it, or adopt some other plan, because there ain't no plan now.

Of course, being composed of civil servants, the task force doesn't put it quite so bluntly. The "basic policy" of the TCR, it declares, "remains." It's just that, apart from the new town project of North Pickering (which was really just prompted by a federal decision to build the airport there), there is no visible evidence of it.

Moreover, there have been a number of government undertakings since 1970 which are "not supportive" of the TCR concept — which is a nice bureaucratic way of saying the government ministries have acted as if they never heard of the TCR. The ministry of transportation, for example, has extended the GO commuter service to Georgetown in the northwest, where growth is not supposed to be encouraged. A major pipeline has been announced for getting water from Lake Ontario to North York to service a target population far above what the TCR plan said was desirable.

In 1970, housing starts in Mississauga to the west of Toronto outnumbered starts in the Oshawa area to the east by four to one; last year, partly as a result of incentive programs from the ministry of housing, the ratio was eight to one. It should be the other way around.

Nothing daunted, the task force addressed itself to the problem of turning the TCR concept into a meaningful plan, and came up with a scheme of five major cities and 18 sub-centres for the area in question, all inter-related according to functions, roles, population, levels, employment requirements, and so on.

It hardly seems worth going into detail, however, because as the task force itself said, it all requires a "high degree of political commitment, determination and consistency." Megalopolis, here we come.

Too Many MPs

Much has been already said and written about the proposed MP's salary increases of 50 per cent and the revised edition of 33⅓ per cent of just around that "limit."

Outrageous as this may appear, it is not as outrageous as the proposal of increasing the number of MPs from the present 264 to 285: the extra "representatives of the people" mean, of course, extra salaries, extra staff, extra fringe benefits which are naturally the unique responsibility of Canadian taxpayers.

Now, does a country of a little over 22 million people need so much government when, in fact, the presence of 20 MPs is considered enough to pass a bill in the House of Commons?

In the last hours of the session, just before the long holiday period, only 17 MPs were present in the house, according to press reports from Ottawa.

If the government is serious about fighting inflation why not begin "right at home?" One hundred and fifty MPs, a dozen cabinet ministers and about 50 senators will be more than enough to manage very efficiently, promptly, economically the "nation's business." — E. J. Lattes, Victoria.

Gun Controls

"Sportsman" Robinson (Dec. 30) is wrong — we do need much tighter gun laws. Firearms should at least be registered, something that has not happened as yet in B.C. A phone call to Sears will still order a rifle or shotgun COD, from a selection of four pages in each store's catalogue. This is too lax, even if you must state in writing that your age is greater than 17 years.

In Switzerland, all firearms are registered, both civilian and military arms, no less!

Further restriction on the use of firearms will help the serious gun collector, who may lose valuable guns in a break-in. Greater attention is needed to more stringent sentencing of those caught in possession of unregistered guns, but to do that we need to register all firearms.

Half of all violent deaths in the U.S. (and almost as many in Canada) are caused by guns, as well as most suicides by men.

We urgently require more gun controls — too many children are dying from careless firearm availability and full-size rifles are being used in robberies and other acts of violence. The only answer is to arm people with the knowledge that, by sensible registration of guns, even criminals and fools will have to work harder to obtain their weapons. — John H. Newcomb, 202 - 1122 McKenzie Street.

Bad Habits

The influence of history on society is not so far out in youth-oriented North America when advice from Europe, is being followed to a doubtful conclusion. An ex-MP, Douglas Fisher, says that Mitchell Sharp's statement that the 1971 salary increase was "catch-up" was in fact projected ahead. Since 1971 there has been 28 per cent inflation so another projected increase is not due for some time even at today's accelerated rate of inflation.

Official appointments to boards and chairmanships and lip service of so-called opposition parties is less than useless when solutions (instant or otherwise) are impossible against intentional obstacles and what could be the bigger obstacle than preaching restraint and practicing extreme indulgence of the 50 per cent salary grab proposal which is about the biggest stimulant to inflation possible? The new formula is even more of a farce and will just foster more resentment. Inflation has become a bad habit in which overindulgence has brought dangerous confrontations. Surely it is folly to stimulate these conditions with a salary grab by those we look up to as a good example. There is evidence that commendable and intelligent efforts were made in Ottawa to lick inflation but were negated by powerful and selfish groups. We can only hope that the tea tax mentality of Europe will not prevail but in the final analysis Canada will make its own destiny. — R. S. Jones, Victoria.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of January 6, 1915

The Civic Retrenchment Association this morning opened an office at the corner of Pandora and Broad as a means of supplying information on civic affairs and as a centre for organization. Mayoralty and aldermanic candidates in municipal elections have had the location in previous years. The CRA is endeavoring to impress upon governing bodies the urgent necessity for strict economy in all services. While it has agreed not to field candidates in the upcoming municipal elections, the association will support independent candidates if city council doesn't agree to its proposal on salaries — that aldermen forgo theirs entirely and the mayor cut his by 50 per cent.

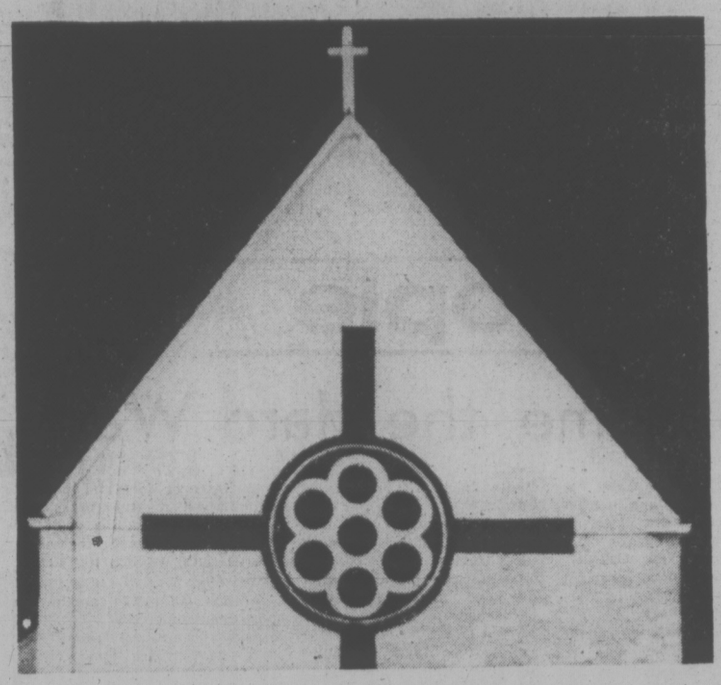
FAITH IN MATERIAL PROGRESS WANES

The Future of Religion in a Troubled World

By FRANZ KONIG

(Cardinal Konig is Roman Catholic Archbishop of Vienna. This article is excerpted from a recent speech at the University of Chicago.)



There are times in which the present is taken as a matter of course, times in which the present seems a safe and secure shelter from which no one feels prompted to question the future. This is not merely the case during times of outward security, when life runs calmly and smoothly. Even during periods of extreme oppression, great misery and dreadful atrocities people accepted their fate as something inescapable, as a trial or punishment imposed by God.

The future seemed as undivinably dependent on God's decree as was the present. People living in such times would consider it absurd to do much worrying about future possibilities. One might go so far as to say that at times of great material, political and personal insecurity people were far too busy trying to survive and mastering the present to do much speculating on the future.

Today things seem to be different. The future is everywhere under discussion. We have even seen the advent of a new science, futurology, specifically occupying itself with problems of what is to come. The reasons for this development may be varied. In Western Europe and the United States it may well derive from a surfeit with the present, from a feeling of malaise spreading in a society of plenty, perhaps also from our bad conscience in the midst of all this prosperity.

Anxiety Increasing

But anxiety about the future is simultaneously on the increase and preoccupies ever more people. The faith in material progress, as hitherto unreservedly propagated by science and technology, has grown problematical, so that at present many have come to look upon the future with deepening concern. It is not only the faith in progress which is at stake, but the very future of mankind which seems threatened.

In a somewhat different manner, the intellectual development and future behavior of man are subjects of interest also to the sociologist, the philosopher and the historian. The various branches of the so-called humanities have one thing in common: They all base their studies on "rebus sic stantibus" and on recognizable trends. That is, they begin with things as they are and assume that present tendencies permit conclusions as to the future behavior of people.

Now while the starting point rebus sic stantibus, or presently recognizable trends, form the only realistic basis of such study, they at the same time consitiute its weakest link. For the most minute change in the intellectual or material climate — scientifically hardly perceptible, and neither predictable nor explainable — can suffice to overthrow all calculation of the future. We have only recently had a small demonstration of this. The very first effects of the oil crisis showed all the various predictions about a new petrochemical age to have been illusional.

This simply means that all human endeavor is beset by risk. Freedom risks its own abuse, thinking risks error, speech risks misunderstanding, faith risks failure, hope risks despair. The risk of life is death. And man is man only by virtue of his assumption of the risks of the future. In thus considering man's future, the course our history will follow, one is bound to give some thought also to the future of religion.

All discussion and speculation on the question of religion having a future takes place against a background of opposing views.

There is first of all the view which holds that religion is a necessary attribute of man. As much a part of him as are his abilities to walk upright, to speak, to think; our capacity for some form of religious feeling, our faculty of faith, directly reflects humanity as such, man being man only by virtue of his religiosity and belief.

Others, however, maintain — with less reference to history — that religion is nothing but an attendant symptom of a certain phase of human development, of the so-called pre-scientific phase, and that it is simply an attempt to explain those spheres which science has not yet penetrated or explored.

For years there has been talk of secularization as a working hypothesis to support the view according to which religious belief is only an epiphenomenon of a transient phase of human development, bound slowly to pine away. Society, it is held, is today no longer or, at least, not as much determined by religion as used to be the case in past centuries. Those who hold this view find supporting evidence in a decrease of various religious practices.

With statistics one may, however, prove anything and everything — including the contrary. And sociology, it seems, is a perfect solvent. The inroads made by sociology into the sphere of theology have produced but a new variety of the old belief in miracles: the naive belief in the infallibility of questionnaires, of representative surveys and of analyses of cross-sections of public opinion. This encroachment of a sociology not inhibited by any awareness of its limitations has thus had deplorable effects.

It is surely wrong to assume that all people had at all times and with equal intensity believed all those tenets which were properly considered to form part of the faith. Religious belief was at all times pervaded also by half and quarter belief, by convictions and doubts, by wishful thinking, superstition and disbelief. The most honest statement someone can make about his belief is the one found in the Gospels: "Lord, I wish to believe. Help my unbelief."

The ability to believe, the will to believe, is such a fundamental need — and the study of contemporary man bears this out — that it will find expression in one form or another. Those unable to find their way to traditional religious faith will seek an outlet in occultism, clairvoyance, parapsychology or astrology, right down to the various forms of primitive superstition.

Christianity Unique

We are all familiar with the concept of Christianity-without-religion. The representatives of this peculiar school wanted to try to assure the survival of the substance of Christianity in a period of general religious decay. Now, Christianity is surely not a religion like any other. The unique thing about it is its message of a direct intervention of God in the world and in the history of mankind, of Christ as the Son of God entering human history and continuing to affect it by the operation of the Holy Spirit.

This fundamentally distinguishes Christianity from other religions. And yet Christianity simultaneously remains a religion with a cult, miracles, apparations, commandments, standards, sin, guilt and atonement.

The various forms of human expression used in Christianity will partly match those found in other religions, human nature being the same everywhere. But to reject all forms of expression or cult which Christianity shares with or in which it resembles other religions, and to retain from the Gospels nothing but the spirit of love, to give a purely historical interpretation of all the concrete teachings and instructions of Jesus, or to reject them as an unreasonable interference with personal freedom — by following such a course we would be constructing our own private Christianity and acting with as little balance as are those who insist on using the Gospels as some literal "prescription for use," while continuing heedless and ignorant of their spirit.

Search Elsewhere

Do we see a future for religion? I wish to repeat that this question is less a matter for scientific argumentation than of fatih, faith not only in God, but also in man. As long as we believe in man as being capable of self-analysis, as being unable ever to stop wondering about his origins, his destination and the purpose of his life, so long must we also believe that he will try by all means to find an answer to these questions. If the Church is unable to provide an answer, he will search elsewhere.

The concept of God being dead derives from Nietzsche. It is a notion filled with sorrow, hopelessness and despair. Lately there has no longer been much mention of this "God-is-dead theology." It constituted a desperate attempt to save faith without religion, without God, without a church. But we need to save neither God nor faith. Perhaps our ears, lips and eyes are sealed, and God knows what this purposes.

But God also knows that He can touch our ears, so that we might again hear Him; that He can unlock our lips, so that we might again profess Him, and our eyes, so that we might again be able to see Him; see Him in our brothers, who are His brothers; so that we might again be strengthened in our faith, our hope, our charity. This remains valid for the present state as well as the future prospects of religion and especially Christianity.

IT'S UP TO U.S. TO KEEP HANDS OFF

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

Office furniture, desks, chairs, filing cabinets built by Canadian workers in a Metropolitan Toronto factory — and they cannot be sold to Cuba because the people who employ the Canadian workers are Americans subject to an American law which says there can be no trade with Cuba unless the American government permits it.

How to recruit supporters for the Canadian nationalist cause? Ask Washington.

In the big picture of Canada's export trade, a $500,000 contract for office furniture is not very important. In the matter of principle over who's in charge in the sovereign state of Canada, it is vitally important. It is a principle which for too long has been left in mist and murk and is in need of unequivocal affirmation: in Canada, Canadian laws and the Canadian government are in charge.

Only they are not. Cole Division of Litton Business Equipment Ltd., manufacturer of the furniture, has all Americans on its board of directors and is a wholly owned subsidiary of Litton Industries Inc. of California. Under the Cuban Assets Control Regulations of the United States Trading with the Enemy Act, the directors could go to jail if the sale is made without U.S. government approval. A U.S. government official has confirmed, cautiously, that approval "would probably be denied".

That has happened about half a dozen times in the past 15 years — where Canadian export sales have been blocked by the extraterritorial application of a U.S. law. Since foreign parent companies control 60 per cent of Canadian manufacturing (and almost 100 per cent of some industries), it means that most of our secondary industry is managed by people who do not necessarily put primary emphasis on the Canadian national interest.

There have been, to be sure, other cases where the Canadian government has successfully used suasion, consultation and fetching diplomacy to talk the American government into granting approval of a sale. But what does that do? It means that the government of Canada has had to ask the government of the United States to, this time, please, permit the sale of Canadian workers' produce. That does not resolve the problem. Some Canadian subsidiaries have got around the U.S. law by having only Canadians or a majority of Canadians on their boards of directors. That is nice, and to be encouraged, but that does not resolve the problem, either.

Trade and Commerce Minister Alistair Gillespie promised in March that he would introduce regulations that would, as it was said, "reduce" the problem. It is questionable if the government can successfully act unilaterally; in any event there does not seem to have been any action at all.

It is the American government that is wrong. It should keep its fingers out of Canadian affairs. And it would be the act of a friend if it promised to do so.

Love Affair on a Train

By HARRY BRUCE

I board the Ocean Limited a few blocks from my house in Halifax and a few feet from salt water and, after a minute or two, there's a little tug on the train, but it is so gentle I have to look out the window to know we are moving and then, quite suddenly, we are pounding through a forest and onward, ever onward, into the country of Canada.

A girl of about 22 sits down beside me in the lounge car. She's wearing muddy rubber boots, jeans, a khaki workman's shirt. She's got brown eyes, short dark hair, clear white skin, a packsack full of apples and cheese.

Her smile is sweet and shy as a fawn, but there is something in her manner, just a suspicion of confidence and physical competence, and this makes me think that if I offer to buy her a beer she will not run away.

So we drink our ale, eat her lunch, nibble CNR pretzels, and talk a bit, and now the forest turns into blazing white fields of winter, and back into black forest again; and the valleys, and brooks, and towns and backyards of east-coast Canada hurtle past our window and into our rippling wake, and on we go.

She was born in Toronto. She knows streets in Toronto that I knew inside out long before she could even read. But for two years now, she and her husband have lived in a valley in Prince Edward Island. The valley is obscure but I can honestly tell her that I was there once myself.

They grow food. They are a couple of kids from the steamy innards of Toronto, and now they gow vegetables and strawberries in backwoods P.E.I.; and their neighbors, people whose island roots disappear in the red soil of a century or two, come round to their door and actually buy enough stuff to make sure these untypical young hogtown expatriatres stay among them.

She and her husband have learned more about farming in two years than they once thought they could ever learn about anything: and they are not sure life can offer anything sweeter than a steady improvement in their skill at the job they are choosing to do right now.

And while she talks, the train plunges out of Nova Scotia into new Brunswick. It tears across the Tantramar Plains — those strange, fragrant, flatlands of mud, marsh and mystery — and pauses at one of the better stations of my life.

Sackville, N.B., Mount Allison University. I was here in 1953, 1954, 1955. I can see the roof of the men's residence back there on the Uptown Hill, and the station platform has not changed much in twenty years. It still says, "Home for Christmas."

★ ★ ★

The train pushes on, up the old, old route to the Canadas. Yes, she says, they keep a few hens, and a neighbor's dying horse. Maybe they'll try breeding lambs, and meanwhile, her husband is driving a truckload of fresh oysters up to a banquet in Toronto. She hopes the oysters don't freeze en route, and I hope so, too.

An older woman joins us. She's from Cape Breton, but now, she too calls Prince Edward Island her home. She reminds me that, although the Ocean Limited may not be the Orient Express, it is a strange train nevertheless.

You see, as it turns out, one of this older woman's brothers taught me English at Mt. Allison and another brother of hers was a newspaper publisher, and he knew my late father. And her son is a Toronto newspaperman now, and he knows men my father knew, and others that I still know myself.

★ ★ ★

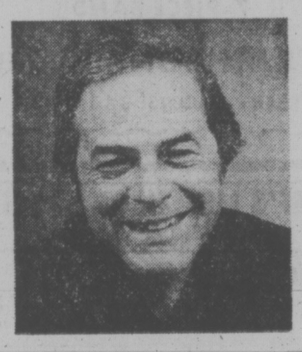
The train rattles through the Siberian wastes of northern new Brunswick; and on through the neon, slumber and snow of the mountainside, riverside, midnight towns of Quebec; and still further, right through the gray dawn and hundreds upon hundreds of the great, long, skinny, ancient fields of the eastern townships.

And twenty-two hours out of Halifax, the Ocean Limited releases me to the bright, blowing flow of a sunny, rush-hour in downtown Montreal. There's pale snow flying like radiant and immaculate dust in the cold, golden air of the urban morning, and the city is brimful of terrific, cheerful energy.

I taste it for 115 minutes, and board a second train. This one trundles up the Ottawa Valley for a while, and I get off at Ottawa. Ottawa is the city in which men like Jack Pickersgill suggest that, even if the trains never run again, Canadians will not give a damn.

One trouble with Ottawa is that its most powerful men spend so much time in the air they lose their feeling for the country. On airplanes, people simply haven't the time to fall in love. Not even with Canada.

'I'm sure.'



"What I thought I needed two years ago is not really enough now, because of inflation. An Investors Registered Retirement Savings Plan is exactly what I wanted. It's right for me."

Jack Hartman

Jack Hartman is semi-retired, married with three children in university. Jack is a client of Investors for 5 very good reasons:

Reason #1: With hundreds of ways to organize an RRSP, a trained Investors representative will meet with you in your home and help plan what's best for you. He brings sound knowledge, good services and objective advice.

Reason #2: Investors know how the new wrinkles in the Government budget affect you. The budget brought down in November 1974, made a lot of changes to your personal taxes. These changes can have a great effect not only on tax savings now, but on how much income you will have at retirement.

Reason #3: Investors have safe, flexible investments. Investors is the largest company of its type in Canada with over 500,000 clients. Investors provide each client with a variety of options: guaranteed investment contracts, a mortgage fund and a common stock based mutual fund. Each can form the basis of an RRSP or in combination can be used to form a total financial program.

Reason #4: Investors makes it easier to purchase and simplify tax reporting. There are two basic ways you can start your RRSP program at Investors. A single deposit once a year or a systematic monthly instalment plan. You receive one form at tax time which records all of your tax exempt purchases in the current year.

Reason #5: Investors can provide the financial planning services usually associated with Banks, Stockbrokers, Trust Companies and Insurance Companies. We can help you organize a total financial program.

Spend your time before you spend your money.

PWA Denies Overbooking

A Pacific Western Airlines in-house investigation has concluded that complaints by a Victoria realtor that the airline is over-booking flights are unfounded.

The investigation was demanded by Eric Charman after an incident at the PWA ticket counter at Victoria International Airport on Nov. 2.

Charman said reservations he had made for himself and his wife on PWA flight 113 were not upheld and they arrived only to find the plane was full.

Charman then chartered a plane to Vancouver for $80 and requested that PWA refund the money.

D. R. Jacox, PWA's administrative vice-president in Vancouver, said the findings of the investigation indicated Charman had not arrived at the check-in counter 10 minutes before the flight departure, a cutoff time on reservations practised industry-wide.

Reservations for passengers, said Jacox, are forfeited at that time and empty seats are allocated to standby passengers.

Jacox said PWA will refund the $61.30 Charman had spent on the airline tickets but the company is "unable to assume any further liability."

The offer leaves Charman $18.70 short of the $80 spent on the charter flight.

Charman maintains, however, that he arrived in plenty of time to check in for his flight, but was confronted by a long lineup which included ticketed and non-ticketed passengers.

He says he had been standing in the line for about 20 minutes, during which the cutoff time for passengers with reservations came and went.

'ARCHIE' CREATOR DIES

MEREDITH NECK, N.H. (UPI) — Bob Montana, creator of the "Archie" comic strip, died of an apparent heart attack Saturday while skiing near his home. He was 54.

"Archie" appeared in 1942 when Montana was working his way through art school at the MLJ Comic House. The strip was an immediate success and thereafter MLJ Comics was known as "Archie Comics".

Montana lived most of his life in New Hampshire and drew heavily from his experiences as a youth in Manchester for material in "Archie."

Dental Patient Halts Robbers

MIAMI (AP) — A pair of bandits who robbed a dentist's office were apprehended when a patient in the office grabbed a gun and chased the men down the street into the path of an off-duty policeman, authorities said. The pair managed to get into their getaway car and start off.

The bandits, fleeing with $4,000 in cash and jewelry they had stolen, crashed the car into a parked vehicle Friday when they were caught in a cross fire between the off-duty policeman and the patient, officials said.

"First, I thought something had touched my ear," said Harry Cark, 49, who was sitting in the dentist's chair when the robbers barged in. "Then the guy said, 'Look at me again, and I'll kill you'."

Authorities said the bandits robbed Dr. C. C. Ray and Clark and then forced the two men and Clark's wife and two children into a closet.

Clark said after the men left the office he ran to his car and got a .25-calibre revolver and ran after the bandits firing his pistol.

"I didn't do it to be a hero," Clark said of his chase. "The reason I went after them is that I wanted my money back."

Off-duty policeman Vernon Hetherington heard the shots and pursued the robbers also firing his pistol as they fled in their auto.

Police said the driver lost control and crashed into another car after one of the policeman's shots grazed his arm.

Arrested and charged with armed robbery and possession of a firearm were Larry Milton, 19, and Steve Johnson, 21, both of Miami.

Johnson, who was in stable condition Saturday at Jackson Memorial Hospital, was also charged with assault to commit murder.

To Nome, the Hard Way

NEW ORLEANS, La. — A Minnesota man plans to travel the length of the Mississippi River the hard way — upstream from New Orleans, then continue north through Canada for a 9,000-mile journey to Nome, Alaska.

Jerry Pushcar, 25, of Biwabik, plans to launch his 17-foot, 78-pound wooden canoe on the Gulf of Mexico about 100 miles below New Orleans.

Pushcar, who says the project will take "about three years", plans to be in Minnesota by late May, then travel across Lake Superior, through Rainy Lake and Lake of The Woods.

"I expect to camp the first winter in the Lake Athabaska region of Canada and in Alaska the second winter. The route will be through Great Bear and Great Slave Lakes, up the Mackenzie River, across the mountains to the Tulon and then to Nome."

He said he would either travel alone or with his dog.

"The purpose of the trip, upstream, is the trip itself, and to see the country," Pushcar said. "I plan to keep a diary but have no other projects for the journey."

FREDERICTON — Mary E. Grannan, an author, broadcaster and storyteller whose characters became familiar to children throughout Canada for a quarter of a century, died at her home Friday. She was 73.

Miss Grannan was best known for her "Just Mary" story series, published and broadcast by the CBC after she joined the corporation in 1939. She played the Just Mary character and also the well-known Maggie Muggins in another series of the day.

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Tiny Jolene Rene Lange, the only survivor of sextuplets, managed to get her weight up to two pounds, 3¼ ounces by Sunday — the four-week anniversary of her birth.

"Her father was in for a few minutes to hold her," said a nursing supervisor at Valley Medical Centre.

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Publisher Malcolm Forbes is still determined to do what no man has ever done and lived to tell about it — fly a balloon 7,000 miles across the continent and the Atlantic Ocean. He is just waiting for the right winds.

Forbes had to call another postponement, the fourth, Sunday because of unfavorable winds. He tentatively rescheduled the attempt for Tuesday morning.

Twelve attempts have been made to cross the Atlantic by balloon but none has succeeded and seven persons have died in the previous attempts.

MOSCOW — Sergei Arkhipov offers all of the best known varieties of American apples from a single tree in his garden near Leningrad, according to the Tass News Agency. He grafted 15 cuttings onto one tree and all are bearing fruit, Tass reports.

Inflation In The Pen

LONDON (UPI) — As a result of inflation prisoners of Britain's penitentiaries have been given a pay raise.

The Home Office announced Friday an eight per cent pay raise for prisoners, bringing average earnings to $1.59 per week.

"From their earnings, the prisoners are able to buy a limited range of confectionery, fruit, toilet articles and tobacco, the prices of which have been increasing," the announcement said.

Prisoners' earnings vary according to the prison and work they do with maximum earnings going as high as $4.48 a week.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An 18-year-old girl caught trying to pass some marijuana to an inmate at Wilkinson road jail was fined $100 in Victoria provincial court Saturday.

Lori Kathleen Baker of 3443 Whittier pleaded guilty before Judge Edmond St. Jorre to possession of the drug.

Police said the accused visited a friend in the jail at 1:45 p.m. New Year's Eve and as she was about to leave placed a package of cigarettes on the table.

Her friend took the package but a guard saw him and confiscated it. A "green leafy substance" was found inside, crown counsel said.

★ ★ ★

St. Jorre set bail at $750 with one or two sureties for Robert Walton, 28, charged with assault causing bodily harm laid following an incident in the city Dec. 22.

Walton was remanded to Friday for plea.

★ ★ ★

Frederick Chabon, 48, of 1442 Fort, was sentenced to six months in jail followed by one year probation for punching a doctor in the face.

Judge Harold Alder imposed the sentence upon Chabon who was found guilty of common assault Dec. 12.

Police said Chabon entered the offices of Dr. Diane Grant and Dr. Alex Cumming, demanded to see the latter and became belligerent when told the doctor was on holidays. Dr. Grant came out and told Chabon to leave whereupon he struck her on the rignt cheek below the eye.

CHINA, EEC LINKED

PEKING (CP) — The Chinese government would like to establish "some kind of permanent contact" with the European Economic Community (EEC), Foreign Minister Max Van der Stoel of the Netherlands told a news conference here today.

Giving his impressions of a visit to China, he said the Chinese leaders had "an extremely positive attitude" to the European community, but still had to decide on the nature and procedure for any future relations.

St. Pierre-Miquelon Civil Servants Strike

ST. PIERRE (CP) — Civil servants in the French islands of St. Pierre-Miquelon off Newfoundland's south coast went on strike at midnight Sunday night to back wage demands and one of the territory's influental politicians supported them.

Spokesmen for the unions representing the more than 300 civil servants said Gov. Jean Cluchard was ignoring directives from Paris in his handling of the wage dispute which began with a 24-hour walkout a week ago.

The civil servants, who say they have not had a wage increase in four years, are paid by the French government.

Senator Albert Pen, who represents the territory in the French parliament and who also is mayor of this island capital of 5,000 said he supports the strikers.

George Poulet, who heads the economic and social council for St. Pierre, a government agency, said he would make representations to the French minister for overseas territories on behalf of the strikers.

Gov. Clouchard told the unions earlier that any wage increase would have to be financed by the general council, the local governing body of the islands.

Council spokesmen said this would mean an increase in taxes.

The unions decided Sunday night they would not agree to placing the financial burden on the general council and instead demanded that the French government provide the extra money.

The stock market at Toronto continued its recent rally with prices gaining moderately in light mid-afternoon trading.

B.C. Packers B rose 1⅜ to $19⅞, Southam A ¾ to $24¼, Stelco A ⅝ to $27½, Algoma Steel ½ to $25¾ and Dofasco ½ to $23¼.

Noranda A fell ½ to $28¾, MacMillan Bloedel ¼ to $22 and Inco A ¼ to $21⅝.

Quebec Sturgeon lost ½ to $4.80, Gilbraltar 40 cents to $4 and Camflo ⅝ to $11⅝. Rio Algom gained ¼ to $19¼ and Hudson Bay Mining A ¼ to $14.

PanCanadian Pete was up ⅝ to $8½ and Ranger ¼ to $14¾. Numac dropped ¼ to $9¼.

New York

Wall Street staged another broad advance with a lift from the Federal Reserve's reduction of its discount rate.

After Friday's close, the Fed announced a half-point reduction, to 7¼ per cent, in the key rate it charges on loans to member commercial banks.

The Dow responded Monday with a climb of more than 7 points in the first half hour of trading.

Prices then settled back at mid-day in profit-taking, but gained some new upward impetus later when a small St. Louis bank cut its prime lending rate to 10 from 10½ per cent.

Gold stocks retreated on indications of an unenthusiastic response to the government's auction of 2 million ounces of the metal. ASA Ltd., was down 1½ to 64½;

Guiana Leaders Jailed As Nation Under Siege

Manchester Guardian

PARIS — The French government has arrested most of the main opposition leaders in the South American territory of French Guiana and is preparing to put them on trial for subversion in an effort to stamp out growing unrest in its largest overseas possession.

Fight opposition figures, including teachers, journalists, a lawyer and a doctor, were flown 4,000 miles across the Atlantic to Paris last week and put in the Sante Prison here in the French tradition of transporting opponents in the colonies to France for "security reasons."

The government says the eight were planning attacks in the Guianese capital Cayenne, on Christmas Eve, and claims to have seized arms, ammunition and documentary proof.

Cayenne is reported to be in a virtual state of seige, with riot police brought in from the island territory of Guadeloupe in the Caribbean 1,200 miles northwest of Cayenne, and troops of the Foreign Legion patrolling the streets and searching houses. Gatherings of more than five people have been banned.

The French Socialist Party sent an investigative mission to the territory, and the party leader, Francois Mitterrand, who recently visited Cayenne himself, is expected to use their report to criticize President Valery Giscard d-Estaing's government.

The trouble in French Guiana has arisen from a political awakening over the past six months stimulated by a further deterioration of the already serious economic plight of the territory.

With prices 60 per cent higher than in France, massive unemployment and the prospect of a further loss of jobs through a new cutback at the space center at Kourou, 30 miles northwest of Cayenne, by the middle of 1975, the 52,000 inhabitants have begun to protest what they see as centuries of neglect by France.

New political groups and publications appeared last year, and they have provided the backbone for the unrest, which began in September and November with clashes involving police and troops against demonstrators during visits by the French minister for overseas territories, Olivier Stirn.

Stirn has charged that the unrest was "deliberately managed." Leopold Heder, a Socialist member of the French Senate and, as mayor of Cayenne, French Guiana's most prominent political figure, has likened the present tension to the situation in Algeria before it became independent.

Bart the Beaver arrives at new home

BEAVER DISPLACED BUT NOT DISPLEASED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Being forced out of your home in the dead of winter isn't a happy experience but for Bart the Beaver the story did have a happy ending.

Bart, a 30-pound beaver fell victim two weeks ago to Manitoba Hydro's Nelson River Diversion Project at Jenpeg, 500 miles north of here.

High water on the Nelson apparently washed the beaver from his dam and down a turbulent spillway near the Jenpeg construction site. He tumbled 15 feet into rough water, bobbed to the surface and climbed on an ice pack, said Murray Bond, a Hydro construction inspector who witnessed the oreal.

"He was thoroughly stunned by the fall. But he looked rather pleased that he was still alive."

Realizing Bart was "down on his luck," Bond and several construction workers decided to try to help. They erected a make shift shelter with logs and other materials but Bart refused to leave his ice pack.

"He'd come ashore periodically to look for food," said Bond in a telephone interview.

"But most of the poplar trees (a beaver's main diet) had been torn out during construction."

The beaver refused to eat the cabbage and carrots put out for him so the workers cut down some poplars from another area and brought them to Bart.

Earlier this week, Bart decided he had had enough of conditions on the ice pack. He moved into the general construction area and didn't seem to mind when a worker locked him in a heated shack.

Eventually contact was made with Assiniboine Park Zoo officials who said they would be pleased to take in a homeless beaver, especially if it was a female.

"We really didn't know whether it was a male or female," said Bond.

"Nobody was brave enough to pick him up to find out."

ASTON MARTIN BUYER RUMORED

LONDON (AP) — Aston Martin Lagonda, Ltd., is "more hopeful" about finding a buyer or some other financial support for its prestige car business, managing director Charles Warden said today.

Warden said a U.S. businessman, whom he refused to identify, had shown "firm interest" in Aston Martin. There also were reports that Guest Keen and Nettlefolds, Ltd., might bid for Aston Martin. A spokesman for GKN wouldn't comment on the rumors. GKN is a major supplier of components to the British car industry.

Other potential bidders for Aston Martin, which went into voluntary liquidation Dec. 30, include a group of Aston Martin dealers and an unidentified investment group.

Liquor Funds for Hungry Parksville Man's Crusade

PARKSVILLE — One man here is trying to convince the provincial and federal governments to give up a full day's profit from liquor stores and beer parlors.

Michael O'Hara wants the money to buy food for "desperately starving men, women and children" in the Third World and particularly Bangladesh.

He proposes the food be transported by armed forces aircraft and that forces personnel distribute the food.

Project Third World Victim is the name of his program about which he talked to government officials and addressed student groups.

O'Hara says his project will give adults a chance to help starving people across the world.

In B.C. he has received replies from letters to Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich, Liberal Leader David Anderson, and Premier Barrett's executive assistant.

MLA Robert Skelly has offered to bring the matter to the attention of the legilsature.

THEY BOUGHT UP THE TOWN

HILAND, Wyo. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Bob Steelman stopped to buy a pack of cigarettes one day last September and wound up buying the whole town.

"We did it on the spur of the moment and I still wonder why I'm here," said Mrs. Steelman, who wouldn't say how much she and her husband paid for the town 60 miles west of Casper. "It all happened so fast. I am still staggered by it."

Since Mrs. Betty Evenson sold Hiland the population has shot up from one to six. But the sign on the edge of town still puts the population at 10.

"I guess they don't have any signs that say any less than 'population 10' anywhere in the state," said Mrs. Steelman, who lives in Hiland with her husband, three children and a few grandchildren who drop in from time to time.

"I love it," she said. "We've got a post office, bus station, store, service station, motel and a bar."

The Steelmans plan to make their town into a stopover for hunters and perhaps a summer vacation spot.

"I doubt this will become any sort of vacation mecca for mid-Wyoming," Mrs. Steelman said of her snowy little town. "It won't be the kind of place where a girl would want to spend her honeymoon, especially in the winter, but it might be the rage in July."

The family moved into the town from Arminto, eight miles away. Former owner Mrs. Evenson now lives in Casper, writing her memoirs of the 50 years she spent running the town her father founded a half-century ago. She said she never got lonely, but it was getting a little hard to keep the place up.

Although Hiland's sale price was not revealed, everyone seemed satisfied. Mrs. Steelman said she got a pretty good buy, and Mrs. Evenson felt so good about the deal that she threw in the recipe for her widely acclaimed ham sandwiches.

3 Dairymen Apply

Only three B.C. dairy farmers have applied to lease a 150-acre farm at Ladysmith bought by the provincial government a few months ago.

"We thought there would be more interest since it is the first time the government will lease such a farm and it is the only one available," agriculture department property management administrator Norman Smith said.

All three applicants now operate dairy farms which are too small for desired expansion, he added.

Agnew Now Mine Money-Raiser

HENDERSON, Ky. (WP) — Former U. S. vice-president Spiro T. Agnew and his new business associate have bought an operating coal mine in Oklahoma, are about to close a deal on another in Kentucky and are considering purchase of 14 others in three Appalachian states, the associate says.

Walter J. Dilbeck Jr., the 56-year-old land developer who has hired Agnew at a reported salary of $100,000 a year to drum up foreign capital for Dilbeck ventures, said foreign investment money "not from the Mideast" is behind all the coal mine deals.

Another individual involved, Lester Burns, a lawyer and one-third owner of the Somerset, Ky., mine the Agnew-Dilbeck combine is about to buy, said in a separate telephone interview he was told by Dilbeck and Agnew they were functioning as "middlemen for Japanese interests" on purchase of the 16,000-acre mine tract for "several millions of dollars."

Burns said he is working as a representative for Dilbeck and Agnew in the prospective purchase of the other mines in Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee, at a time oil shortages are increasing demands for alternate domestic energy sources.

Burns said he has been told Agnew will leave for Asia on Jan. 12, presumably to try to raise more capital for the mine purchases. The former vice-president is to be gone 12 days, Burns said, and on return is expected in Somerset with Dilbeck to complete that deal.

Dilbeck, interviewed at his race-horse and cattle ranch in Henderson and at his lawyer's office in Evansville, Ind., just across the Ohio River, said ranking state officials from Tennessee were coming to Henderson to discuss with him expansion of coal-mining in their state.

Burns said it is his understanding that Dilbeck and Agnew are relying on "Far East, Middle East and Near East oil monies and Japanese industrialists" to finance all these ventures. Dilbeck said the Lake Barkley deal "definitely" will be completed soon, but he declined to confirm reports that a Kuwait investment firm lined up by Agnew on a Mideast trip last summer will provide the bulk of the capital with oil money.

Dilbeck said he saw no conflict as an American businessman in having Arab oil money behind a real estate organization that is moving heavily into the business of mining coal. All the deals, he said, are in the national interest, because they will create jobs and bring American capital back to the U.S.

Dilbeck confirmed that he had told the Louisville Courier-Journal last month that hiring Agnew "was the best deal I ever made. He's opened up more doors than I need. There's no doubt that our joint venture will make millions. We've alreay made a helluva lot of money." He and Agnew will split $2.5 million in royalty payments over the next five years on the Somerset coal mine deal alone, Dilbeck said then.

GAS SHORTAGE PLAN SOUGHT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is headed for deepening shortages of natural gas and should prepare to allocate the dwindling supplies, a staff report of the Federal Power Commission warns.

The shortages will cause "widespread plant and business shutdowns and local employment and economic problems," the agency's bureau on gas said in calling for preparation of federal relief plans.

Residential users of natural gas, who normally are given preference in obtaining supplies, also may be affected in some, unspecified areas, the bureau said.

Natural gas also is an important ingredient in the manufacture of chemical fertilizer, and a cut would be felt in farm production.

The report was released as President Ford met with Interior Secretary Rogers Morton and energy administrator Frank Zarb to continue drafting energy policies.

The petroleum industry reported last week that domestic drilling for oil and gas rose by 20.4 per cent in 1974, but the FPC study said even that would not reverse the expected shortages.

A private Brookings Institution study, released Friday, concluded that the U.S. could cope adequately with any future cutoff of foreign oil if petroleum imports were trimmed to 20 or 25 per cent from the current 36 per cent of total consumption.

The Brookings study also predicts that the cartel established by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will probably disintegrate by 1978.

Nixon Too Soft Liddy Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy says former president Richard Nixon did not act ruthlessly enough in coping with the scandal and should have destroyed the tape recordings that eventually drove him from office.

In a televised interview Liddy also characterized former White House lawyer John Dean as a "stool pigeon" and former Nixon re-election committee head Jeb Stuart Magruder as "an accomplished, skilful liar."

"I think in all fairness to the man you'd have to put him right up there with Judas Iscariot," Liddy said of Dean, who along with Magruder was a chief prosecution witness in the Watergate cover-up trial.

Liddy said that if he is returned to prison, he would prefer not being sent to the minimum security facility where Dean is held because "I'd rather have an honest bank robber any day in the week" as a cellmate.

Liddy served about 18 months in prison before being released on bond while one of his sentences is appealed. He has been sentenced to six years and eight months to 20 years for his role in Watergate, 18 months for contempt of court and one to three years for his role in the Ellsberg conspiracy case.

Liddy said he identifies with U.S. District Judge John Sirica, the man who imprisoned him and who has presided in most of the Watergate cases, because he "believes that the end justifies the means. He puts that into practice. He does what is necessary."

Liddy said in an interview with Mike Wallace for a CBS 60 Minutes program broadcast Sunday that Nixon was "insufficiently ruthless" in dealing with "these domestic difficulties in which he was engaged."

Liddy said that when the existence of the White House tapes was disclosed, he would have stated publicy that "they are being destroyed; in fact, they have been destroyed."

Liddy refused in the interview, as he has before, to break his silence on what he knows about Watergate. But he described Watergate as a justified intelligence gathering operation.

"If one is engaged in a war, one deploys troops, one seeks to know the capability and the intentions of the enemy and things of that sort. If one is engaged in politics and one deploys his political troops, one seeks to learn the capabilities and intentions of the other side. The opposition. It's like brushing your teeth. It's basic."

Liddy's wife, who participated in the interview at their suburban Oxon Hill, Md., home, described her husband as a hero for keeping silent on Watergate. She said he was "serving his country just as many of the military men have."

'Killer' Wolf Shot by Posse

MANSFIELD, Wash. (AP) — In a scene a little like something out of the old west, a posse has tracked down and killed a wolf throught to have recently killed three head of cattle.

Mansfield rancher Howard Asmussen brought an end to the hunt by ranchers and Douglas County sheriff's deputies Friday when he shot the rare anaimal from a low-flying aircraft.

The chase also included men on hoseback and the help of a Republic, Wash., man who brought tracking dogs to help in the hunt.

Ron Trim, a state game department wildlife agent, said this is thought to be the first confirmed sighting or killing of a wolf in Washington since 1948. Trim did not participate in the hunt.

"This is really a rare occurrence," Trim said.

The animal is thought to have killed three head of cattle on two different farms since mid-December and had been sighted by a rancher and a deputy sheriff at various times.

The hunt got under way Friday morning and the wolf was tracked across an open, snow-covered wheat field when Asmussen got a shot at it from a private plane.

There was some question Saturday whether Asmussen might face legal action.

"Wolves are protected by state law," Trim said. "But as far as ranchers protecting their livestock, that's another question . . . whether any legal procedures will be pursued, I really couldn't say."

The dead animal was described as a 100-to 110-pound black wolf which stood three to four feet high at its shoulder.

Guerrillas, Gov't To Talk in Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA (WP) — In a major shift in policy, the Ethiopian government has recognized for the first time the guerrilla movement fighting for the independence of Ethiopia's northern province of Eritrea and announced that it will open negotiations with its leaders for a "peaceful solution" to the 13-year-old conflict.

In a short statement issued here Sunday morning, the ruling Provisional Military Government said a high-level delegation sent last week to the strife-torn northern provincial capital of Asmara had authorized Eritrean religious leaders and community "to participate in forthcoming peace negotiations between the government and refugees abroad."

In this roundabout manner, the military government both recognized the guerrillas, theretofore dismissed as "bandits," and announced its intention to engage in direct talks with the movement's leaders.

Trio Remanded

Three men arrested in connection with an attempted safecracking at the Royal Canadian Legion in Duncan Thursday have been remanded in custody to March 4 for preliminary hearing.

Ronald Glen Westad, 31, and Larry Lewis Matth-James Norman McPherson, ews, 31, appeared in Duncan provincial court Saturday.

They are jointly charged with breaking and entering and theft.

Bail was denied.

Westad was on a three-day temporary pass from William Head federal prison to attend a Seven Step program in Vancouver. He was serving nine years for a number of breaking and entering charges and was due for release in September.

Seven Step is a program dedicated to helping criminals rehabilitate themselves.

DAVID SHIELDS . . . with Skater-of-Year trophies

David Shields Selected As B.C. Skater-of-Year

David Shields of Victoria is British Columbia's speedskater of the year for 1974.

The 16-year-old member of the Esquimalt Speedskating Club was voted the honor by coaches of the province's six clubs at last week's trials for the Canada Winter Games in February in Lethbridge. He was also one of 10 skaters to make the B.C. team.

Shields won seven championships last year. He took outdoor titles in the B.C. open, B.C. closed and western regionals and captured indoor titles in the Pacific Coast international, B.C. indoor, Northwest international and Alberta indoor.

He was fourth in the Canadian outdoor championships last year in Winnipeg and was the only B.C. speedskater to qualify for the national trials.

In addition, Shields holds 13 records. They include one international mark (1,000 metres), two outdoor and four indoor records at the provincial level, four Alberta indoor marks and two western regional records.

The manager of the Canada Games team is David's father Jim, who coaches David and was the founder of the Esquimalt Club in 1966.

David is scheduled to skate in all five races at the Games, which will be held on an artificial outdoor rink.

Four of the races — 500, 800, 1,000 and 1,500 metres — will be against the clock while the other will be a 1,500-metre mass start.

David will continue preparations for the Games by competing in the Northwest International Meet, Jan. 18 and 19, on the new artificial track at Lethbridge.

Some Found Confidence in Cuba

HAVANA (CP) — A 10-day program of training and competition for 139 Canadian amateur athletes ended Sunday, and the preliminary assessment is that it was well worth the money.

"Our performance is significantly improved and that is the direct result of day-to-day training with the Cubans," Roger Jackson of Ottawa, head of the delegation of eight national teams that arrived here Dec. 27, said in an interview.

The estimated cost of the trip was $75,000, but Jackson cited benefits for the athletes, many of whom will represent Canada at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

He said the competitors and their coaches learned from the Cubans, who are highly ranked in most of the eight team sports — men's and women's volleyball, women's basketball, soccer, water polo, diving, fencing and wrestling.

Also, there were various benefits to individual teams. The divers and soccer players, now confined to indoor training in Canada, worked outdoors in conditions similar to those that will prevail at the time of the Olympics in Montreal.

Officials, athletes and coaches all say the trip helped break the walls of isolation surrounding amateur sport in Canada.

They say they have needed international competition and the experience of travelling and working together as teams.

The trip was sponsored by Game Plan, a national program designed to improve the calibre of Canadian amateur athletes. The organization receives money from the the federal and provincial governments and the Olympic coin and stamp sales program.

Jackson said the Cuban trip changed the attitude of some of the teams.

"They came unsure of themselves and are leaving with some confidence."

Examples of this were found in water polo and men's volleyball — sports in which the Cubans are considered far superior. The water polo team lost several matches, but found that it could give the Cubans decent competition. The men's volleyball team actually upset the Cubans late in the 20-day trip.

The athletes stayed at Jibacoa, a beach area about 40 miles east of Havana. The facilities — four-person huts, shared sub-standard washrooms and an outdoor cafeteria — were spartan.

Much of the training was done at Havana's Sport City, a large sports centre of three outdoor pools, several playing fields and a 10,000-seat forum for indoor sports.

Vikings in Front by Four

Now holding a four-point lead in the men's basketball league of the Canada West University Athletic Association, University of Victoria Vikings will return to their home court Tuesday night.

Stretching their margin over the second-place Alberta Golden Bears by sweeping a two-game weekend series in Lethbridge, the Vikings will tackle the University of Regina Cougars in an exhibition game Tuesday in the old gymnasium on the UVic campus.

After barely squeezing past the Lethbridge Pronghorns by a 57-56 count Friday, the Vikings were back in form Saturday and proceeded to clobber the home club 87-55.

Every UVic player figured in the scoring with five making it into double figures as the Vikings completely outplayed the last-place Pronghorns.

Jim Dudderidge, who had 23 points for the Vikings Friday, topped UVic Saturday with 16 points. Evan Jones and Pard Hoegweide each added 13 points with Dale MacDonald contributing 10 after being shut out Friday.

Vikings shot 47 per cent from the field and 72 per cent from the foul line.

Phil Leatham led Lethbridge with 24 points with Roger Baldry adding 12 and Gary Paynton 10.

In exhibition play Saturday, University of British Columbia Thunderbirds trimmed University of Regina Cougars 82-53 at UBC. On Friday the Thunderbirds beat the Cougars 98-62.

At Calgary, the University of Calgary Dinosaurs defeated Brandon University Bobcats 70-56 while at Saskatoon, University of Saskatchewan Huskies rallied to beat University of North Dakota Williston Tetons, 78-73.

Vikettes Move Into Lead With Sweep at Lethbridge

LETHBRIDGE — University of Victoria Vikettes took over sole possession of first place in the Canada West University Athletic Association Women's Basketball League Saturday with a 57-41 decision over University of Lethbridge Pronghorns.

Victory gave the Vikettes a weekend sweep over the Pronghorns and boosted them two points ahead of University of Saskatchewan Huskiettes.

Leading the way for the Vikettes was Lorna McHattie, who popped in 16 points for a weekend total of 27.

Miss McHattie leads the league scoring race with 118 points, one more than the total of Huskiettes' Lorraine Wright and seven ahead of Carol Turney of University of British Columbia Thunderettes.

Edna Ritchie, who hit for 22 points in UVic's 63-45 win Friday, Jan Turner and Jan Nowell each collected seven points Saturday for the Vikettes.

Vikettes had complete control of the game. They led 14-2 early in the contest and stretched the margin to 29-15 at halftime.

Lori Lilja topped the Pronghorns with 15 points and clubmate Jacy Fox added eight.

Vikettes had a 52-14 advantage in rebounds, but committed 39 turnovers to 31 for Lethbridge. Referees called 43 fouls, 19 of them against UVic.

In the second annual University of Saskatchewan women's tournament in Saskatoon, the Manitoba Bisonettes upset the favored Saskatchewan Huskiettes 55-47 in Saturday's final after trailing 25-15 in the early stages.

Regina Cougettes also staged a come-from-behind charge in the consolation final, nipping Saskatoon Queens 60-59 with a dying-seconds basket.

Portland Owner Sued Over Loan

PORTLAND (AP) — The former owner of Portland Storms of the World Football League has been sued by a bank seeking to recover $250,000 in promissory notes, and the Internal Revenue Service announced it would open bids Monday on the Storm's equipment to satisfy a $164,000 tax lien.

Former owner Robert Harris of London, Ont., was named in a suit by the First National Bank of Oregon. Bank officials said they loaned the club $300,000 last summer. The federal court suit charges that only $50,000 has been repaid.

Visitors Shut Out Oak Bay

Olympic Columbians of the B.C. Soccer League shut out Oak Bay of the Vancouver Island Soccer League 6-0 in a premier division exhibition match Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

After a scoreless first half, Columbians erupted in the second half on three goals by Jim Wilkie and singles by Phil Tremter, Rafik Kreidie and George Henderson.

Olympic goaltender Daryl Wallace, who earned the shutout, picked up three stitches on an eyelid when he blocked a shot late in the contest.

Under the leadership of player-coach Bobby Cram, the Columbians are in second place in the B.C. League behind Pegasus while Oak Bay is tied with Vic West for fourth place in the Vancouver Island League.

Soviets Use Errors To Trip Canadians

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coaches of both teams agreed it was defensive errors in the first two periods that cost Canada the world junior hockey championship Sunday.

The Soviet Union scored a 4-3 triumph in the deciding game and all their goals came immediately after errors by Canadian defencemen.

"Canada's defence made many mistakes today," Soviet coach Yuri Morozov said after his team won its second consecutive world junior title. "Our first and second goals were primarily on defensive failures by Canada."

Saskatoon's Jackie McLeod, who shared Canadian coaching duties with Pat Ginnell of Victoria Cougars, agreed.

"We made two glaring defensive errors that cost us goals. I'm talking about the third and fourth goals. The first one we put into the net ourselves, and the second one they scored shorthanded, but it wasn't really anyone's fault. The puck took a bad bounce off the boards and both our defensemen missed it."

"They were tough breaks but we had as many good scoring chances as them but we didn't capitalize."

McLeod, who said he was very pleased with the over-all performance of the team made up of players from the Western Canada Hockey League, said it was again a case of Canada's representatives waiting too long to get going.

"You just can't wait until the last 10 minutes against these guys. We almost pulled it out though," he said, giving much credit to centre Ralph Klassen who won a number of key faceoffs in the final five minutes.

"Face-offs play a key part in the game in the late stages. Danny Arndt got his goal right off the faceoff. We came right back and he got another chance from the faceoff but went for the opposite corner. The Soviet goalie made a tremendous save."

A goal by defenceman Rick LaPointe of Victoria Cougars, just after the final 10-minute session got under way, sparked the Canadians into playing their best hockey. Canada trailed 4-1 with 10 minutes left.

LaPointe's goal made it 4-2 and then Arndt scored to come within one goal of the tie that would have given the Canadians the world title. Most of the 10,551 fans were on their feet for the rest of the game.

Bryan Trottier of Lethbridge, singled out as Canada's most-valuable player, scored the first Canadian goal. Boris Alexandrov fired a pair for the Soviets with Boris Chuchin and Victor Khatulev, the tournament's most-valuable player, adding singles.

Canada took six of the game's 11 penalties and outshot Russia 40-30, primarily because of their third-period revival. The Canadians outshot Russia 17-7 in the third.

Ginnell said he "had a feeling" that Canada was going to win.

"I thought we had it today," he said. "The guys were all up in the dressing room . . . We thought we had all their plays covered but they got a few lucky bounces and just got too far ahead."

Meanwhile, Sweden got a power-play goal midway through the final period to tie Czechoslovakia 2-2 at Brandon and, in the final game of the round-robin tournament, Finland defeated the United States 4-2 in Minneapolis.

In Brandon, defenceman Bjoern Johansson scored at 8:58 of the final period to give Sweden the tie and preserve its hold on third place. Kent Nilsson got the other Swedish goal. Jiri Exl and Peter Stanstny scored for Czechoslovakia.

In Minneapolis, third-period goals by Pertti Jarvenpaa, Tapio Levo and Matti Hagman gave Finland its first win. Kari Makkonen got their other goal.

Don Madson and Mitch Corbin scored for the U.S. The game was marred by 25 penalties, including four match penalties. It ended with two separate fights in the final second of play.

DON (NO-HIT) WILSON DIES OF ASPHYXIATION

HOUSTON (AP) — Autopsy reports were expected today on the bodies of Houston Astros' pitcher Don Wilson and his five-year-old son, Alexander, both found in their carbon monoxide filled home Sunday.

Wilson, 29, preparing to start his 10th season with the National League baseball club, was found in his car in the attached garage of his fashionable home.

Alexander was found in a bedroom above the garage. Mrs. Wilson was listed in fair condition with injuries that included a broken jaw.

The Wilson's nine-year-old daughter, Denise, was in cricical condition and remained in a coma this morning.

Mrs. Wilson phoned the fire department Sunday.

Jack MacGillis of the fire department ambulance service said a woman called saying she could not wake up her children and her husband was in the car.

Mrs. Wilson said she did not know how she suffered the broken jaw.

Authorities said the garage and house were filled with automobile exhaust fumes. However, G. Sheldon Green, assistant Harris County medical examiner, declined to speculate on the cause of death.

Wilson tailed off to an 11-13 record and a 3.07 earned-run average last year, but he pitched two no-hitters in his career and narrowly missed a third last September when manager Preston Gomex pulled him after eight hitless innings.

Bobby Risinger, in charge of Astros' publicity, said he had talked with Wilson several times during the off-season and he was looking forward to the 1975 season and hoping to win 20 games.

Lorry's Work on Tigers Almost Went Unnoticed

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

When a team scores 10 goals, as Victoria Cougars did in defeating medicine Hat Tigers 10-2 Saturday night at Memorial Arena, the natural tendency might be to extol the virtues of the winners' high-powered offence.

But Gord Roberts and Lorry Gloeckner used the Western Canada Hockey League conflict as the time to offer a study in contrasting defensive styles.

Most of the 3,653 fans couldn't help but notice Roberts. The 17-year-old find from Detroit was more obvious than smoke at a fire with his rink-long dashes and play-controlling style.

Gloeckner played it differently. He was hardly noticed by the majority but contributed greatly to the Victoria cause. He cleared loose pucks and parked rival forwards away from the Victoria goal by muscling onrushing forwards quietly into corners.

It wasn't that Roberts ignored his defensive duties. He did that, sure enough, but Gloeckner's unspectacular ways had to be appreciated just as much as Roberts' eye-opening gallops.

Gloeckner had to be appreciated because the final eight-goal spread flattered the Cougars almost as much as it embarrassed the Tigers.

Until Saturday, Medicine Hat was the only team that had not been beaten by the Western Division-leading Cougars. Even after they raced away to a 5-0 lead, the Cougars weren't certain of victory until the final 10 minutes.

Goals by Don Murdoch and Jim Bertram cut Victoria's early lead to 5-2 and only several smart saves by Cougar goalie Bob Leslie prevented Medicine Hat from getting closer.

The Cougars wrapped it up when centre Greg Miazga scored three times and winger Dan Lucas added two—all in the final 10-minute stretch.

But it was the spectacular Roberts who put greatest sock into Victoria's attack.

Roberts, who figured in three goals in a 5-5 tie at new Westminster the previous night, scored a penalty shot goal and added three well-deserved assists Saturday.

The penalty shot was justified, not because of referee Kerry Fraser's interpertation of the way Murdoch hauled down the Cougar but because Roberts had three breakaways in the first half of the game.

Each time Roberts was thwarted from scoring after being hampered from behind.

The penalty shot came after Peter Morris and Don Cairns had staked Cougars to a 2-0, first-period lead. Rick Peter and Al Hill made it 5-0 before Murdoch, the league's leading goal-getter, scored his 42nd goal on a breakaway.

It was Roberts who started the Victoria scoring. He did it with a hit, not a rush. It was his bodycheck in the Medicine Hat zone that forced a Tiger to cough up the puck. Roberts shoved the puck ahead to Jim Gustafson, who, in turn, relayed to Morris.

Then it was Roberts' puck-handling that set up Miazga's first two goals.

But you have to appreciate Gloeckner's effective but pointless night just as much as Roberts' great performance.

The victory carried Cougars 11 points ahead of the Tigers and Kamloops Chiefs, a margin protected Sunday when New Westminster Bruins edged Medicine Hat 5-4.

In other games Sunday, Flin Flon Bombers made it two straight over Calgary by clubbing the Centennials 9-3, Lethbridge Broncos beat Brandon Wheat Kings 5-3 and Winnipeg Clubs upset the Pats 5-3 in Regina.

The Bronco victory moved Lethbridge into second place in the Eastern Division, one point ahead of the Wheat Kings, who play the Cougars here Tuesday and Wednesday.

WINNING FORMULA ELUDES SCORPIONS

SEATTLE — Victoria Scorpions of the Dogwood Inter-City Senior "A" Men's Basketball League couldn't find a winning formula against Seattle Ruth Realty in a pair of exhibition senior "A" games this past weekend.

Sunday the Scorpions bowed 90-82, while on Saturday, they dropped a 117-110 decision to Seattle, which won the 1973 Scorpion tournament by defeating the Scorpions in double overtime.

Bob Burrows topped the Scorpions on Sunday with 28 points with Chris Hall and Gord Hoshal each adding 15.

Tom Black, a seven-footer who played for Seattle SuperSonics a few seasons ago, led Seattle with 19 points.

Burrows was also the top Victoria scorer Saturday when he hit for 42 points. Dave Morgan contributed 30 for the Scorpions with Hoshal adding 17.

Only seven Scorpions made the trip.

South and East Prevail in Bowls

Striking for a touchdown in the dying seconds of the collegiate football game, underdog South snatched a 28-22 victory Sunday over the North in the All-America Bowl at Tampa, Fla.

Tampa quarterback Freddie Solomon hit Florida's Lee McGriff with a 26-yard scoring pass with just 15 seconds remaining to provide the South with its winning margin.

A crowd of 19,246 watched the lead exchange hands several times before the South wrapped up the decision.

Saturday in Honolulu, the East swept to a 34-26 win over the West in the 29th annual Hula Bowl before 22,000 wet fans.

Sparked by Tennessee quarterback Condredge Holloway, the East built up a 26-6 halftime lead and then frustrated Southern California's Pat Haden's passing attempts to rescue the West in the final minutes.

Holloway, voted the outstanding offensive player of the game, threw one touchdown pass and scampered six yards for another major.

Rubin Carter of Miami was named the outstanding defensive player.

Fezler Collects Money for Tour

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Forrest Fezler played three-under-par golf on the closing nine Sunday, sinking a 40-foot putt for one of his birdies, and won the $50,000 Confidence Pro-Am.

The 25-year-old Fezler had a final round score of 70, and a total of 276, 10-under-par, in the event that several touring pros used as a tuneup for Thursday's opening in Phoenix of the 1975 Professional Golfers Association tour.

Fezler, from nearby San Jose, collected $10,000 after posting his fourth sub-par round. One of his best friends, Bob Whynn, got a $5,000 cheque for finishing second at 278.

Bruce Summerhays closed with a 67 and tied George Kelley, who shot 70, for third place at 280.

Bob Boldt finished with a 69 and a 281 total, edging defending champion Bod Funseth by one stroke for fifth place.

English Batsmen Thwart Aussies

SYDNEY (Reuter) — Dour batting by John Edrich and Keith Fletcher kept England afloat in the fourth cricket test Sunday after Australia had made 405 in its first innings.

Edrich and Fletcher batted together for most of the final session on the second day and both were not out at the close when England was 106 for three, 299 behind. Their partnership was worth 37, Dennis Amiss, David Lloyd and Colin Cowdrey having fallen for 69.

Earlier, England had looked likely to stop Australia reaching 400 but Ashley Mallett, Jeff Thomson and Dennis Lillee provided unexpected resistance after seam bowler Geoff Arnold had broken down the middle order. He finished with his best bowling figures of the series, five for 86.

Arnold received spirited assistance from Tony Greig, who took four for 104.

No Decision In Tag Bout

Gene Kiniski and Masa Saito retained their Canadian tag-team wrestling title Sunday against Dutch Savage and Guy Mitchell in the main event of a professional card at Memorial Arena.

With the bout even at one fall, Kiniski and Savage took the action outside the ring and were soon joined by Saito and Mitchell. All four grapplers were then counted out for a no-decision finish.

In other matches, the Calypso Kid took the deciding fall of a best-of-three affair against Buck Ramstad when Ramstad was disqualified, Bill Francis outwrestled Mr. Seki, Dan Kroffit beat Arjit Singh and Gringo Joe and Eric Froelich fought to a draw.

Mainland Rinks to Games

VANCOUVER—Rinks from Haney and Chilliwack will represent British Columbia in next month's Canada Winter Games curling competition at Lethbridge.

Terry Hall skipped his Chilliwack foursome to the boys' title in the under-19 competition with a 5-0 won-lost record. He beat Mike McKay of Campbell River 7-6 in the final game, counting two with a last-rock takeout.

Colleen Williamson of Haney took the girls' title but needed a 12-8 playoff victory over Burnaby's Lesley Perry Sunday. The Williamson rink lost its first match, then reeled off four consecutive victories to force the playoff.

The Perry rink's only loss was a 9-8 squeaker to Williamson Saturday night. Perry finished with a 3-2 won-lost record while McKay was second in the boys' division, also with a 3-2 mark.

In the 20th annual Dogwood bonspiel, meanwhile, defending B.C. champion Jim Armstrong of host Royal City Curling Club was among 16 unbeaten rinks after Sunday's play. A total of 96 rinks entered the event.

Armstrong needed an extra end at edge Don McCabe of North Shore Winter Club 10-9.

Trev Fisher, also of the host club, kept his record intact with an 11-4 victory over Doug Derrick of Cloverdale.

Caps on Their Way To Futility Record

By The Canadian Press

Washington Capitals are heading for what could be the worst season ever by a modern-day National Hockey League club.

The Capitals have three wins, 33 losses and four ties. They have scored 80 goals while allowing 216.

Washington was blanked 3-0 by the Flames at Atlanta Sunday — its 20th road loss in as many tries.

New York Rangers topped Vancouver Canucks 6-2, Montreal Canadiens defeated Chicago Black Hawks 6-4, Buffalo Sabres downed St. Louis Blues 4-2, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Detroit Red Wings 1-0, and California Seals surprised Philadelphia Flyers 5-1.

The Capitals were blasted 10-0 at Montreal Saturday night, Toronto downed the Black Hawks 6-3, Atlanta defeated St. Louis 4-1, the Rangers topped New York Islanders 5-3, Philadelphia and Los Angeles Kings tied 2-2, Pittsburgh Penguins edged Vancouver 4-3, Kansas City Scouts upset Detroit 2-1, and Boston Bruins bombed Minnesota North Stars 8-0.

"We're trying our best," says Caps coach Jimmy Anderson. "But it's the same thing with Kansas City. It's going to take time. (Kansas City is last in the Smythe Division with six wins, 27 losses and four ties.)

"Sure we're struggling. But the league could have helped us more in the expansion draft. I know one thing — I don't have one quitter on this club."

The NHL all-time record for futility belongs to the Islanders, who lost 60, won 12 and tied six in 1972-73, and the Caps have an excellent chance of surpassing that mark.

You have to go back half a century to find teams that gained fewer points during a season. The all-time low is eight by Quebec Bulldogs, who won four and lost 20 in 1919-20. The season before, Toronto Arenas had a 5-18 record for 10 points while three clubs had 12-point seasons. They were the 1920-21 Hamilton Tigers with a 6-18 won-lost record, the 1924-25 Boston Bruins (6-24) and the 1930-31 Philadelphia Quakers with four wins, 36 losses and four ties.

In their weekend games against Montreal and Atlanta, the Capitals were outshot 92-37. Montreal had a 47-17 edge and Atlanta 45-20.

Eric Vail, back in the Atlanta lineup after recovering from an arm injury, scored twice for the Flames Sunday and goaltender Phil Myre registered the shutout.

At New York, the Rangers won their sixth in a row by defeating the Canucks for the first time this season.

The Canucks, who started a seven-game road trip in Pittsburgh Saturday, are missing five regulars.

Chris Oddleifson is out with a broken jaw, Mike Robitaille has a hip injury, Paulin Bordeleau a sore ankle, Dennis Ververgaert a shoulder problem and Andre Boudrias is ailing.

The Canadiens stretched their unbeaten streak to 17 games with their win against the Black Hawks in Chicago. Guy Lafleur, who had three goals and three assists against the Caps Saturday, scored the game-winning goal late in the second period.

GANG WARFARE: Dave Forbes (left) and Terry O'Reilly (right) of Boston Bruins work on Minnesota North Stars' Henry Boucha during first period of game Saturday in Bloomington, Minn. Boucha was struck by Forbes' stick and suffered lacerations above the right eye which will sideline him at least one game. There was no direct injury to the eye. Boucha and Forbes were penalized for fighting, but fighting started again following the penalties. Boucha wound up in hospital while Forbes and O'Reilly were ejected from the game. (AP Wirephoto)

John Hanna fired Friday as coach of Cleveland Crusaders, hung around on the weekend to watch his club lose a pair of World Hockey Association games

Toronto Toros' Tom Simpson did a little watching, too, and it nearly cost his team a victory.

"I definitely think it was a grave injustice to fire me" Hanna said after watching Crusaders bow to San Diego Mariners 2-0 Saturday and 4-3 to the Toros Sunday.

Simpson scored his 28th goal of the season Sunday, giving Toronto a 4-2 lead at 17:53 of the third period.

Seconds later, the goal was replayed on the giant television screen in Cleveland's new Coliseum.

"I thought that goal put the game away for us," said Toros' coach Billy Harris. "But everybody on the bench started yelling to Simpson to watch it on the instant replay screen."

While it was being replayed, Cleveland scored.

"He looked up to watch it and seconds later it was 4-3," said Harris. "You learn something in every game and I guess that's what we learned today."

The Toros held on to the margin despite Gary Jarrett's second goal of the game at 18:04 of the third period.

The win pushed the Toros back into first place in the Canadian Division, one point ahead of Quebec Nordiques who held the lead briefly after beating Toronto 3-1 Saturday.

In other Saturday games, the Whalers played their last match at Springfield, Mass., before moving to new quarters at Hartford, Conn., and beat Vancouver 4-3 in overtime. San Diego Mariners beat Cleveland 2-0, Indianapolis tied 4-4 with Chicago and Houston Aeros beat Michigan 5-2.

When Hanna was fired, the Crusaders had won only 14 games in 32 outings. General manager Jack Vivian called Hanna to the Coliseum Friday night to tell him he news.

Hanna says he doesn't think that 32 games was adequate time to decide whether he was doing a good job, especially since the Crusaders had so many problems getting the season started with bad ice in their new arena.

"I know we weren't winning, but I don't have the answers and I don't think anybody else does," he said.

LAKER SKEIN SNAPS

CHEMAINUS — Chemainus Blues pumped in four unanswered goals during the third period to upset Lake Cowichan Lakers 8-4 Saturday, handing the South Island Big Six Hockey League leaders their first defeat in 25 games this season.

Lakers had accumulated an impressive string of 22 victories and two ties prior to the loss at Fuller Lake Arena.

Daryl Hickson, who scored both second-period Chemainus goals, made it a hat-trick by counting first in the third frame before singles were added by Dave Griff, Rick Adams and Vern Lambourne.

Pete Lemon scored twice for Blues in the first period.

Jim Peterson opened scoring for Lakers in the first frame and the Lake Cowichan club tied things up 4-4 by the end of the second period on two goals by Doug Hanna and a tally by Gus Ryan.

Spence Simmons made 44 saves in the Chemainus net while Laker goalie Brett Kneen blocked 34 shots.

Blues were tagged with nine of the contest's 15 minor penalties.

Two Knicks Among Picks

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York Knicks backcourt tandem of Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe were named Saturday as the only teammates on either starting five in fan balloting for the National Basketball association's 25th annual East-West all-star game at Phoenix, Jan. 14.

Frazier drew 91,621 votes and Monroe collected 52,637 in the first national voting by the paying public for NBA all-stars. Previously, the starting teams were picked by sports writers and broadcasters.

Bob McAdoo of Buffalo Braves was the people's choice as 98,325 votes were filed for the high-scoring centre.

Rounding out the starting East team were forwards John Havlicek of Boston Celtics, with 87,715 votes, and Elvin Hayes of Washington Bullets, 52,444.

Centre Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Milwaukee Bucks was the most popular among western voting fans with a 77,832 total. At the forwards were Rick Barry of Golden State Warriors, 60,547, and Spencer Haywood of Seattle Supersonics, 50,302.

Picked as starting guards for the West were Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles Lakers, 58,986, and Nate Archibald of Kansas City-Omaha Kings, 46,724.

Abdul-Jabbar collected 33 points and 15 rebounds to lead the Bucks to a 96-95 victory Sunday over Chicago Bulls, their arch-rivals in the National basketball Association midwest Division.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 16 of his points in the final period as the Bucks, leading by 11 points with 3:17 to go, held off a Chicago charge.

The Bucks are now 4-1 against Chicago, with an average winning margin of just two points, and are only 3½ games back of first-place Detroit.

Metros, Blues Post One-Goal Triumphs

Metro Toyota edged Victoria Optimists 4-3 and Chemainus Blues nipped Carson's Bulldozers 5-4 in two senior division games played Sunday at Pearkes Arena in the Greater Victoria Girls' Ice Hockey League.

Dianne Daniels, Cindi Lindel, Jane Mowat and Janice Breeden scored for Metro while Laura Kelly scored twice and Mo Cockrill fired a single for Optimists.

Nancy Brown led the Chemainus win with two goals while singles were added by Gloria Watkins, Shannon Hayton and Sharon Dubyna. Sue Wilson (2), Shirley Kirkley and Vicki Black replied for Bulldozers.

Craigflower Motel and Victoria Realty fought to a 2-2 deadlock Sunday in an intermediate game at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

In junior action, Chemainus tripped visiting Nearly News 4-2 Sunday and Nearly News defeated Esquimalt Lions 4-1 Saturday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Victoria Midgets Tops in Tourney

SALMON ARM — Victoria chalked up five straight victories including an 8-2 decision over White Rock in the final Saturday, to win the Salmon Arm invitational midget hockey tournament.

George Fritz led Victoria in the final with four goals while Randy Kellar added two and Robbie Rees and Jim Little notched one each.

Victoria advanced to the final with a 7-2 victory over Salmon Arm while White Rock defeated North Kamloops 2-1 in the other semi-final.

Wayne Proceviat sparked Victoria's semi-final win with two goals and singles were added by Cam MacIntyre, George Fritz, Ian McLaren, Ken Wilson and Geordie Robertson.

Wilson, a defenceman, assisted on three goals in the final and was selected as the game's first star.

Gulls Stage Rally

Juan de Fuca Gulls responded to pressure Sunday as they scored twice in the third period on the way to a 5-4 win over Saanich Braves Sunday in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Trailing 3-2 after the first period, the Gulls evened the score at 3-3 after two periods before outscoring the Braves 2-1 in the final stanza.

Dave Archibald tallied twice to lead the Gulls, who also got goals from Ian McLean, Dave Dhalian and Gregg Ross.

Dean Clarke scored two goals for the Braves with Stan Thomas and Ray Crueger notching the other Saanich tallies.

On Saturday, Comox of the North Island League edged Lake Cowichan, 7-5, in an interlocking game at Lake Cowichan Arena.

Scoring for Lake Cowichan were Mike Forrest with two goals, Randy Irving, Don Perterson and Scott Morrow.

GAMES TEAM FALLS

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Volleyball Club took top honors Saturday in a five-team tournament that marked the end of a ten-day training camp for the provincial team selected for the Canada Winter Games.

Top-ranked men's club in the province, VVC finished the round-robin meet at the University of British Columbia with a 4-0 record. The winners defeated the B.C. Winter Games Reps, 15-4, 13-15, 16-14, to finish the tournament with eight wins in nine Games.

The Winter Games squad was second with a 3-1 mark, followed by Roofing Company of Vancouver at 2-2, Richmond at 1-3 and Vancouver Snydalsuns, 0-4.

Vancouver Chimos, nine-times Canadian women's champions, beat the B.C. Winter Games women's team, coached by Victoria's Kent Andrews, 15-10, 11-15, 15-7, 15-8, in a best-of-five exhibition series.

The provincial team included three Victoria players, Shelly Godfrey, Diane Pendray and Linda Chiu.

James Bay Tops Portland Squad

BEAVERTON, Ore. — Dennis Head fired two goals here Saturday to lead James Bay Athletic Association Canadians of the South Island Big Six Hockey League to a 5-3 exhibition victory over Portland Royals.

Don Presley, Doug Harding and Darrell Elliott each added one goal to the James Bay total.

DON CORYELL

CARD PILOT PICKED

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Coryell, who turned the dispirited St. Louis Cardinals from perennial losers into divisional champions, has been named by the Associated Press Saturday as 1974 coach-of-the-year in the National Football League.

The 50-year-old Coryell was a landslide winner, receiving 50 of a possible 78 votes from a national panel of sports writers, including three representatives from each of the NFL's 26 teams. Sid Gillman of Houston Oilers finished a distant second with 12 votes. Lou Saban of Buffalo Bills, Chuck Fairbanks of New England Patriots and John Madden of Oakland Raiders also collected votes.

Coryell, once head coach at the University of British Columbia, led the Cardinals to their first division title since the franchise was moved from Chicago to St. Louis in 1960 and their first since 1948.

The Cardinals, who had finished each of the 1971, 1972 and 1973 seasons with 4-9-1 records, wound up 10-4 last season and tied Washington Redskins for first place in the NFL East Division. But St. Louis was declared the division champion by virtue of two victories over the Redskins.

No-Shows: 'Terrible Waste'

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

There's no honor among thieves, so perhaps it is not unusual the incidence of bail-skipping has soared ever since the federal government liberalized the Bail Act a few years ago.

Until recently it was relatively rare for an accused person released on bail to fail to show for trial.

But it's a different story today.

The "no show" has become increasingly common and the government is considering tightening the regulations again.

Court officers concede there is a problem but are reluctant to estimate the magnitude.

There are few statistics but this will be rectified later this month when results are released on a survey of the provincial court system undertaken last summer by the attorney-general's deparment.

A study in the Vancouver courts last fall showed between 12 to 13 per cent of the cases brought to trial could not proceed because the accused didn't appear.

The situation, it seems, is just as bad here. Last month in Victoria provincial courtroom B, 11 accused persons failed to show for trial.

As trials in that court are normally set for half a day, it meant 5½ days were wasted, a critical loss to the court calendar which is clogged with cases yearning for swift trial.

"It's a terrible waste," a court clerk said, "especially when you consider the public pays the judge about $39,000 a year just to sit and hear cases . . . and then for perhaps a quarter of the time there are no cases for him to hear."

That's just a start to the problem.

"No shows" mean more work for the court clerks who have to cancel witnesses, start the whole proceedings again and issue new warrants.

If the "no show" had been out on surety bail or his own recognizance in a certain sum, the judge normally endorses the bail order initiating estreatment proceedings which create another round of paper work at the higher court level.

Estreatments—the forfeiture to the crown of money or property guaranteed in the bail order—have risen sharply over the past year. In 1973 there were 19 in Victoria, in 1974, 64, an increase of more than 300 per cent.

But there are enormous difficulties for the crown in collecting bails estreated.

ANDERSON
. . . 'sign of the time'

"It's an onerous procedure to begin with," county court clerk explained. "We have to send out a double registered notice of hearing to the accused: but 90 per cent of the time the notice comes back unopened and we discover the address is a vacant lot, or no such number exists, or the person has moved, or has never lived there before."

The crown proceeds nonetheless and takes the matter before the county court judge who generally authorizes forfeiture. A writ of execution is then drawn up . . . and guess where it is sent out: to the address the accused originally gave.

"There is nothing else we can do," the clerk sighed.

Wally Anderson, regional crown prosecutor, said estreatment is futile unless the crown catches up to the person named in the order.

"So we get the writ . . . but only if we can catch the body."

He confessed the recovery rate was "not very high", probably not more than 20 per cent.

He attributed most of the problems to a growing tendency of bail applicants to give phoney names and addresses. There seems to be no cross-checking mechanism or deterrents to prevent lies.

"Maybe it's just a sign of the times," said Peter Birkett, senior member of the Victoria prosecuting team, "People don't take their commitments as seriously as they should.

"Some tend to forget; others it's just a case of saying, 'The heck with it . . . if you're foolish enough to release me then I'm off' ".

Inn, Union Discussing Reopening

The Mediaeval Inn may not be closed for long after all.

Representatives of the restaurant and Local 835, Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union, were meeting today, less than 72 hours after the inn announced it was shutting down.

Inn owner John Jones of Vancouver admitted today that the restaurant would reopen if agreement could be reached for a contract at a lower level than the first contract ordered last week by the Labor Relations Board.

The LRB-ordered first contract included a wage scale of $2.88 an hour for waitresses, an increase of 13 cents an hour, plus payment of 22 cents an hour into a union health and welfare and pension plan.

★ ★ ★

Local manager John McCarvill said the inn was closed today but "I certainly hope we can come to some sort of arrangement."

He said the restaurant cannot afford to pay the LRB contract.

"They gave the union everything but the kitchen sink," he said.

McCarvill said the problem area is the 22 cents an hour into the union health and welfare and pension plan.

He said the restaurant already was paying half the cost of a medical plan and a dental plan and all the cost of a life insurance plan.

Inn shop steward Erin Ralph said she considers the closing of the restaurant was "definitely a tactic" by management to change the LRB-ordered contract.

Small Town in Winter: Ontario 30 Years Later

Not the least reward for doing these little pieces for the paper is that they may be used as a sort of snapshot album and I need merely dip in my file of them (carefully stuffed in a cardboard Libby's Bean box) to recapture moments in the past.

That explains, if you must know, why we are today in a little town in Ontario on a winter's day of almost exactly 30 years ago, a sequence of events that began when I wrote that this year my wife and I might experience another eastern Christmas.

As it happened, events made it impossible for us to get away and I thought that would be the end of it. But what I'd forgotten was the fact that fully one out of every two Victorians is from some point to the east and these people were expecting some sort of report from the Harwood, Ontario, farm of my friend Burwash, as I'd sort of promised.

There were, in fact, a dozen or more letters, mostly from ex-Ontarians, asking me when they could expect some report on our adventure.

"I feel as if I'd let them down rather badly," I told my wife. "I remember once, early in the war, going to a small Ontario town called Kemptville, and coming away with a wonderful impression of it. I'm darned sure I wrote something about it at the time, but I guess it's lost forever."

My wife marched directly to the Libby's Bean box, excavated in its nether depths and came up with a small, paperback booklet. It was a war-time collection of columns, called "Says We", written by Sergeant Eric Nicol and Sergeant Jack Scott, published 30 years ago and selling for 35 cents the copy, and there — sure enough! — was the piece called "Small Town at War" that I'd remembered.

Here it is, just for you transplanted Ontarians, with my good wishes:

★ ★ ★

Some of the people who know that I take a rather dim view of Ontario smirked and shook wise heads when they heard I was to spend a day or two doing a job here in Kemptville. "Okay," they said. "You've been in Toronto and Ottawa and you think that's Ontario. Wait until you've seen Kemptville."

We went up from Ottawa in a staff car in the early morning, humming along the river road in the cold winter sunlight and at noon we arrived. We rolled smoothly over a hill and the little town was bunched below and I knew in the first minute that the place would stay a long time in my memory.

It is a very small town, solidly built of good grey stone and brick and white mortar, and my mind went back to the typical small towns of my own province, sprawling and made of wood. My first quick impression was that some giant had come upon the town one day, reached out his arms and had gently drawn all the buildings together to keep them warm.

Everything is clustered about the narrow main street and a creek, now swift-running and almost a mustard color from the melting ice, plunges down through the heart of the place. A heavy, arching stone bridge spans it.

The sight gave me the inescapable feeling that this was a Hollywood set for some mellow movie with a 19th century background. You expected to see a red, horse-drawn sleigh come down the street with a crisp tinkle of bells, and one did.

I went into a grocery and feed store for some cigarettes and led the proprietor into easy conversation.

"Pretty town."

"Mighty pretty in summer."

We looked down the narrow street with the ice getting wet in the sun and the solid, thick-walled buildings crowding ageless together. You could imagine what it would be like in summer with the creek slowed to a burble and the trees, now black and gaunt, in bloom.

"Not a soul on the streets," I remarkid.

"There's hardly anybody left," he said. "All the kids gone off to war."

"Oh," I said, realizing it for the first time. "Oh, sure. I should have known it."

I went out and walked up to the car, looking now at the town with new eyes and finding it, as they'd said I would, a very fine place.

HOT WIRES in a refrigerator caused a smoke scare at Cedars Private Hospital, Menzies Street this morning, and patients were evacuated from the second floor as a precaution. Smoke damage was confined to a matron's suite, but until firemen gave the all-clear, hospital staff went through fire drill and moved patients to lower corridor. (Bill Halkett photo)

Anderson Gets Overhaul Task On Fire Bylaws

Two Victoria aldermen will play an unexpected game of committee musical chairs in 1975, but the apparent demotion of one — Ald. Malcolm Anderson — may not be a demotion after all.

Anderson, who has been parks committee chairman for the past two years, was today given the job of chairing the personnel, labor relations and fire prevention committee.

The latter is generally considered the lightweight portfolio on council, condemning the holder to relative obscurity.

But Mayor Peter Pollen, in announcing his annual committee shuffle today, stressed that Anderson's committee this year will have the "major responsibility" of introducing the city's overhauled fire safety standards bylaw.

That bylaw, which has been undergoing staff preparation for several months, is expected to have a difficult birth this year, including as it does much tougher (and therefore costly) standards for up-grading safety in fire-prone older buildings.

Ald. Clyde Savage, a constant critic of Pollen's over the past three years, moves from the personnel-labor relations-fire slot to Anderson's vacated job.

The two neophyte members of city council, Ald. Murray Glazier and Ald. Bob Ellis, receive the committee roles that had been expected to go their way.

Glazier, a consulting engineer who formerly served on the board of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, gets the major responsibility for housing, which includes implementation of the Neighborhood Improvement Program in James Bay and Victoria West.

Ellis, a developer formerly connected with the credit collection business, who has been an active member of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, will take over the commerce, industry and tourism committee.

His predecessor in that position, Ald. Bill Tindall, inherits public works and traffic planning from Ald. Alf Hood, who succeeds the retired Ald. Tom Christie as head of the finance committee.

Hood will also continue as Acting Mayor in 1975.

Retaining their 1974 jobs are Ald. Mike Young (land-use planning and zoning); and Ald. Sam Bawlf (Central Area development, beautification and public transportation).

Tight School Budgets Stymie Theatre Troupe

Victoria's Company One theatre troupe is being disbanded after tight school board budgets all over the province drastically curtailed company bookings for the coming season.

"The schools simply didn't have the money," society president Michael Meiklejohn said today.

Most of the troupe's performances in its 3½ years of operation have been at schools and financed by those schools.

On Vancouver Island the company has performed for the Sooke, Saanich, Nanaimo, Courtenay and Campbell River school districts.

The theatre company "will be reorganizing in the coming months," according to a press release issued today.

Society directors have "decided to study the company's future in the light of . . . the growing recession in B.C."

Economic resession caused much of the schools' reluctance to spend money on entertainment, Meiklejohn indicated.

Ten actors and administrators will be put out of work by the directors' decision.

"We have to settle our debts," said the president. "They're not very serious, but we're going to have trouble meeting them."

The company has been supported by grants from Opportunities for Youth, Local Initiatives Projects, the B.C. Cultural Fund, Canada Council, the Maclean Foundation, the Vancouver Foundation, the Koerner Foundation and by private firms and individuals.

Its reputation has been based on its ensemble playing and innovative works.

Company One actors have performed for 145,355 audience members, with over 21,000 of those in the fall of 1974, its most successful season.

Weather Mix Forecast For Two Days

Weather over Greater Victoria through the next two days will include a "little bit of everything," forecaster Allan McQuarrie said today.

While there is no major front rolling this way as in recent days, unstable air will bring cloudiness with rain or snow showers punctuated with brief sunny periods.

The temperature will drop to freezing at night and climb to about 40 degrees during the day, he said.

A summary of December's weather shows that even within Greater Victoria, it depended where you were. At the Gonzales Observatory the weather was warmer, sunnier and windier with average rainfall.

But at Victoria International Airport it was warmer and sunnier but had more rain and less wind than average.

At Gonzales, the average temperature in December was 44 degrees, almost three degrees above average over the 77 years of record keeping. Rainfall totalled 4.5 inches, .30 inches above average. The sun shone for 61.6 hours, 1.1 hours above average.

At the airport, the temperature averaged better than two degrees lower and rainfall totalled almost 6½ inches. There were 53.2 hours of sunshine.

Rainfall at Gonzales for the year 1974 totalled 25.85 inches and at the airport almost 37 inches.

Dredging Starts For Centre

Work began today on the first phase of the proposed $18.3 million marine sciences centre at Patricia Bay.

A spokesman for Fraser River Pile Driving Co. Ltd. of Vancouver confirmed his company has been given a $3.9 million federal government contract.

He said his company was beginning dredging today, preparing the way for a berthing area and a foundation area for a new wharf.

The spokesman estimated it would take about a year to complete the dredging and build the new wharf, which will be mostly concrete.

He described the concrete wharf design as being "unique" and complex, with only one small part to be constructed of timber.

Levy Leaves Post to Seek Barrett Talk

Union leader Ken Levy left his vigil outside the legislature this morning to request a meeting with Premier Barrett to discuss closure of Jordan River Mine.

Levy, president of local 1012 of the United Steelworkers of America, hand-delivered a letter to the premier this morning requesting a meeting and again blaming Bill 31 for the closure "of a number of mines" in B.C.

Levy was told the premier was tied up in meetings but would reply to his request as soon as possible.

In his letter, Levy warned that people in B.C. will not give up their jobs easily "while your government and the mining industry fight over taxation."

VIOLENCE ELSEWHERE, TENSION HIGH

Discrimination Low But Lurking

Racial discrimination in Victoria against East Indians is minimal compared to other Vancouver Island centres and Vancouver, according to community and government spokesmen.

But they fear the acute housing shortage and stiff competition for jobs may cause latent racial prejudices to surface.

In Vancouver there has been street fighting between non-East Indians and East Indians and murderous family feuds in the Sikh community.

The violence — five deaths by bombing, knifing and shooting — has aroused racial fensions in some parts of the city to a dangerous level.

★ ★ ★

Sikh leaders blame the violence on newcomers unable to adjust to western society.

Non-East Indians have attacked the federal government's liberal immigration laws which they say brought a flood of immigrants to Vancouver in the midst of a critical housing shortage.

Commenting on the Victoria situation, Human Rights Director Kathleen Ruff said she has received only one complaint of racial discriminatin against an East Indian.

"There may be more complaints which have been handled by other members of the staff," she said. "But I'm aware of only one case involving the employment of an East Indian."

Racial discrimination complaints from Nanaimo, Campbell River and Vancouver, were more numerous, she said.

Ruff said the housing shortage is a factor.

"Whenever there are shortages — houses and jobs — there is a rise in racial discrimination," she said. "Minorities become scapegoats."

On the other hand, she said the lack of understanding and hospitality for newcomers to a city results in ethnic groups sticking closer together for security.

They in turn may discriminate against those whom they think are opposed to them, she said.

"There is no simple solution."

Dr. Walter Young, head of the University of Victoria political science department, said the human rights department should "be beefed up."

"Kathleen Ruff is doing a splendid job," he said. "But she is swamped with work. She needs more help."

"I don't know what the situation is in Victoria," he said. "But as Immigration Minister Robert Andras has pointed out there is a population explosion in Vancouver. The housing problem is acute."

Jim Nelson, director of Victoria Rental Aid Service, claimed racial discrimination against East Indians is more widespread in Victoria than appears.

Some owners of apartments refuse to rent to East Indians, he said.

He said regional and municipal leaders should speed up land assembly programs for housing before racism breaks out.

"There is going to be trouble if they don't move quickly," he said.

But leaders of Victoria's Sikh community said there is little or no racial discrimination in Victoria.

"At one time there was," they said, "but this has practically died out."

★ ★ ★

They blamed some Hindu immigrants for provoking racial tensions in Vancouver.

"There are two sides to a story," they said. "The way some Hindu boys (immigrants) are behaving in Vancouver, leaves a lot to be desired. You can't blame some people for being alarmed."

Other Victorians said it is misleading to assume that people who oppose current immigration policies for Asiatics are prejudiced. These people simply favor controlled population growth.

"Population is a major world problem," said one resident. "Yet the federal government encourages growth regardless of the long-term social effects."

Parent's Prayer

DEAR ABBY: Please reprint "A PARENT'S PRAYER". I have just become a grandmother and want to give it to my daughter. Thank you. — New Granny

DEAR GRANNY: With pleasure. It was written by Gary C. Myers, founder of Highlights for Children, a fine, wholesome and educational monthly magazine which I recommend highly.

O heavenly Father, make me a better parent. Teach me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say, and to answer all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them or contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Forbid that I should ever laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame or ridicule when they displease me. May I never punish them for my own selfish satisfaction or to show my power.

Let me not tempt my child to lie or steal. And guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. And when I am out of sorts, help me, O Lord, to hold my tongue.

May I ever be mindful that my children are children and I should not expect of them the judgment of adults.

Let me not rob them of the opportunity to wait on themselves and to make decisions.

Bless me with the bigness to grant them all their reasonable requests, and the courage to deny them privileges I know will do them harm.

Make me fair and just and kind. And fit me, O Lord, to be loved and respected and imitated by my children. Amen.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and need an opinion from someone outside my family.

My parents are divorced and I have lived with my mother since early childhood. She has been a wonderful mother not only to me but to my brothers and sisters. She always thought of her children first.

My father contributed nothing to my upbringing. Not even the child support the court ordered him to pay. I didn't respect him when I was a child, and I still don't.

Although I think the tradition of the bride's father "giving away" his daughter is beautiful, I want my mother to give me away instead.

What do you think of such an odd switch? Do I dare suggest it?—Mamma's Girl.

DEAR GIRL: It's your wedding, and I see no reason why your mother shouldn't give you away if that's what you want. Tell whomever will officiate at your wedding about your wishes. It makes sense to me. (P.S. I once attended a lovely wedding where, in response to the clergyman's question, "Who gives this woman in marriage?", the mother and father replied in unison, "We do!")

Docents Aid Browsers At Provincial Museum

By ELIZABETH FORBES

This is a time of year when men and women in Victoria start looking around for some form of volunteer service to fill their leisure hours.

A good many are retired people. They are active in mind and healthy in body. They need something to help them take up those leisure hours and to keep them busy.

Nothing will do this quicker or bring more rewards than working with young people.

It can be in a number of different fields. At the moment however, I'd like to suggest that anyone looking for an interesting volunteer experience get in touch with Shirley Cuthbertson, education officer at the provincial museum and sign up as a docent down there.

What is a docent? In Miss Cuthbertson's words it's a museum-trained volunteer teacher; a dedicated, energetic, interested individual who enjoys communicating with people . . . someone willing to spend an hour or so a week learning and teaching about the museum's collections.

This work is mostly centred around classes of students in all age groups—from Victoria and other places in British Columbia—that come to the museum on field trips during the school year.

In the short time they are in the museum, these young people need help to stimulate their curiousity and to understand what they see.

As Shirley Cuthbertson explains it, "Ideally, then, a good visit combines individual browsing with small group discussion and with the group's attention directed by a docent familiar with the exhibits and who has a coherent story to tell."

That's why every class is met at the entrance door, divided into smaller groups, and a docent assigned to each group.

By directing attention to detail, the docent guides the interest of the student, by asking thought-provoking questions students are involved in what is said and by providing verbal or visual context and links a more comprehensive picture of different periods and cultures is created.

At present there are 43 active docents on the museum list with perhaps half as many more who have been active at some time willing to fill in, if necessary.

This year with exhibits expanding and many more school field trips scheduled, Miss Cuthbertson says, "We are going to need more active volunteers, if we are to give the necessary service."

That is why she is suggesting if you would like to become involved in the museum and if you have time to give, that you accept the challenge "and the rewards" of working with children and young people.

Each docent makes a minimum commitment for a single one-and-a-half hour session a week, throughout the school year.

To begin with, there is a short training program followed by monthly docent meetings with special lecturers who keep the volunteers informed on work of the museum.

Well! There it is! Have you ever held something in your hands that is 2,000 years old and seen a child's face light up when he or she realized that this is OLD?

Do your talents run to quilt making or splitting shakes? Can you use your experience to widen a child's horizons?

Would you like to become involved in the work of the provincial museum? Have you time to give?

Are you willing to take on the challenge, as Shirley Cuthbertson names it, and at the same time stimulate your own thinking?

If so then get in touch with this education officer or her tour secretary, right away.

The Cuthbertson phone number is 387-3575 and the secretary, 387-6014.

I can assure you that if you do—and you become a docent—you will find it adds a new dimension to your life.

Here are three bean bag games that you can make for girfts or just have them on hand to keep the kids busy.

THE BEAN BAG

1. Cut two 4-inch felt circles for each bean bag.
2. Cut out freehand X and O shapes to fit inside the circles for Tic Tac Toe game. Cut out numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 for the Number Game.
3. Sew an applique number, X or O on each circle.
4. Place a plain felt circle and a circle with an applique together (applique side facing out). Sew them together ¼ inch in from the outer edge and ¾ of the way around the circle.
5. Fill the bag half way with dried lentils or split peas.
6. Sew the remaining seam closed.

CLOWN TOSS BOARD

1. The base of the toss board is plywood. Cut two equal size boards. Size is optional.
2. Draw a round 6-inch nose centered one-third up from the bottom.
3. Drill a hole in the center of the circle. You can also make a hole by hammering a large nail into the circle.
4. Use a saber-or jigsaw to cut out the nose. Start at the centre hole.
5. If you do not own a saber-or jigsaw, you can cut out a triangular nose with a hand saw. Cut the plywood into two sections at the nose line. Cut out a matching wedge on both inner edges of the board, Fig. 1. Reassemble the plywood by hammering or gluing scrap lumber across cut lines, Fig. 2.
6. Paint a happy clown face around the cut-out nose.
7. Attach the two boards at the top with hinges.

HOW TO PLAY THE GAME: Each player stands at a distance from the board and tries to toss bright red bean bags through the nose opening. You can determine how many tosses for each player, and how many are needed to win.

TIC TAC TOE

1. Cut out a 16-inch square piece of fabric.
2. Hem all sides with a ¼-inch seam.
3. Sew two lengths of ribbon across the width and two lengths from top to bottom (all equidistant from each other). Tuck the ends under the fabric before sewing down.
4. This board can also be made with colored paper.

HOW TO PLAY THE GAME: Two players, one X and one O, throw their bean bags at the board that is lying on the floor. A tic tac toe grid drawn on a sheet of paper is marked where the bag lands. The winner is the first to score three X's or O's in a row.

NUMBER GAME

1. Remove the top of 10 large juice cans. File rough areas.
2. Paint 4 cans one color, 3 cans in another color, 2 cans another color, and the last can a different color.
3. Paint a different number, 1 to 4, on each set of colored cans.
4. Glue the cans together in a triangle. Number should be facing front.

HOW TO PLAY THE game: each player tosses the four numbered bean bags at the cans. They have to get the right number bean bag into the can with the same number. Score only the bags that fall into the correct can. Highest score wins in a given number of rounds.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WILLIAM J. WELCH

The old-fashioned cold sore has lost its innocence. When it is on your upper lip it is still a harmless blister, but when it shows up on your buttocks or your genitalia, it is now recognized as a variety of VD that tends to afflict the sexually promiscuous.

It is not syphilis and it is not gonorrhea, but it can be contracted and spread from one person to another in the same way. The little blisters are caused by a virus that is first cousin to the virus that causes cold sores on the upper lip, and is a member of the "herpes" family of viruses, which includes nearly 50 varieties.

Another member of the herpes family causes shingles (herpes zoster), an excruciatingly painful cluster of blisters that usually involves a sharply demarcated area on one side of the body, rarely if ever crossing the midline.

It is believed that everybody harbors the herpes virus, probably carrying it in nervous tissue. In most people, the virus remains dormant. In some, it can become active as a result of a cold, a fever, severe sunburn or some other shock to the body's pattern of resistance.

If the virus that is activated is herpes simplex (type one), cold sores develop most often on the upper lip. If it is type two that is activated, down it goes below the belt to the genitalia, almost as if it were passing judgment.

It seems to turn up most always among promiscuous teen-agers, dallying young adults and industrious prostitutes. Then in turn spread it around among their friends and-or clients. Small children and non-sporty adults practically never have the genital variety of herpes.

Happily, at the same time that this news about herpes has appeared, effective treatment has been developed for both type one and type two varieties of blister. The application of ordinary ether or chloroform will clear up herpes sores in as little as two days. Formerly, the little sores could last for days and even weeks before they healed.

In addition, there is a pill that can be taken by mouth, which can stop the progression of both cold sores and genital herpes within 48 hours.

But nobody knows yet how to prevent herpes infections. This has become especially urgent since there is statistical evidence that women with genital herpesare more likely to develop cancer at the outlet of the womb than those who have never been infected.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Jan. 7

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent is on deal that concerns mate, partner. You get down to "brass tacks." You perceive situation as it — and you learn about credits, debits. Bookkeeping session is likely to be on agenda. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent is on contract, legal arrangement, special agreement. Member of opposite sex is involved. Cycle emphasizes partnership, co-operative effort, marriage. Significant change is due. Gain shown through written word.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Moderation is key. Slow pace. Be aware of commitments, responsibilities. Keep recent diet, health resolutions. Taurus, Libra could be in picture. Restlessness now should be controlled. Someone owes you something. If you wait, you benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your ability to discern beyond "normal expectations" is emphasized. Emotions tend now to dominate logic. Kneejerk response is featured. Specifically, you may fight with one you love. Key is to know the difference between what is said — and what is done. You'll perceive!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Responsibility, building, creating plans for future security — these are emphasized. You have more to handle, but greater chance for promotion, other rewards and benefits. Don't delegate duties. Find out what is going on — and then be sure you have something to do with direction.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis is on ideas, finishing what you start, finding more effective means of distribution. Relatives, neighbors have plenty to say. Be discriminating — and don't lose sense of humor. Flexibility now becomes a valuable asset.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New approach to budget, payments and collections is necessary. Be innovative. Give full play to creative spirit — and refuse to sell yourself short. You have more in your favor than might be imagined. More confidence is required. Don't let minor financial problem grow out of proportion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Lunar cycle is high — trust yourself! Your hunches are apt to be on target. Be conspicuous by your presence. Wear bright colors. Favorable publicity is on agenda. Take advantage of it by having future plans, hopes outlined.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): For valid answers, look behind the scenes. Accent now is on curiosity, questions, answers and willingness to read beyond the cover. Another Sagittarian — and a Gemini — could aid in solving what appears to be a dilemma.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some friends seem to take a "hard line." Ride with the tide. Realize you have allies who will stand and be counted. Be specific about details. Take nothing for granted. Love is in picture and be glad of it!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Communicate with one who is in authority. State needs, suggestions. The more open you are, the better for you. Challenge and responsibility are featured. Gemini, Virgo and Leo persons figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spotlight is on far-reaching effects, family communications, language, ability to bridge generation gap. Domestic adjustment figures high on agenda. Taurus, Libra persons have their say. Be receptive, not weak.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are prescient, spiritual, attuned to law and drama. You are coming out of emotion doldrums — you'll be going places and doing things. May should be your most significant month of 1975. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. You don't make friends easily, but when you do — the relationship is lasting and you are loyal.

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

BIP: Guide to Dump Extra Pounds

(This is the first in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of Why Grow Old? and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. you may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.)

Life surges by so rapidly that a year is just a drop of time and yet when each new year arrives it alerts us to its potentialities for happiness, accomplishment and self-improvement. It says to us, "I am unspoiled, fresh and untried. Invest in me."

1974 is gone and with it go it's mistakes, discouragements and procrastinations. 1975 is here with the chance it brings us for more beauty, better health, and a more vibrant life. We have a new chunk of time to do with what we will. What a shame it would be to waste it in fatigue, overweight, worry, boredom or self-consciousness.

Almost everyone makes at least one New Year's resolution. Probably the one women make most frequently is the vow to dump burdensonte extra pounds which they know are hazardous to health, damage their good looks and take some of the joy out of life. That is why I bring you my eight-week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short) at this season.

Each year thousands of women join BIP to see how much they can improve their appearance in just eight short week. With my help you can look and feel like a new woman eight weeks from now. During that time, you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds, streamline measurements, improve your hair and complexion, increase your energy and add zest to your outlook. Thousands of women have done it. You can, too!

This is the way it works. This week and next I will bring you all the basic information you need to carry on alone. You will learn what you should weigh, how your measurements stack up and how to plan reducing menus. I will also give you an exercise a day and reducing menus for nine days which you can repeat or use as a pattern. For the following six weeks I will be here one day a week with more information and a typewriter full of encouragement.

You will be given grocery lists ahead of time so that you can have the necessary items on hand. This year the lunches I publish are planned so that you can take them to work with you or prepare them easily at home.

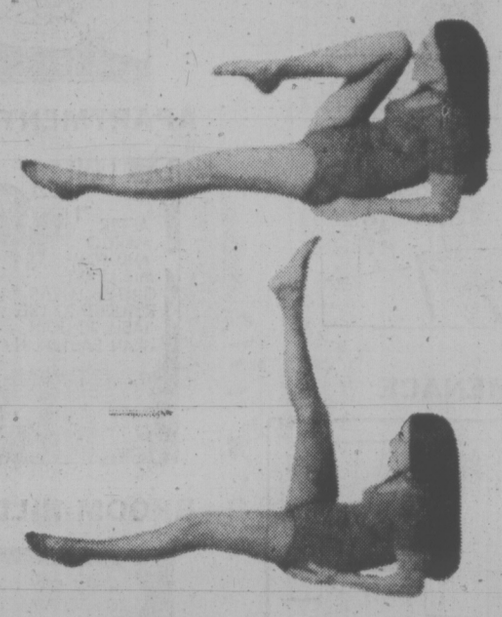
I will not list staples such as flour, oil, butter and margarine, sugar, bread and so forth. You usually have those on hand anyway.

GROCERY LIST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 7 AND WEDNESDAY, JAN. 8

¼ cup tangerine juice, 6 oz. tangerine juice, 2 tangerines, 1 lemon or 1 cup lemon juice, 1 banana, 3 eggs, skim milk grated parmesan cheese, oatmeal, whole wheat bread, 1 English muffin, egg noodles, 1 chicken breast, 4 oz. lean steak, 1 slice salami, 3 oz. thinly sliced roast beef (from the deli, if desired), ½ cup low-calorie gelatin, low-calorie salad dressing, artificial sweetener, mustard, garlic, salt, parsley, paprika, one-third cup dry white wine or beef broth, mixed salad greens (lettuce, escarole, endive, watercress, or fresh spinach), 1 green pepper, ½ cup canned mushrooms, 1 medium potato, ½ cup cooked spinach.

Why not breathe some life into your New Year's resolutions by joining thousands of other women in the quest for self-improvement? Just follow the columns in this newspaper. If you would like to have my BIP Kit which gives you detailed instructions, more reducing menus for which you can see your beauty line rise as your weight line drops, send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman, c-o Times Family Desk, 2621 Douglas.

Tomorrow: Holidays pack on pounds. Now you take them off.



SIT on the floor with your legs extended out on the floor in front of you. Lean back and rest on your lower arms. Bend your left knee and bring it up to your nose. Straighten your left leg toward the ceiling. When you straighten your leg keep it as close to your nose as possible. Slowly lower leg to the floor with a stiff knee. Do the same with your right leg and continue, alternating. This is slimming to the abdomen.

Healthful, Local Leeks Gourmet Vichyssoise Base

By HILDA BEASTALL

Is Vichyssoise just an unprounouncable name of something good to eat? It was to me until I learned that it is not difficult to make from a vegetable commonly grown in many local gardens. Pronounced vee-shi-swas', this gourmet soup is based on leeks which we see every fall as splendid specimens in vegetable shows. Each winter, gardeners wonder what to do with their surplus.

If you must buy leeks, look for firm heavy specimens with a good proportion of thick white flesh to the short green tops.

The leek has been grown for centuries in countries of moderate temperatures and is so healthful in its effects that it came to be classed as a medicinal plant. In the town of Vichy, the famous health spa in France, a restaurant keeper used leeks for a special soup, which proved so popular that it earned the name of Vichyssoise.

Here is one version of Vichyssoise.

6 small or 3 large leeks,
1 Tbsp onion,
2 Tbsp butter or soft margarine,
3 medium potatoes, diced
2 cups vegetable water OR chicken or turkey broth,
1½ cups milk from non-instant powder,
1 tsp chopped parsley or chervil,
a little paprika.

Thinly slice the white parts of the leeks, and the onion, into a saucepan. Add butter or margarine, toss to coat. Cook gently.

After about a minute, add the vegetable water, or broth, bringing all to boil, then add diced potatoes.

Simmer until potatoes are tender, then press through a strainer. Add the milk; reheat without boiling.

Taste for seasoning with salt, but the less the better. Pour into heated soup bowls; sprinkle with parsley or chervil and a little paprika. Serves 4.

A Leek Souffle, delicious to the taste and the vision, is suitable for serving luncheon guests. It may be mostly prepared ahead of time, then assembled at the last minute to put into the oven a half hour before serving.

LEEK SOUFFLE

6 small leeks, or 3 large
3 Tbsp butter or soft margarine
1 Tbsp wholewheat flour
¾ cup vegetable water, OR beef or turkey broth
4 eggs, separated
A little salt

Melt butter in saucepan, add thinly sliced white parts of leeks; simmer until golden. Stir in flour, and cook for 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour in vegetable water or broth, stirring constantly.

If too thick, add a little more vegetable water, or broth. Taste for seasoning.

Stir in the egg yolks, then the stiffly beaten egg whites, using a gentle folding motion not a beating action.

Pour into greased casserole; bake at 400 degs. for about 25 minutes until golden brown. Serves 4.

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE:

I'm in desperate need of a set of U-joints for my 1951 Chrysler New Yorker. Having exhausted all local sources of supply (dealers and wrecking yards), I turn to you for help. — Stymied.

DEAR STYMIED:

Write to Neapco, Box 399, Pottstown, Pa. 19464. Neapco also has universal joints for all sorts of other older cars: Fords since 1928; DeSoto, Chrysler and Packard 1950-55; Cadillac 1941-49; Olds 1953-55, and Buick 1961-62.

★ ★ ★

DEAR MIKE:

The armrests on my 1965 Olds are all tattered and scruffy. The vinyl cloth has split and peeled back. Can I reupholster these myself, and if so how? — Coming Unglued.

DEAR UNGLUED:

Yes. Remove the armrests from the doors via two Phillips screws. Then remove the upper pad via two more screws in the bottom of the armrest. Buy yourself matching vinyl cloth. The old cloth is glued to the bottom of the pad — merely strip it away carefully. Then, using the old cloth as a pattern, cut the new material. Wrap it around the foam-rubber bolster, reglue it with contact cement (carefully), and put it back into its plastic housing (the armrest itself).

★ ★ ★

DEAR MIKE:

My 1970 Torino 302 makes a chirping sound whenever the engine is running. One mechanic diagnosed this as a bad alternator. He changed the alternator and it helped for about a week, but the chirping returned. Now I've gotten two additional opinions, one of which is that I need a new air-conditioning compressor and the other says I need a new water pump. Before I let any of this work be done, I thought I'd ask your opinion. — Chirp.

DEAR CHIRP:

First eliminate the possibility of the chirp's being a dry fanbelt. Lubricate each belt with soap or a crayon. You do this with the engine running, being very careful to keep your hand from being hit by the fan or from being pinched into a pulley. Let each belt draw the soap or crayon onto its inner surface — the surface that travels in each pulley. If it's a belt chirping, you'll get rid of the chirp immediately with lubrication. But the soaping or crayoning will be only a temporary cure — you'll need to relubricate each belt with belt dressing or linseed oil for a more permanent remedy. Now, if it's not the belts, it's probably one of the pulleys — fan, power steering, air conditioning, alternator, water pump, etc. To find out which, remove or loosen one belt at a time.

IMPORTANT CHANGES
CANADA PENSION PLAN
EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1st, 1975

Equal Protection for males and females

Survivors and dependents of female contributors also to be eligible for benefits.

Several changes were recently made to the Canada Pension Plan. These will result in substantially increased monthly benefits for 1975 and subsequent years. There are other important changes, too. One of these is equality for the spouses and dependent children of male and female contributors.

This means that for female contributors, in addition to being eligible for a retirement pension and disability protection for themselves, and a death benefit payable to their estates, as has been the case in the past, their spouses and dependent children are now eligible for benefits as follows:

Benefits for Surviving Spouses
A monthly pension payable to the widower who at the time of the death of the contributor is over 35 years of age, or under 35 years of age but is disabled or has dependent children; that is, a benefit similar to that which has always existed for widows.

Benefits for Orphans
A monthly benefit payable to unmarried dependent children under 18 and to unmarried dependent children between 18 and 25 attending school or university on a full-time basis.

NOTE:
In order for survivors to qualify, the contributor must have died in January 1968 or later and must have contributed for the minimum contributory period, which is three years for deaths occuring before January 1, 1975.

Benefits for Children of Disabled Contributors
A monthly benefit payable to unmarried dependent children under 18 and to unmarried dependent children between 18 and 25 attending school or university on a full-time basis, where the contributor concerned is in receipt of a CPP Disability Pension.

NOTE:
In all cases, it is necessary to make application for benefits. If such applications are approved, payments can only be made currently—that is, from January 1, 1975. No payment can be made for any period prior to that date.

Other Changes:
- You no longer have to retire to obtain your CPP retirement pension at age 65.
- CPP retirement pensioners may work without having their earnings from January 1975 onwards reduce their pensions.
- The earnings ceiling—that is, the maximum amount on which contributions can be paid and on which benefits can be calculated—is being raised to $7400 in 1975 and to $8300 in 1976. The initial amount of earnings, on which you are not required to contribute, will be $700 in 1975.

MAXIMUM MONTHLY CPP BENEFITS
Effective January 1975

Retirement Pension	$122.50
Disability Pension	$139.35
Surviving Spouse's Pension—under 65	$88.31
over 65	$81.67
Orphan's Benefit	$37.27
Disabled Contributor's Child's Benefit	$37.27
Death Benefit (Lump Sum)	$740.00

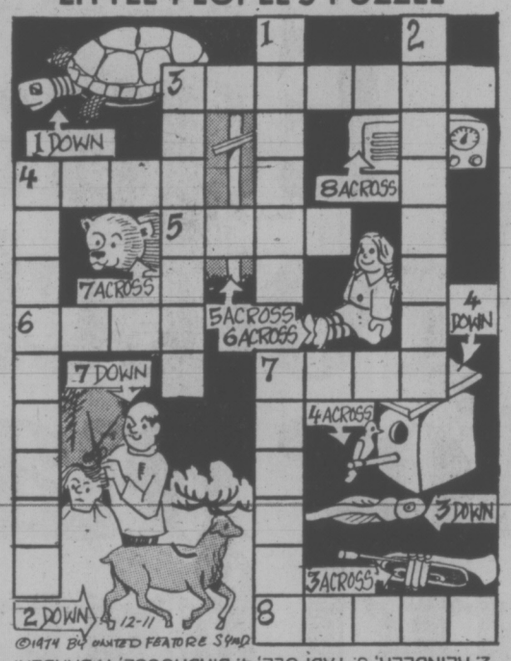
LITTLE PEOPLE'S PUZZLE



FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. Hunter

"That's it," declared Bill, gathering up the cards. "You're up four bucks, and anyway it's time for a drink."

The two men had been playing for a dollar a game, win or lose, and Steve had been lucky. "Okay," he said. "You can have your revenge next time, but you did win three games."

How many games had they played?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Carlow 37 miles from the mill.

Mr. Hunter answers all letters: ideas welcomed.

New Argo Signs Long Term Pact

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League have signed tackle-guard Mike Haggerty to a long-term contract. The six-foot-four, 245-pound Haggerty was with the defunct Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League in 1974. He was in the National Football League six years and played for Pittsburgh Steelers, New England Patriotsand Detroit Lions.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In bridge, as in many arenas of competitive endeavor, players commit errors of commission and errors of omission. The former category consists of things done incorrectly, technically speaking; the latter includes mistakes made because somebody "forgot" to do something that should have been done. Both types of errors can, of course, be equally costly.

In today's deal, one of the defenders committed an error of omission, thereby making it relatively simple for South to fulfill his contract. Had the error not been made, it is quite possible that the contract would have been defeated. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

Dummy's six of clubs was played on the opening lead, and East's king captured the trick. A club was returned to dummy's ace, thereby removing the board's only entry outside of the diamond suit.

Declarer then led a diamond to his king. East following suit with a three-spot, and West with the six. South's remaining diamond was led next; and, with his heart in his mouth, South inserted dummy's jack. When East followed suit with the ten, South breathed a sigh of relief. From here in the play was routine, with 12 tricks being made.

When South played a diamond to his king (at trick three), East should have followed suit with the ten, not with the three. Had he done so, declarer would have been confronted with a real dilemma: was the ten-spot an honest play or not?

If the ten were an honest play, then either it was a singleton or a part of the doubleton Q-10. Declarer would now have to decide whether to finesse dummy's jack of diamonds, or to go up with the ace, hoping to catch East's (presumed) queen.

How he would have decided will never be known, of course. If he guessed wrong by putting up dummy's ace, he would make just eight tricks, two ineach suit. But East gave South no opportunity to go wrong, so South ended up with three overtricks.

GARDENING

It's Blackberry-Thinning Time

At first sight around six-thirty on a January morning, the garden may not appear too inviting. But as frequently happens if you watch for it, a splendid sunrise inspires the gardener who really wants to get ahead with an outside job or two.

It may be only a bit of burning of tough branches, or a session of clearing out exuberant blackberries.

Now, blackberries are my favorite fruit. I still have a couple of frozen packs to brighten a miserable winter day. They will bring back the feel and smell of late summer enough to assure that a few roots will be kept.

Three roots each having four canes, trained to wires in the middle of a vegetable plot, will yield all the blackberries a family of four can use. And what berries!

The cultivated soil in the patch, the general watering provided as necessary for the vegetables, and the uncluttered training of the 12 selected canes each year results in the best flavored berries you can dream about.

Logans may surpass the blacks for richness of flavor. If that is hard to believe, try both this coming year, trained and cultivated as suggested, then judge the results for yourself.

The so-called wild blackberry (of Saanich) is worthy of careful cultivation. Since the plants are spread by seed of the berries eaten by birds, a variation occurs in the plants, so that all wild berries are not equal in size, flavor or yield.

However, if you already have a tangled corner of them, there will be pleasant days in January for getting into it with an eye to selecting two or three roots for keeping.

But don't leave the roots in a corner, for inevitably they will again be a tangle. You cannot control their growth unless you are able to walk and work all around when cultivating and cleaning out. At picking time too, it is important to pick every berry as it ripens for seedlings quickly grow into deeply rooted plants.

The tips of new canes must also be prevented from taking root in the cultivated soil for this they quickly do, thus starting another self-supporting plant.

Only when the few selected canes are grown fanned out on wire supports between posts, can every berry be seen and the canes prevented from touching the soil and making roots. Picking is easy when the risk of being snared by the viscious thorns is eliminated.

When cultivated, blackberry canes are as ornamental as many other garden fruits. The promising fat green growths in spring, the fine flower clusters of pure white flowers with their profusion and attraction for bees all result in pretty garden feature. When you see the heavy trusses of berries beginning to ripen in late August you will find yourself checking each to find that first bowl of sun-ripened berries.

Wait until each berry is fully ripe; easily separating from the stem when touched. Only then will it have the perfect blackberry flavor and sweetness, never requiring additional sugar when enjoyed in the fresh uncooked state.

LARGE FAMILY?
LIKE HORSES?

When is a home also a good investment? When it pays off to the owner — like right now. It's RIGHT NOW you want help with the mortgage. It's RIGHT NOW that your children would love the fun of country life. THINK about it: large well-kept home, 4 BR's plus 2 attic studios on 6 acres with 70x70 barn, 29 box stalls, 2 tackrooms and hayloft. AND if the lazy little devils won't do the chores you can always rent out the riding stables like the present owner. A paying proposition! Offers to $139,000. some terms (MLS 9860).

MEDIATOR QUITS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Cameron, the federal mediator in the contract talks between British Columbia Telephone and its 10,000 employees has resigned after failing to bring the two sides to an agreement.

Telephone workers spokesman Bob Donnelly said Saturday the next step will be for Federal Labor Minister John Munro to appoint either a conciliation board or a conciliation commissioner.

He said direct talks with the company will continue in the meantime.

The contract expired Dec. 31.

British Invite Delegations To IRA Peace Negotiations

BELFAST (UPI) — Britain's chief representative in Northern Ireland began laying the political groundwork today for peace talks with the Irish Republican Army on ending the province's five-year-old sectarian war.

An announcement from the office of Secretary of State Merlyn Rees said he had invited small delegations from parties represented in the former Northern Ireland assembly to meet with him in the next few days.

"The purpose of the meetings will be to enable the parties, if they so wish, to give the secretary of state their views on the present situation," it said.

Included in the delegations were Protestant extremists opposed to British-IRA negotiations because they fear the talks will undermine the Protestant majority by making concessions to the Roman Catholic minority.

Rees is walking a political tightrope in that he must have tacit Protestant approval for the talks while not appearing to favor the IRA over moderate Catholics who seek to unite Northern Ireland to the Irish Republic by peaceful, not violent, means.

His invitations went out one day after the political wing of the IRA, the Sinn Fein, offered to negotiate a premanent extension of the current cease-fire past Jan. 16.

The offer was made by Sinn Fein leader Seamus Loughran. His party was legalized in Northern Ireland by Rees last year but, since it is not represented in the old assembly, was not invited to this week's round of talks.

Simultaneously, Protestant churchmen who had acted as go-betweens in arranging the truce announced that they were stepping aside to let the IRA and British do their own bargaining on extending the standdown.

BACK AT WORK today is Jim Aitken, one of about 200 employees of Victoria Plywood who have been out of a job since the plant closed Oct. 11 due to lack of orders. While full production resumed today, the company said how long it remains open will depend upon the flow of orders, which have been light. The situation will be reviewed in February. Color TV Recall In U.S.

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan's Matsushita Electric Company is recalling about 300,000 Pansonic color television sets sold in the United Styates for suspected radioactive leaks.

The action will be taken in compliance with the U.S. health, education and welfare department's instruction calling on the Japanese maker to repair its TV sets after tests which were reported to have shown that they leak radioactive rays under certain conditions.

It was not immediately known what these condifions were and the Japanese firm claimed that they never leak radioactive rays under normal conditions.

In Ottawa, a health department spokesman said today the company had advised the government that none of the recalled sets had been sold in Canada.

In Toronto, Terry Yamamoto, national product service manager for Matsushita Electric of Canada Ltd., said the recall in the United States will have no effect on sets sold in Canada.

He said the sets sold in Canada are "a little different" from those in the U.S. because they must conform to Canadian standards Association C S A regulations, which he said are more strict than comparable U.S. regulations.

The differences in regulations involve insulation for the power supply circuit and fireproofing of the plastic components in the sets, Yamamoto said.

He said it is inaccurate to use the term "radioactive" to describe the leaks in the U.S. sets.

"These leaks are not radioactive," he said. "The amounts leaked are no greater than come from outer space, and to get these leaks part of the set has to be dismantled and all the controls have to be turned up to maximum."

Skier Dead Of Exposure

SQUAMISH (CP) — The body of James Michael Durno, 19, of Vancouver, was found Sunday near the Whistler Mountain ski area.

RCMP said Durno became separated from companions Saturday in the area northeast of here at the head of Howe Sound.

Death was attributed to exposure.

Trans Union Acquires Crown Screw

Crown Screw and Bolt Co. of Brookfield, Wisconsin, has been acquired by the Trans Union Fastener Group, spokesmen for both companies have announced.

Crown Screw is a distributor of industrial fasteners, while its subsidiary, Donahue Steel Products of Chicago, is an importer of fasteners for resale to distributors. Crown Screw also has a manufacturing subsidiary known as Crown Manufacturing Inc., which has a large tool section.

The Trans Union Fastener Group of Chicago is affiliated with the Procor group of companies in Canada.

LIGHTS GO OUT FOR COYOTES

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Stockmen have an ally in their war against coyotes — the Prince George airport.

Sandy Sanderson, airport manager, said Thursday coyotes chewed their way through 19 neoprene landing light cords in one weekend last fall and airport workers killed between 12 and 15 of the mauraders during the year, with permission from the provincal fish and wildlife branch.

"There are at least two we know of that are too cagey to catch," he said. Coyotes have been blamed for putting out the landing lights ever since Sanderson started working at the airport 19 years ago, he said.

"Maybe it is some mineral in the neoprene," he said. The landing lights are connected to transformers by short neoprene cords which cost $1 each to replace every time a coyote chews it through.

400 Communists Seized

CAIRO (UPI) — Security agents have arrested hundreds of Egyptians in the first major crackdown against suspected Communists since President Anwar Sadat took office in 1970.

Sources close to the government said Sunday authorities have rounded up about 400 members of a "new clandestine Communist organization" in connection with New Year's day worker protests in Cairo.

The sources said the mass detention of workers, students and journalists over the past five days was a strictly domestic matter and did not reflect recent reports of Soviet-Egyptian discord.

The semi-official Middle East News Agency said the prisoners belonged to a new Communist group "aimed at creating disturbances." It said police found anti-government leaflets in the possession of some suspects.

Government sources accused the suspects of sparking New Year's Day protests in which workers clashed with police and stoned shops, offices, buses and cars. The demonstrators demanded higher pay and lower prices.

The sources said the mass arrests moved Sadat's policy toward Egyptian Communists closer to the hard line of his predecessor, the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Nasser seized thousands of Communists withouf trial in 1960 and 1961, but Sadat adopted a more lenient attitude when he took office, releasing many of the prisoners.

Crash Kills Hitchhiker

BOSTON BAR (CP) — A hitchhiker, and one member of the Ontario family he was travelling with died Sunday after an accident south of here in the Fraser Canyon.

An RCMP spokesman said the hitchhiker was identified as Derek James McFetridge, 16, of Bowlton, Ont. He said identity of the Ontario family was not available.

The RCMP spokesman said the Ontario car went out of control in slush and plunged over a 250-foot embankment.

A mother and baby were airlifted to hospital in Kamloops following the accident. The father was released after treatment in hospital at Lytton north of here and then left for Kamloops to join his family.

WORKSHOPS PLANNED FOR YOUNG ACTORS

A group of Victoria theatre directors has organized the Victoria Youth Theatre and will run workshops for aspiring young actors and actresses.

Workshop organizer Ralph Dale said the theatre group will be open to anyone between the ages of 16 and 25 and will aim at "developing the performance skills of novice performers."

The first workshop will be held at 7 p.m. today at Open Space, 510 fort Street and other sessions will be held twice a week for the next five weeks.

In early February, the workshops will become rehearsals for three one-act plays written by western playwrights or dealing with western themes. the plays will be presented sometime in April at Open Sapce.

Other organizers of the theatre group are local drama teachers Mike Farr, Jim Leard, and Mike Steven. Camosun dance instructor Judith Koltai and actress glynis Leyshon.

Fee for the workshops is $10.

New Recreation Courses Start

Badminton, mixed volleyball, Scottish country dancing, gymnastics and basketball are among the courses beginning this month in the Sidney Recreation Program.

Registration is today, Tuesday and Wednesday at Sanscha Hall from 2 to 4 p.m.

More information can be obtained from the recreation office at 656-4914.

Dollar Falls as Gold Auctioned

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The price of gold dropped $5 in London today as the U.S. government put two million ounces of gold bullion on public auction. the dollar fell to a record low in trading in Zurich and a 16-month low in Frankfurt. Two European banks stepped in to support the American currency.

Gold closed in London at $169 an ounce, down $5 from Friday and $4.50 from the afternoon foxing. Gold had met a moderate demand ahead of the opening of the auction, but fell as news of auction bids depressed the American market.

The U.S. treasury department put two million ounces of its 276-million-ounce gold supply on auction today and the U.S. government lifted its 41-year ban on private American ownership of gold Dec. 31, 1974.

Gold prices in Europe had jumped last week in anticipation of a surge of American buying which has not yet materialized.

In Paris, the one-kilo (2.2-pound) ingot closed at $179.50, down from the previous $182.73.

Gold closed in Zurich unchanged from the opening at $174, up $5 from Friday's $169.

The dollar closed in Zurich at 2.5550 Swiss Francs, above today's record low opening of 2.5035. During the day, it had dropped further to equal the previous record trading low of 2.4925 francs set Dec. 30, 1974.

The Swiss National Bank said it had intervened today to support the dollar. When the dollar went down three weeks ago, Swiss said they could not see it go below the 2.50-francs-to-the-dollar mark because the Swiss export industry and tourist industry would be in trouble.

In Frankfurt, the dollar closed at 2.3930 marks, the lowest rate since it was 2.3840 on Aug. 8, 1973.

'Looters Will Be Shot' Sign Removed by Comox Store

COMOX (CP) — The proprietor of a local ice cream store has removed the sign from his window which read: "Looters will be shot."

John Hatfield, who posted the sign after 35 rocks were thrown through the windows of his store Dec. 28, said Sunday that he removed the warning because he thought he had made his point.

"I did it in an act of desperation," he said in an interview. "The merchants and council in this area have not realized the extent of vandalism and I wanted to draw attention to the problem."

Hatfield said more than $1,000 in damage was done to his drive-in during the past year due to vandals. It is now closed for annual maintenance.

Hatfield said every window had been smashed in hte last few weeks and he was the target of 11 breakins last year.

RCMP Staff Sergeant David Watt said he visited Hatfield Saturday and told him about criminal code restrictions on the use of guns and force in protecting property. He added that there is nothing illegal about posting the warning sign.

"Vandalism is all over British Columbia," said Staff-Sgt. Watt.

"It's really a Canadian problem. Comox and Courtenay don't have any exclusive problems.

He said RCMP police Courtenay on a contract basis with the municipality and the other areas are "policed as rural areas and paid for by the province.

"We put one man in one car per shift in Comox and the north rural area. We'd like to do a little more but that isn't the entire solution.

"It's something everyone is going to have to work on."

There have been several meetings to discuss vandalism. MLA Karen Sanford (NDP—Comox), Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, the provincial police commission and representatives of the communities affected have met to discuss the problem.

Hatfield criticized municipal council members for "shutting their eyes" to the situation and said he knows of several residents who believe that forming vigilante groups might solve the problem.

Mayor Richard Merrick of Comox confirmed he has heard rumors of vigilante groups.

"But I hope it doesn't come down to that," he said.

Mayor Merrick said he supports formation of citizen patrols to survey and report acts of vandalism but fears "people could get hurt" if residents take the law into their own hands.

Hatfield said courts in the Comox Valley are too lenient with youngsters responsible for vandalism.

Comox recreation director Bert Linder said a very small number of juveniles are responsible for the problem and added that their actions are giving the municipality a bad name.

Recent vandalism has included driving cars over a football field, knocking down trees, overturning bleachers and breaking windows at the recreation centre, breaking into the local shopping centre and spraying municipal signs with paint.

Damage to municipal property in November was estimated at $3,000.

Staff-Sgt. Watt said he hopes to increase his 25-man detachment by two officers in April and get another six in 1976.

The detachment covers Comox, Courtenay and Cumberland and extends about 20 miles north and south from Courtenay along the Island Highway.

$200,000 IN MONCTON POLICE FUND

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) Members of the committee administering a trust fund for the families of two slain Moncton policemen say that more than $200,000 has been processed and deposited at the trust fund account.

"By far the bulk of the contributions have come from Moncton and the Moncton area," Inspector Lorne Leaman, one of the policemen serving on the committee, said.

"But we have heard from every province and have received contributions from as far south as Florida."

The fund was established for the families of Cpl. Aurele Bourgeois, a 47-year-old father of four, and Constable Michael O'Leary, a 33-year-old father of two.

They disappeared Dec. 13 while investigating the kidnapping of a 14-year-old boy and their bodies were discovered in shallow graves northeast of the city two days later. The boy was released unharmed after his father paid a $15,000 ransom.

Pakistan Guessing At Deaths

BEESHAM (Reuter) — A week after the catastrophic earthquake in northern Pakistan, there is still no real idea how many persons it killed.

Official and unofficial estimates vary between 3,000 and 8,000 killed and from 10,000 to 30,000 injured.

It is a safe assumption that the actual casualties lie somewhere in between, probably much closer to the lower than higher estimates.

But there is no doubt from the widespread devastation that the quake last Saturday in the Karakoram mountains caused great loss of life.

Western diplomats, often skeptical about death tolls from natural disasters on the Asian sub-continent because they tend to be exaggerated to encourage international aid, are inclined to accept that at least 3,000 persons died.

"It's still a major disaster whether there are 3,000 or 13,000 killed," said one envoy. "So there is a genuine case for aid."

But some countries apparently back-pedalled on donations to the relief fund after King Faisal of oil-rich Saudi Arabia pledged $10 million.

MISSING PILOT SAFE

An American pilot who force-landed his single-engine plane on Morris Lake, 100 miles east of Whitehorse, Y.T., on Friday was rescued and flown to hospital in the Yukon capital Saturday.

A search and rescue spokesman at Victoria said the pilot, whose plane went missing Friday night, was in good condition. He was identified as Bernard McPhillips, about 28, from Anchorage, Alaska.

The spokesman said the pilot was ferrying the Piper Apache-23 from Watson Lake, Y.T., to Anchorage for Pat's Flying service based in Anchorage.

He said the reason for the forced landing was not yet established. He said the pilot was picked up by a helicopter loaned to search and rescue.

Bad weather apparently forced the pilot to make the landing. His location was pinpointed by bearings taken on the aircraft's electronic crash position signal.

Two planes had been on a 470-mile flight from Watson Lake, to Northway, the first section of the trip to Anchorage.

Pedestrian First City Fatality

A 76-year-old pedestrian became Victoria's first traffic fatality of the new year Sunday when she was struck by a car at Cook and Burdett.

Dorothy V. Crighton, of 104-805 Cook Street, was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital at about 5:30 p.m.

Police said the woman was crossing Cook west to east in an unmarked crosswalk during heavy rain and darkness when she was hit by a vehicle driven by Bruce Whitten of 145 Barkley Terrace, Oak Bay.

Police said no charges have been laid and that no date has yet been set for an inquest.

CITIES CAN GO BROKE, MAYOR WARNS

Curb Big Spending—Pollen

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen today pointed a warning finger at economic "storm clouds on the horizon," and dipped into the city's past to remind his council colleagues that Victoria has gone broke before. (The text of his address was released in advance of this afternoon's meeting.)

While Pollen gave a firm assurance that the city is in excellent financial shape, he said he was dredging up history to emphasize the fact that Victoria, "like all cities, does not have an infinite capacity to generate tax revenue . . ."

For that reason, he stated in his inaugural address, the city must try to control "the voracious and, in many areas, undisciplined and unco-ordinated demands of institutions dependent upon the taxpayers of our community for tax revenue."

Among such institutions the mayor listed the Capital Regional District, the Greater Victoria Library system, Camosun College and the education system in general.

"A great challenge is before us not only to endeavour to regulate the appetite of these institutions to conform with the financial limitations of our citizens, but at the same time to develop a positive response from the provincial government to the ever-increasing problem of municipal finance," he said.

Pollen produced his recession-conscious warning in referring to the city's debt situation.

Total debt outstanding as of Dec. 31 last year, he said, was $9.2 million. But additional spending approved in the city's second five-year capital budget, together with projects in the planning stage, would bring the total debt both outstanding and authorized to $14 million.

Per capita debt as of Dec. 31 was $149, or $228 including debt authorized but not yet assumed. By that date the debt per thousand dollars of taxable assessment was $41 outstanding and $63 gross authorized.

"This latter standard, of course, is perhaps the most meaningful as it reflects, to a degree, the capacity of the community to handle its debt load.

"I say to a degree in this instance as it is fully recognized that, while assessments might be high in relation to debt, in a sharp recession or depression the capability of this assessment to pay taxes is not necessarily present inasmuch as property taxes are almost entirely retrogressive; that is, they do not reflect the capacity of a particular property owner to pay."

Pollen pointed out that only

Economic Optimism Quashed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's chief economist today warned against undue optimism that recovery from the recession will begin in the second half of 1975.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, testified before Congress' joint economic committee that the economy's downturn came more swiftly than the administration anticipated and recovery may come more slowly than many private economists predict.

"The very suddenness of the decline has made developments beyond the first quarter (of 1975) extremely difficult to gauge, but essentially we still foresee a bottoming out in economic activity by mid-year," Greenspan said.

"The timing and the strength of the ensuing recovery is still very uncertain."

Most economists are predicting that the U.S. economy will pick up toward the end of the year, especially if, as expected, the government provides economic stimulation through tax cuts and heavy deficit spending.

According to Time magazine, President Ford, in his state of the union message next month, will ask for an income tax cut between $10 billion and $15 billion.

Canada staged a spectacular rally in the final period Sunday at Winnipeg, but it wasn't enough to prevent Russia from retaining the world junior hockey title.

Defensive errors by the Canadians played a part in all goals scored by the Russians, who held on for a 4-3 triumph after building up a 4-1 lead. It was the only defeat in the six-team tournament for the Canadian team, comprised of players from the Western Canada Hockey League.

One of the Canadian goals was scored by Rick Lapointe of Victoria Cougars, who had bolstered their lead in the WCHL's Western Division by crushing Medicine Hat Tigers 10-2 Saturday at Memorial Arena. (Page 12)

In the National Hockey League, Washington Capitals continued their threat to set a modern record for futility as they were blanked 3-0 Sunday by Atlanta Flames. Capitals now have a mark of three victories, four ties and 33 losses, placing in jeopardy the record for inefficiency set in 1972-73 by New York Islanders, who lost 60 times while managing 12 wins and six ties. Nanaimo Schools Crippled

NANAIMO—Students at Nanaimo's 43 schools got only one hour of instruction today as the school district's Canadian Union of Public Employees workers began a rotating strike.

"We just want to create a little hassle with the school board to draw attention to the job security and cost of living issues," CUPE Local 606 president Nick Mieras said today.

Mieras said only 21 out of the 185 local members stayed off work today, including all the district's bus drivers.

He called the school board irresponsible for closing the schools when most custodians were on the job today.

District superintendent Douglas Welcker said the board had expected CUPE to stage a general walkout this morning, so had to prepare for that.

He said the "harrassment" of rotating strikes will make it difficult to keep the schools open.

Today students who made it to school despite the lack of buses received assignments and some instruction from their teacher for an hour, then were dismissed.

Teachers were to attend in-service training sessions the rest of the day.

Last-minute negotiations between Nanaimo school board and the CUPE staff broke down Saturday.

Main issue in the dispute is job security. The board had offered a letter of understanding that there would be no contracting out for the 1975 contract year. The union rejected the offer on grounds that a future contract might not be signed before the Dec. 31, 1975 expiration date of the agreement.

Mieras said the union rejected an 18-per-cent wage increase over one year because a cost-of-living clause was not included. the board had earlier offered a cost-of-living allowance clause on a two-year contract.

About 80 Port Alberni city employees, members of CUPE Local 118, started a work-to-rule campaign Saturday to back demands for a new contract. The action followed a meeting with city representatives and mediator Clark Gilmour Friday.

Meanwhile, more than 89,000 students in the Ontario separate school districts of Durham, Sudbury, Wellington, Carleton, Ottawa, Elgin and London-Middlesex were enjoying an extended Christmas break boday while their teachers and school board trustees sat through crucial stages of contract bargaining.

Million-Gallon Spill Awash at Singapore

SINGAPORE — This port was put on alert today to combat possible major oil pollution after a Japanese supertanker went aground just outside the port limits spilling an estimated one million gallons of crude oil from its ruptured tanks.

The Showa Maru, bound from the Persian Gulf to Japan, ran aground half a mile west of Buffalo rock in the Singapore strait at daybreak.

By mid-afternoon, Port of Singapore authorities said the ship master had reported that some 4,500 kilolitres (approximately one million gallons) of crude had poured out of three ruptured tanks.

The island republic's maritime authorities put out an urgent oil pollution alert and sent fire fighting ships to spray detergents on the spreading oil slicks.

Both the Singapore defence ministry and the ministry of environment were placed on standby alert should the spilled oil reach the beaches.

Port officials said one oil slick over one-mile-long had drifted into the outer reaches of Singapore port.

Port authorities said oil slicks had already reached some of the small islands south of Singapore, and prevailing currents threatened to push oil slicks ashore near Jurong, on Singapore Island's west coast.

Today's spill was believed to be the first of such a magnitude in the area and could well cause serious pollution on the beaches of three countries — Singapore, Malaysia and Indonesia.

The Japanese government said in Tokyo it was preparing for action to counter the effects of the spill.

Government sources said the foreign ministry had contacted the Japanese embassy in Singapore and had also talked to a Tokyo shipowners organization about the possibility of rushing oil fences and chemical neutralizers to the scene of the accident.

Bridge Rammed, 10 Dead

Times News Services

HOBART, Tasmania — Officials believe at least 10, and possibly 20, people were killed when a British ore freighter rammed the Tasman bridge Sunday night and brought down a 240-foot section of the span that took the 11,200-ton ship to the bottom.

The bodies of five of the ship's 42 crew members were recovered, and two other crew members were missing. But police said they believed two and possibly four cars plunged from the bridge into the Derwent River 150 feet below. They had no idea how many persons were in the cars, but one vehicle may have held six occupants.

The ship, the Lake Illawarra, stayed afloat long enough for the other 35 crew members to get off alive. Three were in hospital. The survivors included the ship's captain and the chief engineer.

The four-lane, mile-long bridge connected the business district of Hobart, on the west bank of the river, to residential areas on the east side. The city is the capital and largest city of Tasmania, the Australian island state 150 miles south of the mainland.

The accident occurred about 9 p.m. during a light rain, officials said.

The Lake Illawarra, carrying 10,000 tons of zinc concentrate, smashed into and demolished two of the bridge pylons, shearing away three spans.

"The ship steered to the left of the navigation span and hit the bridge on the third pylon from the eastern shore," said Maurice Allan, who saw the accident from his home. "The ship went straight down after the bridge collapsed on top of it after wavering for about 60 seconds."

Allan's son, Gordon, 20, said he heard "a big bang and saw a car heading into town swerve across the bridge. It hit an oncoming car and both fell into the river."

Drug, Drink Dry-Out At Oak Bay Manor?

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Oak Bay council will consider tonight a proposal to locate a "reorientation" program at Oak Bay Manor for "people from industry" who have an alcohol or other drug dependency problem.

Ian Else, manager of the $5.5 million retirement home at 2251 Cadboro Bay Rd., said today the manor has been approached by a group of four doctors who have developed a 28-day treatment program for such cases.

The concept is to treat executives or other valued employees a company does not want to lose through a combination of counselling, diet and exercise and in suitable surroundings such as the manor can provide, he said.

The proposal envisages 18 rooms in a "somewhat isolated" wing on the fourth floor being used and Else emphasized that people taking part in the program would be sober and well-behaved. With four of the rooms to be used as offices and two to a room in the remainder, the proposed program would have room for an enrolment of 28.

The program would not be for "welfare cases," would be operated discreetly and would be halted if found not to be working, Else said.

"It's for productive people in our society."

He declined to indicate what the overall cost for a patient would be but said the manor's charge would be the same as for a resident, between $500 and $600 a month, which includes meals.

The concept has the blessing of Human Resources Minister Norm Levi, he said, but both Levi and the Manor want approval from Oak Bay council.

Else said such a program located at the Manor would obviously benefit it by utilizing unoccupied rooms but in addition he believes the program would meet a need.

Most of the suites of the 267-suite Manor are unoccupied. The Manor is also seeking authority to provide "personal care," a degree of nursing assistance, on one floor of a wing.

Energy Head To Venezuela

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald left today for Caracas, Venezuela, for five days of discussions on oil prices and supplies.

Officials said he specifically plans to discuss a Venezuelan proposal to increase by more than $1 per barrel of oil income tax paid by foreign oil companies in the South American oil-exporting country.

Companies Shy Away From B.C.

The number of companies from outside the province registering to do business in British Columbia has declined for the second straight year, according to statistics obtained today from the office of the registrar of companies.

There were 540 companies coming into B.C. in 1974, down 6 per cent from a year earlier.

In 1973 the total of 573 had been down 11 per cent from 644 in 1972, the year the New Democratic Party came to power.

Until that time, the number of companies coming into B.C. was increasing at about 12 per cent per year.

Registrations are by companies with headquarters outside B.C. who set up their first branches in this province or seek permission to expand operations into B.C.

Usually these companies are quite large and have branches in several provinces and countries.

Meanwhile, the number of companies incorporated in B.C. during 1974 was 9,766, up 4 per cent from 9,413. This is about the same rate of growth as in the previous year when the number of companies increased 4.3 per cent from 9,024.

Incorporations are by companies being formed in B.C. and the majority of them are small. For example, each penny mine and oil exploration firm on the Vancouver Stock Exchange is incorporated as a separate comany.

The number or registration by large outside firms is considered a major index of the economic growth of a province.

The number of new incorporations inside the province is also considered significant, reflecting optimism or pessimism for the immediate future.

The figures reflect a note of caution but not extreme pessimism about the future of the B.C. economy. And December totals were surprisingly high in both categories.

There were 54 companies from outside B.C. registering for the first time in this province, up from 38 the previous December. The total number of B.C. companies incorporated during December was 650, up from 578 the previous December.

Meanwhile, the co-op movement flourished during 1974. There were 78 new co-ops formed in B.C. during the year, up from 38 in 1973 and up from 33 in 1972.

New partnerships during the year totalled 2,194, up from 2,086 in 1973 and up from 1,992 in 1972.

There were 680 societies formed during 1974, up from 609 in 1973 and up from 493 in 1972.

24% in 9-Month Pact Offered BCR

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Rail shopcraft workers would receive a 24-per-cent wage increase during a nine-month contract if they approve a memorandum of agreement with the railway according to the Vancouver television station BCTV.

Shopcraft union members voted Sunday at Squamish and were to vote today at Prince George on the tentative agreement announced early Saturday following a meeting between representatives of the two sides. Vancouver lawyer Dalton Larson, appointed by the provincial government in late December as industrial inquiry commissioner, presided over the meeting.

Details of the proposed settlement were to be withheld pending completion of the ratification vote.

Union negotiators recommended the 550 striking workers accept the proposed contract. But in Prince George Saturday, shopcraft spokesman Vern Paul recommended that the proposal be rejected by the membership.

BCTV said the vote appeared close at the meeting of about 300 Lower Mainland workers at Squamish Sunday. The station said the memorandum of agreement includes a proposal to set up an industrial inquiry commission to investigate labor-management relations at the provincial government-owned railway.

Union spokesman Norm Farley said the railway can expect more trouble next summer unless labor-management relations improve.

Farley said that if the memorandum of agreement was ratified by the shopcraft unions, the railway could be running again Tuesday. The BCR has been idle since negotiations broke off and the strike began Nov. 21.

Shopcraft employees picketing northern sections of the line said they were considering continuing their work stoppage, even if most of the B.C. Rail workers decide to return to work.

Paul said his 80 supporters at Prince George and Williams Lake aren't on speaking terms with Farley, after Farley signed the memorandum of agreement.

Farley was to meet Paul in Prince George today.

Under the contract which expired Oct. 31, 1974, top rate among the shopcraft employees was $5.79 an hour.

The Crown corporation's last public offer to the striking workers would have increased wages and benefits by 19.5 per cent during a nine-month contract. The union was seeking a 30.6-per-cent increase in the same period.

Rally Continues At Toronto

The stock market at Toronto continued its recent rally with prices gaining moderately in light mid-afternoon trading.

B.C. Packers B rose 1⅜ to $19⅞, Southam A ¾ to $24¼, Stelco A ⅜ to $27½, Algoma Steel ½ to $25⅜ and Dofasco ½ to $23¼.

Noranda A fell ½ to $28¾, MacMillan Bloedel ¼ to $22 and Inco A ¼ to $21⅜.

Quebec Sturgeon lost ½ to $4.80, Gilbraltar 40 cents to $4 and Camflo ⅜ to $11⅝. Rio Algom gained ¼ to $19¼ and Hudson Bay Mining A ¼ to $14.

PanCanadian Pete was up ⅜ to $8½ and Ranger ¼ to $14¾. Numac dropped ¼ to $9¼.

New York

Wall Street staged another broad advance with a lift from the Federal Reserve's reduction of its discount rate.

After Friday's close, the Fed announced a half-point reduction, to 7¼ per cent, in the key rate it charges on loans to member commercial banks.

The Dow responded Monday with a climb of more than 7 points in the first half hour of trading.

Prices then settled back at mid-day in profit-taking, but gained some new upward impetus later when a small St. Louis bank cut its prime lending rate to 10 from 10½ per cent.

Gold stocks retreated on indications of an unenthusiastic response to the government's auction of 2 million ounces of the metal. ASA Ltd., was down 1½ to 64½; Homestake Mining 1¼ to 35¾; Dome Mines 1⅛ to 44¾, and Campbell Red Lake Mines 1½ to 29⅜.

Guiana Leaders Jailed As Nation Under Siege

Manchester Guardian

PARIS — The French government has arrested most of the main opposition leaders in the South American territory of French Guiana and is preparing to put them on trial for subversion in an effort to stamp out growing unrest in its largest overseas possession.

Fight opposition figures, including teachers, journalists, a lawyer and a doctor, were flown 4,000 miles across the Atlantic to Paris last week and put in the Sante Prison here in the French tradition of transporting opponents in the colonies to France for "security reasons."

The government says the eight were planning attacks in the Guianese capital Cayenne, on Christmas Eve, and claims to have seized arms, ammunition and documentary proof.

Cayenne is reported to be in a virtual state of seige, with riot police brought in from the island territory of Guadeloupe in the Caribbean 1,200 miles northwest of Cayenne, and troops of the Foreign Legion patrolling the streets and searching houses. Gatherings of more than five people have been banned.

The French Socialist Party sent an investigative mission to the territory, and the party leader, Francois Mitterrand, who recently visited Cayenne himself, is expected to use their report to criticize President Valery Giscard d-Estaing's government.

The trouble in French Guiana has arisen from a political awakening over the past six months stimulated by a further deterioration of the already serious economic plight of the territory.

With prices 60 per cent higher than in France, massive unemployment and the prospect of a further loss of jobs through a new cutback at the space center at Kourou, 30 miles northwest of Cayenne, by the middle of 1975, the 52,000 inhabitants have begun to protest what they see as centuries of neglect by France.

New political groups and publications appeared last year, and they have provided the backbone for the unrest, which began in September and November with clashes involving police and troops against demonstrators during visits by the French minister for overseas territories, Olivier Stirn.

Stirn has charged that the unrest was "deliberately managed." Leopold Heder, a Socialist member of the French Senate and, as mayor of Cayenne, French Guiana's most prominent political figure, has likened the present tension to the situation in Algeria before it became independent.

Bart the Beaver arrives at new home

BEAVER DISPLACED BUT NOT DISPLEASED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Being forced out of your home in the dead of winter isn't a happy experience but for Bart the Beaver the story did have a happy ending.

Bart, a 30-pound beaver fell victim two weeks ago to Manitoba Hydro's Nelson River Diversion Project at Jenpeg, 500 miles north of here.

High water on the Nelson apparently washed the beaver from his dam and down a turbulent spillway near the Jenpeg construction site. He tumbled 15 feet into rough water, bobbed to the surface and climbed on an ice pack, said Murray Bond, a Hydro construction inspector who witnessed the oreal.

"He was thoroughly stunned by the fall. But he looked rather pleased that he was still alive."

Realizing Bart was "down on his luck," Bond and several construction workers decided to try to help. They erected a make shift shelter with logs and other materials but Bart refused to leave his ice pack.

"He'd come ashore periodically to look for food," said Bond in a telephone interview.

"But most of the poplar trees (a beaver's main diet) had been torn out during construction."

The beaver refused to eat the cabbage and carrots put out for him so the workers cut down some poplars from another area and brought them to Bart.

Earlier this week, Bart decided he had had enough of conditions on the ice pack. He moved into the general construction area and didn't seem to mind when a worker locked him in a heated shack.

Eventually contact was made with Assiniboine Park Zoo officials who said they would be pleased to take in a homeless beaver, especially if it was a female.

"We really didn't know whether it was a male or female," said Bond.

"Nobody was brave enough to pick him up to find out."

ASTON MARTIN BUYER RUMORED

LONDON (AP) — Aston Martin Lagonda, Ltd., is "more hopeful" about finding a buyer or some other financial support for its prestige car business, managing director Charles Warden said today.

Warden said a U.S. businessman, whom he refused to identify, had shown "firm interest" in Aston Martin. There also were reports that Guest Keen and Nettlefolds, Ltd., might bid for Aston Martin. A spokesman for GKN wouldn't comment on the rumors. GKN is a major supplier of components to the British car industry.

Other potential bidders for Aston Martin, which went into voluntary liquidation Dec. 30, include a group of Aston Martin dealers and an unidentified investment group.

Liquor Funds for Hungry Parksville Man's Crusade

PARKSVILLE — One man here is trying to convince the provincial and federal governments to give up a full day's profit from liquor stores and beer parlors.

Michael O'Hara wants the money to buy food for "desperately starving men, women and children" in the Third World and particularly Bangladesh.

He proposes the food be transported by armed forces aircraft and that forces personnel distribute the food.

Project Third World Victim is the name of his program about which he talked to government officials and addressed student groups.

O'Hara says his project will give adults a chance to help starving people across the world.

In B.C. he has received replies from letters to Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich, Liberal Leader David Anderson, and Premier Barrett's executive assistant.

MLA Robert Skelly has offered to bring the matter to the attention of the legilsature.

THEY BOUGHT UP THE TOWN

HILAND, Wyo. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Bob Steelman stopped to buy a pack of cigarettes one day last September and wound up buying the whole town.

"We did it on the spur of the moment and I still wonder why I'm here," said Mrs. Steelman, who wouldn't say how much she and her husband paid for the town 60 miles west of Casper. "It all happened so fast. I am still staggered by it."

Since Mrs. Betty Evenson sold Hiland the population has shot up from one to six. But the sign on the edge of town still puts the population at 10.

"I guess they don't have any signs that say any less than 'population 10' anywhere in the state," said Mrs. Steelman, who lives in Hiland with her husband, three children and a few grandchildren who drop in from time to time.

"I love it," she said. "We've got a post office, bus station, store, service station, motel and a bar."

The Steelmans plan to make their town into a stopover for hunters and perhaps a summer vacation spot.

"I doubt this will become any sort of vacation mecca for mid-Wyoming," Mrs. Steelman said of her snowy little town. "It won't be the kind of place where a girl would want to spend her honeymoon, especially in the winter, but it might be the rage in July."

The family moved into the town from Arminto, eight miles away. Former owner Mrs. Evenson now lives in Casper, writing her memoirs of the 50 years she spent running the town her father founded a half-century ago. She said she never got lonely, but it was getting a little hard to keep the place up.

Although Hiland's sale price was not revealed, everyone seemed satisfied. Mrs. Steelman said she got a pretty good buy, and Mrs. Evenson felt so good about the deal that she threw in the recipe for her widely acclaimed ham sandwiches.

3 Dairymen Apply

Only three B.C. dairy farmers have applied to lease a 150-acre farm at Ladysmith bought by the provincial government a few months ago.

"We thought there would be more interest since it is the first time the government will lease such a farm and it is the only one available," agriculture department property management administrator Norman Smith said.

All three applicants now operate dairy farms which are too small for desired expansion, he added.

No-Shows: 'Terrible Waste'

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

There's no honor among thieves, so perhaps it is not unusual the incidence of bail-skipping has soared ever since the federal government liberalized the Bail Act a few years ago.

Until recently it was relatively rare for an accused person released on bail to fail to show for trial.

But it's a different story today.

The "no show" has become increasingly common and the government is considering tightening the regulations again.

Court officers concede there is a problem but are reluctant to estimate the magnitude.

There are few statistics but this will be rectified later this month when results are released on a survey of the provincial court system undertaken last summer by the attorney-general's deparment.

A study in the Vancouver courts last fall showed between 12 to 13 per cent of the cases brought to trial could not proceed because the accused didn't appear.

The situation, it seems is just as bad here. Last month in Victoria provincial court-room B, 11 accused persons failed to show for trial.

As trials in that court are normally set for half a day, it meant 5½ days were wasted, a critical loss to the court calendar which is clogged with cased yearning for swift trial.

"It's a terrible waste," a court clerk said, "especially when you consider the public pays the judge about $39,000 a year just to sit and hear cases . . . and then for perhaps a quarter of the time there are no cases for him to hear."

That's just a start to the problem.

"No shows" mean more work for the court clerks who have to cancel witnesses, start the whole proceedings again and issue new warrants.

If the "no show" had been out on surety bail or his own recognizance in a certain sum, the judge normally endorses the bail order initiating estreatment proceedings which create another round of paper work at the higher court level.

Estreatments—the forfeiture to the crown of money or property guaranteed in the bail order—have risen sharply over the past year. In 1973 there were 19 in Victoria, in 1974, 64, an increase of more than 300 per cent.

But there are enormous difficulties for the crown in collecting bails estreated.

ANDERSON
. . . 'sign of the time'

"It's an onerous procedure to begin with," county court clerk explained. "We have to send out a double registered notice of hearing to the accused; but 90 per cent of the time the notice comes back unopened and we discover the address is a vacant lot, or no such number exists, or the person has moved, or has never lived there before."

The crown proceeds nonetheless and takes the matter before the county court judge who generally authorizes forfeiture. A writ of execution is then drawn up . . . and guess where it is sent out: to the address the accused originally gave.

"There is nothing else we can do," the clerk sighed.

Wally Anderson, regional crown prosecutor, said estreatment is futile unless the crown catches up to the person names in the order.

"So we get the writ . . . but only if he can catch the body."

He confessed the recovery rate was "not very high", probably not more than 20 per cent.

He attributed most of the problems to a growing tendency of bail applicants to give phoney names and addresses. There seems to be no cross-checking mechanism or deterrents to prevent lies.

"Maybe it's just a sign of the times," said Peter Birkett, senior member of the Victoria prosecuting team, "People don't take their commitments as seriously as they should.

"Some tend to forget; others it's just a case of saying, 'The heck with it . . . if your're foolish enough to release me then I'm off' ".

Inn, Union Discussing Reopening

The Mediaeval Inn may not be closed for long after all.

Representatives of the restaurant and Local 835, Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union, were meeting today, less than 72 hours after the inn announced it was shutting down.

Inn owner John Jones of Vancouver admitted today that the restaurant would reopen if agreement could be reached for a contract at a lower level than the first contract ordered last week by the Labor Relations Board.

The LRB-ordered first contract included a wage scale of $2.88 an hour for waitresses, an increase of 13 cents an hour, plus payment of 22 cents an hour into a union health and welfare and pension plan.

★ ★ ★

Local manager John McCarvill said the inn was closed today but "I certainly hope we can come to some sort of arrangement."

He said the restaurant cannot afford to pay the LRB contract.

"They gave the union everything but the kitchen sink," he said.

McCarvill said the problem area is the 22 cents an hour into the union health and welfare and pension plan.

He said the restaurant already was paying half the cost of a medical plan and a dental plan and all the cost of a life insurance plan.

Inn shop steward Erin Ralph said she considers the closing of the restaurant was "definitely a tactic" by management to change the LRB-ordered contract.

Small Town in Winter: Ontario 30 Years Later

Not the least reward for doing these little pieces for the paper is that they may be used as a sort of snapshot album and I need merely dip in my file of them (carefully stuffed in a cardboard Libby's Bean box) to recapture moments in the past.

That explains, if you must know, why we are today in a little town in Ontario on a winter's day of almost exactly 30 years ago, a sequence of events that began when I wrote that this year my wife and I might experience another eastern Christmas.

As it happened, events made it impossible for us to get away and I thought that would be the end of it. But what I'd forgotten was the fact that fully one out of every two Victorians is from some point to the east and these people were expecting some sort of report from the Harwood, Ontario, farm of my friend Burwash, as I'd sort of promised.

There were, in fact, a dozen or more letters, mostly from ex-Ontarians, asking me when they could expect some report on our adventure.

"I feel as if I'd let them down rather badly," I told my wife. "I remember once, early in the war, going to a small Ontario town called Kemptville, and coming away with a wonderful impression of it. I'm darned sure I wrote something about it at the time, but I guess it's lost forever."

My wife marched directly to the Libby's Bean box, excavated in its nether depths and came up with a small, paperback booklet. It was a war-time collection of columns, called "Says We", written by Sergeant Eric Nicol and Sergeant Jack Scott, published 30 years ago and selling for 35 cents the copy, and there — sure enough! — was the piece called "Small Town at War" that I'd remembered.

Here it is, just for you transplanted Ontarians, with my good wishes:

★ ★ ★

Some of the people who know that I take a rather dim view of Ontario smirked and shook wise heads when they heard I was to spend a day or two doing a job here in Kemptville. "Okay," they said. "You've been in Toronto and Ottawa and you think that's Ontario. Wait until you've seen Kemptville."

We went up from Ottawa in a staff car in the early morning, humming along the river road in the cold winter sunlight and at noon we arrived. We rolled smoothly over a hill and the little town was bunched below and I knew in the first minute that the place would stay a long time in my memory.

It is a very small town, solidly built of good grey stone and brick and white mortar, and my mind went back to the typical small towns of my own province, sprawling and made of wood. My first quick impression was that some giant had come upon the town one day, reached out his arms and had gently drawn all the buildings together to keep them warm.

Everything is clustered about the narrow main street and a creek, now swift-running and almost a mustard color from the melting ice, plunges down through the heart of the place. A heavy, arching stone bridge spans it.

The sight gave me the inescapable feeling that this was a Hollywood set for some mellow movie with a 19th century background. You expected to see a red, horse-drawn sleigh come down the street with a crisp tinkle of bells, and one did.

I went into a grocery and feed store for some cigarettes and led the proprietor into easy conversation.

"Pretty town."

"Mighty pretty in summer."

We looked down the narrow street with the ice getting wet in the sun and the solid, thick-walled buildings crowding ageless together. You could imagine what it would be like in summer with the creek slowed to a burble and the trees, now black and gaunt, in bloom.

"Not a soul on the streets," I remarktd.

"There's hardly anybody left," he said. "All the kids gone off to war."

"Oh," I said, realizing it for the first time. "Oh, sure. I should have known it."

I went out and walked up to the car, looking now at the town with new eyes and finding it, as they'd said I would, a very fine place.

HOT WIRES in a refrigerator caused a smoke scare at Cedars Private Hospital, Menzies Street this morning, and patients were evacuated from the second floor as a precaution. Smoke damage was confined to a matron's suite, but until firemen gave the all-clear, hospital staff went through fire drill and moved patients to lower corridor. (Bill Halkett photo)

Anderson Gets Overhaul Task On Fire Bylaws

Two Victoria aldermen will play an unexpected game of committee musical chairs in 1975, but the apparent demotion of one — Ald. Malcolm Anderson — may not be a demotion after all.

Anderson, who has been parks committee chairman for the past two years, was today given the job of chairing the personnel, labor relations and fire prevention committee.

The latter is generally considered the lightweight portfolio on council, condemning the holder to relative obscurity.

But Mayor Peter Pollen, in announcing his annual committee shuffle today, stressed that Anderson's committee this year will have the "major responsibility" of introducing the city's overhauled fire safety standards bylaw.

That bylaw, which has been undergoing staff preparation for several months, is expected to have a difficult birth this year, including as it does much tougher (and therefore costly) standards for up-grading safety in fire-prone older buildings.

Ald. Clyde Savage, a constant critic of Pollen's over the past three years, moves from the personnel-labor relations-fire slot to Anderson's vacated job.

The two neophyte members of city council, Ald. Murray Glazier and Ald. Bob Ellis, receive the committee roles that had been expected to go their way.

Glazier, a consulting engineer who formerly served on the board of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, gets the major responsibility for housing, which includes implementation of the Neighborhood Improvement Program in James Bay and Victoria West.

Ellis, a developer formerly connected with the credit collection business, who has been an active member of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, will take over the commerce, industry and tourism committee.

His predecessor in that position, Ald. Bill Tindall, inherits public works and traffic planning from Ald. Alf Hood, who succeeds the retired Ald. Tom Christie as head of the finance committee.

Hood will also continue as Acting Mayor in 1975.

Retaining their 1974 jobs are Ald. Mike Young (land-use planning and zoning); and Ald. Sam Bawlf (Central Area development, beautification and public transportation).

Tight School Budgets Stymie Theatre Troupe

Victoria's Company One theatre troupe is being disbanded after tight school board budgets all over the province drastically curtailed company bookings for the coming season.

"The schools simply didn't have the money," society president Michael Meiklejohn said today.

Most of the troupe's performances in its 3½ years of operation have been at schools and financed by those schools.

On Vancouver Island the company has performed for the Sooke, Saanich, Nanaimo, Courtenay and Campbell River school districts.

The theatre company "will be reorganizing in the coming months," according to a press release issued today.

Society directors have "decided to study the company's future in the light of . . . the growing recession in B.C."

Economic resession caused much of the schools' reluctance to spend money on entertainment, Meiklejohn indicated.

Ten actors and administrators will be put out of work by the directors' decision.

"We have to settle our debts," said the president. "They're not very serious, but we're going to have trouble meeting them."

The company has been supported by grants from Opportunities for Youth, Local Initiatives Projects, the B.C. Cultural Fund, Canada Council, the Maclean Foundation, the Vancouver Foundation, the Koerner Foundation and by private firms and individuals.

Its reputation has been based on its ensemble playing and innovative works.

Company One actors have performed for 145,355 audience members, with over 21,000 of those in the fall of 1974, its most successful season.

Weather Mix Forecast For Two Days

Weather over Greater Victoria through the next two days will include a "little bit of everything," forecaster Allan McQuarrie said today.

While there is no major front rolling this way as in recent days, unstable air will bring cloudiness with rain or snow showers punctuated with brief sunny periods.

The temperature will drop to freezing at night and climb to about 40 degrees during the day, he said.

A summary of December's weather shows that even within Greater Victoria, it depended where you were. At the Gonzales Observatory the weather was warmer, sunnier and windier with average rainfall.

But at Victoria International Airport it was warmer and sunnier but had more rain and less wind than average.

At Gonzales, the average temperature in December was 44 degrees, almost three degrees above average over the 77 years of record keeping. Rainfall totalled 4.5 inches, .30 inches above average. The sun shone for 61.6 hours, 1.1 hours above average.

At the airport, the temeprature averaged better than two degrees lower and rainfall totalled almost 6½ inches. There were 53.2 hours of sunshine.

Rainfall at Gonzales for the year 1974 totalled 25.85 inches and at the airport almost 37 inches.

Dredging Starts For Centre

Work began today on the first phase of the proposed $18.3 million marine sciences centre at Patricia Bay.

A spokesman for Fraser River Pile Driving Co. Ltd. of Vancouver confirmed his company has been given a $3.9 million federal government contract.

He said his company was beginning dredging today, preparing the way for a berthing area and a foundation area for a new wharf.

The spokesman estimated it would take about a year to complete the dredging and build the new wharf, which will be mostly concrete.

He described the concrete wharf design as being "unique" and complex, with only one small part to be constructed of timber.

Levy Leaves Post to Seek Barrett Talk

Union leader Ken Levy left his vigil outside the legislature this morning to request a meeting with Premier Barrett to discuss closure of Jordan River Mine.

Levy, president of local 1012 of the United Steelworkers of America, hand-delivered a letter to the premier this morning requesting a meeting and again blaming Bill 31 for the closure "of a number of mines" in B.C.

Levy was told the premier was tied up in meetings but would reply to his request as soon as possible.

In his letter, Levy warned that people in B.C. will not give up their jobs easily "while your government and the mining industry fight over taxation."

VIOLENCE ELSEWHERE, TENSION HIGH

Discrimination Low But Lurking

Racial discrimination in Victoria against East Indians is minimal compared to other Vancouver Island centres and Vancouver, according to community and government spokesmen.

But they fear the acute housing shortage and stiff competition for jobs may cause latent racial prejudices to surface.

In Vancouver there has been street fighting between non-East Indians and East Indians and murderous family feuds in the Sikh community.

The violence — five deaths by bombing, knifing and shooting — has aroused racial tensions in some parts of the city to a dangerous level.

★ ★ ★

Sikh leaders blame the violenee on newcomers unable to adjust to western society.

Non-East Indians have attacked the federal government's liberal immigration laws which they say brought a flood of immigrants to Vancouver in the midst of a critical housing shortage.

Commenting on the Victoria situation, Human Rights Director Kathleen Ruff said she has received only one complaint of racial discriminatin against an East Indian.

"There may be more complaints which have been handled by other members of the staff," she said. "But I'm aware of only one case involving the employment of an East Indian."

Racial discrimination complaints from Nanaimo, Campbell River and Vancouver, were more numerous, she said.

Ruff said the housing shortage is a factor.

"Whenever there are shortages — houses and jobs — there is a rise in racial discrimination," she said. "Minorities become scapegoats."

On the other hand, she said the lack of understanding and hospitality for newcomers to a city results in ethnic groups sticking closer together for security.

They in turn may discriminate against those whom they think are opposed to them, she said.

"There is no simple solution."

Dr. Walter Young, head of the University of Victoria political science department, said the human rights department should "be beefed up."

"Kathleen Ruff is doing a splendid job," he said. "But she is swamped with work. She needs more help."

"I don't know what the situation is in Victoria," he said. "But as Immigration Minister Robert Andras has pointed out there is a population explosion in Vancouver. The housing problem is acute."

Jim Nelson, director of Victoria Rental Aid Service, claimed racial discrimination against East Indians is more widespread in Victoria than appears.

Some owners of apartments refuse to rent to East Indians, he said.

He said regional and municipal leaders should speed up land assembly programs for housing before racism breaks out.

"There is going to be trouble if they don't move quickly," he said.

But leaders of Victoria's Sikh community said there is little or no racial discrimination in Victoria.

"At one time there was," they said, "but this has practically died out."

★ ★ ★

They blamed some Hindu immigrants for provoking racial tensions in Vancouver.

"There are two sides to a story," they said. "The way some Hindu boys (immigrants) are behaving in Vancouver, leaves a lot to be desired. You can't blame some people for being alarmed."

Other Victorians said it is misleading to assume that people who oppose current immigration policies for Asiatics are prejudiced. These people simply favor controlled population growth.

"Population is a major world problem," said one resident. "Yet the federal government encourages growth regardless of the long-term social effects."

Pedestrian First City Fatality

A 76-year-old pedestrian became Victoria's first traffic fatality of the new year Sunday when she was struck by a car at Cook and Burdett.

Dorothy V. Crighton, of 104-805 Cook Street, was pronounced dead on arrival at Victoria General Hospital at about 5:30 p.m.

Police said the woman was crossing Cook west to east in an unmarked crosswalk during heavy rain and darkness when she was hit by a vehicle driven by Bruce Whitten of 145 Barkley Terrace, Oak Bay.

Police said no charges have been laid and that no date has yet been set for an inquest.

CITIES CAN GO BROKE, MAYOR WARNS

Curb Big Spending—Pollen

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen today pointed a warning finger at economic "storm clouds on the horizon," and dipped into the city's past to remind his council colleagues that Victoria has gone broke before. (The text of his address was released in advance of this afternoon's meeting.)

While Pollen gave a firm assurance that the city is in excellent financial shape, he said he was dredging up history to emphasize the fact that Victoria, "like all cities, does not have an infinite capacity to generate tax revenue . . ."

For that reason, he stated in his inaugural address, the city must try to control "the voracious and, in many areas, undisciplined and unco-ordinated demands of institutions dependent upon the taxpayers of our community for tax revenue."

Among such institutions the mayor listed the Capital Regional District, the Greater Victoria Library system, Camosun College and the education system in general.

"A great challenge is before us not only to endeavour to regulate the appetite of these institutions to conform with the financial limitations of our citizens, but at the same time to develop a positive response from the provincial government to the ever-increasing problem of municipal finance," he said.

Pollen produced his recession-conscious warning in referring to the city's debt situation.

Total debt outstanding as of Dec. 31 last year, he said, was $9.2 million. But additional spending approved in the city's second five-year capital budget, together with projects in the planning stage, would bring the total debt both outstanding and authorized to $14 million.

Per capita debt as of Dec. 31 was $149, or $228 including debt authorized but not yet assumed. By that date the debt per thousand dollars of taxable assessment was $41 outstanding and $63 gross authorized.

"This latter standard, of course, is perhaps the most meaningful as it reflects, to a degree, the capacity of the community to handle its debt load.

"I say to a degree in this instance as it is fully recognized that, while assessments might be high in relation to debt, in a sharp recession or depression the capability of this assessment to pay taxes is not necessarily present inasmuch as property taxes are almost entirely retrogressive; that is, they do not reflect the capacity of a particular property owner to pay."

Pollen pointed out that only

Canada staged a spectacular rally in the final period Sunday at Winnipeg, but it wasn't enough to prevent Russia from retaining the world junior hockey title.

Defensive errors by the Canadians played a part in all goals scored by the Russians, who held on for a 4-3 triumph after building up a 4-1 lead. It was the only defeat in the six-team tournament for the Canadian team, comprised of players from the Western Canada Hockey League.

One of the Canadian goals was scored by Rick Lapointe of Victoria Cougars, who had bolstered their lead in the WCHL's Western Division by crushing Medicine Hat Tigers 10-2 Saturday at Memorial Arena. (Page 12)

In the National Hockey League, Washington Capitals continued their threat to set a modern record for futility as they were blanked 3-0 Sunday by Atlanta Flames. Capitals now have a mark of three victories, four ties and 33 losses, placing in jeopardy the record for inefficiency set in 1972-73 by New York Islanders, who lost 60 times while managing 12 wins and six ties. Major league baseball pitcher Don Wilson, 29, who tossed two no-hit games in a nine-year career with Houston Astros, died Sunday of asphixiation at his Houston home. Also dead is his five-year-old son. His wife and nine-year-old daughter are in hospital. (Page 12)

Economic Optimism Quashed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's chief economist today warned against undue optimism that recovery from the recession will begin in the second half of 1975.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, testified before Congress' joint economic committee that the economy's downturn came more swiftly than the administration anticipated and recovery may come more slowly than many private economists predict.

"The very suddenness of the decline has made developments beyond the first quarter (of 1975) extremely difficult to gauge, but essentially we still foresee a bottoming out in economic activity by mid-year," Greenspan said.

"The timing and the strength of the ensuing recovery is still very uncertain."

Most economists are predicting that the U.S. economy will pick up toward the end of the year, especially if, as expected, the government provides economic stimulation through tax cuts and heavy deficit spending.

According to Time magazine, President Ford, in his state of the union message next month, will ask for an income tax cut between $10 billion and $15 billion.

Nanaimo Schools Crippled

NANAIMO—Students at Nanaimo's 43 schools got only one hour of instruction today as the school district's Canadian Union of Public Employees workers began a rotating strike.

"We just want to create a little hassle with the school board to draw attention to the job security and cost of living issues," CUPE Local 606 president Nick Mieras said today.

Mieras said only 21 out of the 185 local members stayed off work today, including all the district's bus drivers.

He called the school board irresponsible for closing the schools when most custodians were on the job today.

District superintendent Douglas Weicker said the board had expected CUPE to stage a general walkout this morning, so had to prepare for that.

He said the "harrassment" of rotating strikes will make it difficult to keep the schools open.

Today students who made it to school despite the lack of buses received assignments and some instruction from their teacher for an hour, then were dismissed.

Teachers were to attend in-service training sessions the rest of the day.

Last-minute negotiations between Nanaimo school board and the CUPE staff broke down Saturday.

Main issue in the dispute is job security. The board had offered a letter of understanding that there would be no contracting out for the 1975 contract year. The union rejected the offer on grounds that a future contract might not be signed before the Dec. 31, 1975 expiration date of the agreement.

Mieras said the union rejected an 18-per-cent wage increase over one year because a cost-of-living clause was not included. The board had earlier offered a cost-of-living allowance clause on a two-year contract.

About 80 Port Alberni city employees, members of CUPE Local 118, started a work-to-rule campaign Saturday to back demands for a new contract. The action followed a meeting with city representatives and mediator Clark Gilmour Friday.

Meanwhile, more than 89,000 students in the Ontario separate school districts of Durham, Sudbury, Wellington, Carleton, Ottawa, Elgin and London-Middlesex were enjoying an extended Christmas break boday while their teachers and school board trustees sat through crucial stages of contract bargaining.

Million-Gallon Spill Awash at Singapore

Times News Services

SINGAPORE — This port was put on alert today to combat possible major oil pollution after a Japanese supertanker went aground just outside the port limits spilling an estimated one million gallons of crude oil from its ruptured tanks.

The Showa Maru, bound from the Persian Gulf to Japan, ran aground half a mile west of Buffalo rock in the Singapore strait at daybreak.

By mid-afternoon, Port of Singapore authorities said the ship master had reported that some 4,500 kilolitres (approximately one million gallons) of crude had poured out of three ruptured tanks.

The island repubic's maritime authorities put out an urgent oil pollution alert and sent fire fighting ships to spray detergents on the spreading oil slicks.

Both the Singapore defence ministry and the ministry of environment were placed on standby alert should the spilled oil reach the beaches.

Port officials said one oil slick over one-mile-long had drifted into the outer reaches of Singapore port.

Port authorities said oil slicks had already reached some of the small islands south of Singapore, and prevailing currents threatened to push oil slicks ashore near Jurong, on Singapore Island's west coast.

Today's spill was believed to be the first of such a magnitude in the area and could well cause serious pollution on the beaches of three countries — Singapore, Malaysia and Indonesia.

The Japanese government said in Tokyo it was preparing for action to counter the effects of the spill.

Government sources said the foreign ministry had contacted the Japanese embassy in Singapore and had also talked to a Tokyo shipowners organization about the possibility of rushing oil fences and chemical neutralizers to the scene of the accident.

Bridge Rammed, 10 Dead

Times News Services

HOBART, Tasmania — Officials believe at least 10, and possibly 20, people were killed when a British ore freighter rammed the Tasman bridge Sunday night and brought down a 240-foot section of the span that took the 11,200-ton ship to the bottom.

The bodies of five of the ship's 42 crew members were recovered, and two other crew members were missing. But police said they believed two and possibly four cars plunged from the bridge into the Derwent River 150 feet below. They had no idea how many persons were in the cars, but one vehicle may have held six occupants.

The ship, the Lake Illawarra, stayed afloat long enough for the other 35 crew members to get off alive. Three were in hospital. The survivors included the ship's captain and the chief engineer.

The four-lane, mile-long bridge connected the business district of Hobart, on the west bank of the river, to residential areas on the east side. The city is the capital and largest city of Tasmania, the Australian island state 150 miles south of the mainland.

The accident occurred about 9 p.m. during a light rain, officials said.

The Lake Illawarra, carrying 10,000 tons of zinc concentrate, smashed into and demolished two of the bridge pylons, shearing away three spans.

"The ship steered to the left of the navigation span and hit the bridge on the third pylon from the eastern shore," said Maurice Allan, who saw the accident from his home. "The ship went straight down after the bridge collapsed on top of it after wavering for about 60 seconds."

Allan's son, Gordon, 20, said he heard "a big bang and saw a car heading into town swerve across the bridge. It hit an oncoming car and both fell into the river."

Drug, Drink Dry-Out At Oak Bay Manor?

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Oak Bay council will consider tonight a proposal to locate a "reorientation" program at Oak Bay Manor for "people from industry" who have an alcohol or other drug dependency problem.

Ian Else, manager of the $5.5 million retirement home at 2251 Cadboro Bay Rd., said today the manor has been approached by a group of four doctors who have developed a 28-day treatment program for such cases.

The concept is to treat executives or other valued employees a company does not want to lose through a combination of counselling, diet and exercise and in suitable surroundings such as the manor can provide, he said.

The proposal envisages 18 rooms in a "somewhat isolated" wing on the fourth floor being used and Else emphasized that people taking part in the program would be sober and well-behaved. With four of the rooms to be used as offices and two to a room in the remainder, the proposed program would have room for an enrolment of 28.

The program would not be for "welfare cases," would be operated discreetly and would be halted if found not to be working, Else said.

"It's for productive people in our society."

He declined to indicate what the overall cost for a patient would be but said the manor's charge would be the same as for a resident, between $500 and $600 a month, which includes meals.

The concept has the blessing of Human Resources Minister Norm Levi, he said, but both Levi and the Manor want approval from Oak Bay council.

Else said such a program located at the Manor would obviously benefit it by utilizing unoccupied rooms but in addition he believes the program would meet a need.

Most of the suites of the 267-suite Manor are unoccupied. The Manor is also seeking authority to provide "personal care," a degree of nursing assistance, on one floor of a wing.

Energy Head To Venezuela

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald left today for Caracas, Venezuela, for five days of discussions on oil prices and supplies.

Officials said he specifically plans to discuss a Venezuelan proposal to increase by more than $1 per barrel of oil income tax paid by foreign oil companies in the South American oil-exporting country.

Companies Shy Away From B.C.

The number of companies from outside the province registering to do business in British Columbia has declined for the second straight year, according to statistics obtained today from the office of the registrar of companies.

There were 540 companies coming into B.C. in 1974, down 6 per cent from a year earlier.

In 1973 the total of 573 had been down 11 per cent from 644 in 1972, the year the New Democratic Party came to power.

Until that time, the number of companies coming into B.C. was increasing at about 12 per cent per year.

Registrations are by companies with headquarters outside B.C. who set up their first branches in this province or seek permission to expand operations into B.C.

Usually these companies are quite large and have branches in several provinces and countries.

Meanwhile, the number of companies incorporated in B.C. during 1974 was 9,766, up 4 per cent from 9,413. This is about the same rate of growth as in the previous year when the number of companies increased 4.3 per cent from 9,024.

Incorporations are by companies being formed in B.C. and the majority of them are small. For example, each penny mine and oil exploration firm on the Vancouver Stock Exchange is incorporated as a separate comany.

The number or registration by large outside firms is considered a major index of the economic growth of a province.

The number of new incorporations inside the province is also considered significant, reflecting optimism or pessimism for the immediate future.

The figures reflect a note of caution but not extreme pessimism about the future of the B.C. economy. And December totals were surprisingly high in both categories.

There were 54 companies from outside B.C. registering for the first time in this province, up from 38 the previous December. The total number of B.C. companies incorporated during December was 650, up from 578 the previous December.

Meanwhile, the co-op movement flourished during 1974. There were 78 new co-ops formed in B.C. during the year, up from 38 in 1973 and up from 33 in 1972.

New partnerships during the year totalled 2,194, up from 2,086 in 1973 and up from 1,992 in 1972.

There were 680 societies formed during 1974, up from 609 in 1973 and up from 495 in 1972.

24% in 9-Month Pact Offered BCR

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Rail shopcraft workers would receive a 24-per-cent wage increase during a nine-month contract if they approve a memorandum of agreement with the railway, according to the Vancouver television station BCTV.

Shopcraft union members voted Sunday at Squamish and were to vote today at Prince George on the tentative agreement announced early Saturday following a meeting between representatives of the two sides. Vancouver lawyer Dalton Larson, appointed by the provincial government in late December as industrial inquiry commissioner, presided over the meeting.

Details of the proposed settlement were to be withheld pending completion of the ratification vote.

Union negotiators recommended the 550 striking workers accept the proposed contract. But in Prince George Saturday, shopcraft spokesman Vern Paul recommended that the proposal be rejected by the membership.

BCTV said the vote appeared close at the meeting of about 300 Lower Mainland workers at Squamish Sunday. The station said the memorandum of agreement includes a proposal to set up an industrial inquiry commission to investigate labor-management relations at the provincial government-owned railway.

Union spokesman Norm Farley said the railway can expect more trouble next summer unless labor-management relations improve.

Farley said that if the memorandum of agreement was ratified by the shopcraft unions, the railway could be running again Tuesday. The BCR has been idle since negotiations broke off and the strike began Nov. 21.

Shopcraft employees picketing northern sections of the line said they were considering continuing their work stoppage, even if most of the B.C. Rail workers decide to return to work.

Paul said his 80 supporters at Prince George and Williams Lake aren't on speaking terms with Farley, after Farley signed the memorandum of agreement.

Farley was to meet Paul in Prince George today.

Under the contract which expired Oct. 31, 1974, top rate among the shopcraft employees was $5.79 an hour.

The Crown corporation's last public offer to the striking workers would have increased wages and benefits by 19.5 per cent during a nine-month contract. The union was seeking a 30.6-per-cent increase in the same period,
